What does it mean to be rated?

Not long ago men and women with coronary artery disease, tuberculosis or diabetes were unable to obtain life insurance. Today it is possible for many of these people to be accepted in a special premium classification. Technically speaking they are said to be "rated" policyholders. For many years Manufacturers Life has contributed leadership in this special field. Today we are well known for our progressive outlook and for the favourable premium rates being offered.

Actually 90% of the people applying for Manufacturers Life policies today are accepted at regular rates. Another 8½% are offered insurance at the lowest possible cost considering their particular physical condition, while only 1½% are declined. Whatever your needs, you can be sure of progressive life insurance service when you call the Man from Manufacturers.

THE PROSPECT FOR QUEEN'S

Number of Graduate Students Expected to Increase

University Concerned With Research and Scholarly Work

At the end of each year it is the custom of Principal Mackintosh to speak over the regular Queen's quarter hour on Radio Station C K W S in Kingston. He reviews the campus highlights of the past year, describes plans for the coming year, and outlines future policy.

Our first concern at the University is with our students. For them, the University provides an opportunity for general or professional education or for scholarly and scientific study. This year there are rather more than 2900 of them and they come from far places and near. Some few are from the awakening continent of Asia, from India, Ceylon, Pakistan, Burma, Japan and Hong Kong. A number come to us from Australia and New Zealand, mainly for graduate studies. The changing continent of Africa sends a few students from Ghana, the Union of South Africa, Nigeria, and Portugese West Africa. South America, partly perhaps owing to the activity of Canadian companies and engineers, sends a few students from Chile, Peru, Venezuela, and Colombia. From Europe, Germans, Hungarians, French, Spanish, Italians, and Dutch come to study at the University. An increasing number comes from the United Kingdom, mainly for graduate work and rather unexpectedly their number, while not large, exceeds that of the students coming from the United States. Most of the latter come from families which have some Queen's or Canadian connection. An increasing number of students come from Bermuda, the Bahamas and the West Indies. It is one of the pleasant features of student life at the University that our Canadian students accept those from other countries as persons whose individuality and friendship are important and whose race, colour and differing backgrounds are unimportant.

But while these students from many countries are a significant and noticeable part of our student group, more than 90 per cent of our students come from Canada and around 80 per cent of them come from the Province of Ontario. We like to have students from all Canadian provinces so that all may learn more of the rich variety of this country and its people.

In Ontario, the largest single group of students comes from Kingston and the County of Frontenac. There are more than 300 of these, making up about 11 per cent of the total. The number is perhaps exaggerated a little by a number of married students recorded as residents of Kingston, though not originating here. The second group comes from Toronto and the County of York and this is one of the most rapidly growing groups. The third comes from Ottawa and the County of Carleton. After these three larger areas, we come to smaller numbers, 75 to 90 students each, from Hastings County, from Hamilton and Wentworth County, from Fort William and Port Arthur and from Windsor and Essex County. The pattern is that, with some bias toward Eastern and Central Ontario, the larger groups of students come from the larger centres of population in the Province. There is, I think, no county in the Province which does not send us some students and we have always, I am glad to say, drawn substantial numbers, last year 339, from the various centres of Northern Ontario.

These come to the University from all walks of life and their fellow students seem astonishingly uninterested in their family backgrounds. Each has a chance to establish himself as a person. In the standards of the young, there are more important things than parents or position. This may be disconcerting to some of us as parents but there is a certain healthiness in it. Certainly for university students, it is the future, not the past, that is the thing.

Our University population is higher this year than last but not much higher. Some eighteen or so years ago, the birth rate did not leap forward as rapidly as earlier or later. There have been many new institutions eagerly seeking students and there has been some temporary falling off in engineering registrations. It is to be expected that the upward movement will be resumed next year and strikingly greater numbers will be appearing in three or four years. One of the desirable increases which has taken place is in the number of graduate students. There are enrolled this year 183 of these advanced students and, for the past three or four years, the number has been going up by twenty to forty each year.

A university is concerned not only with teaching but with research and scholarly work. It is not enough to learn what others have discovered, we must do our part in pushing back the boundary of ignorance. Each year more effort, space and resources go into research and scholarly work. A dozen years ago, only a few thousand dollars was available for the carrying on of research. This year, the University receives from the foundations, governments and industries substantially more than $1,000,000 for purchasing equipment, materials, and hiring assistants for those who are engaged in this work. Incidentally, this means that quite aside from the growth in student numbers, each university department requires much more space and much more equipment than was required even five years ago.

A substantial part of the visible activity of the University has again been in building. We have put into use, though work still remains to be done on them, Dunning Hall for the School of Commerce and for the Social Sciences, and the new men's residence, Leonard Hall. The new women's residence on Stuart Street is now in partial use, and the remainder of the work on these buildings will be completed in a month or two.

Excavation has been started for a Law building on the corner of Union and Lower Alfred streets and it is hoped to have this building ready for September. We have a number of smaller projects on which active planning is proceeding that involve the extension or remodelling of existing buildings, Carruthers Hall, the Old Gymnasium, the dining room and kitchens of Ban Righ Hall, the Chemistry Building, and some others.

It may seem to some that our building programme is unusually large and pushed with too much urgency. Visits to other universities across the country would convince any one that though there are local variations, the pattern is the same from St. John's to Victoria.

Our country, as other countries, is confronted by great changes in university education. The changes are required by the scientific revolution, the impending increase in numbers, the necessity of greater numbers of trained and educated persons in a growingly complex society. What we are aiming at in Queen's University is an institution of the first quality with a higher proportion of advanced students, more professional schools and graduate work but not drastically larger in undergraduate numbers—an institution which makes the most of the great advantages the city of Kingston affords to a university.

DR. J. E. HAMMETT

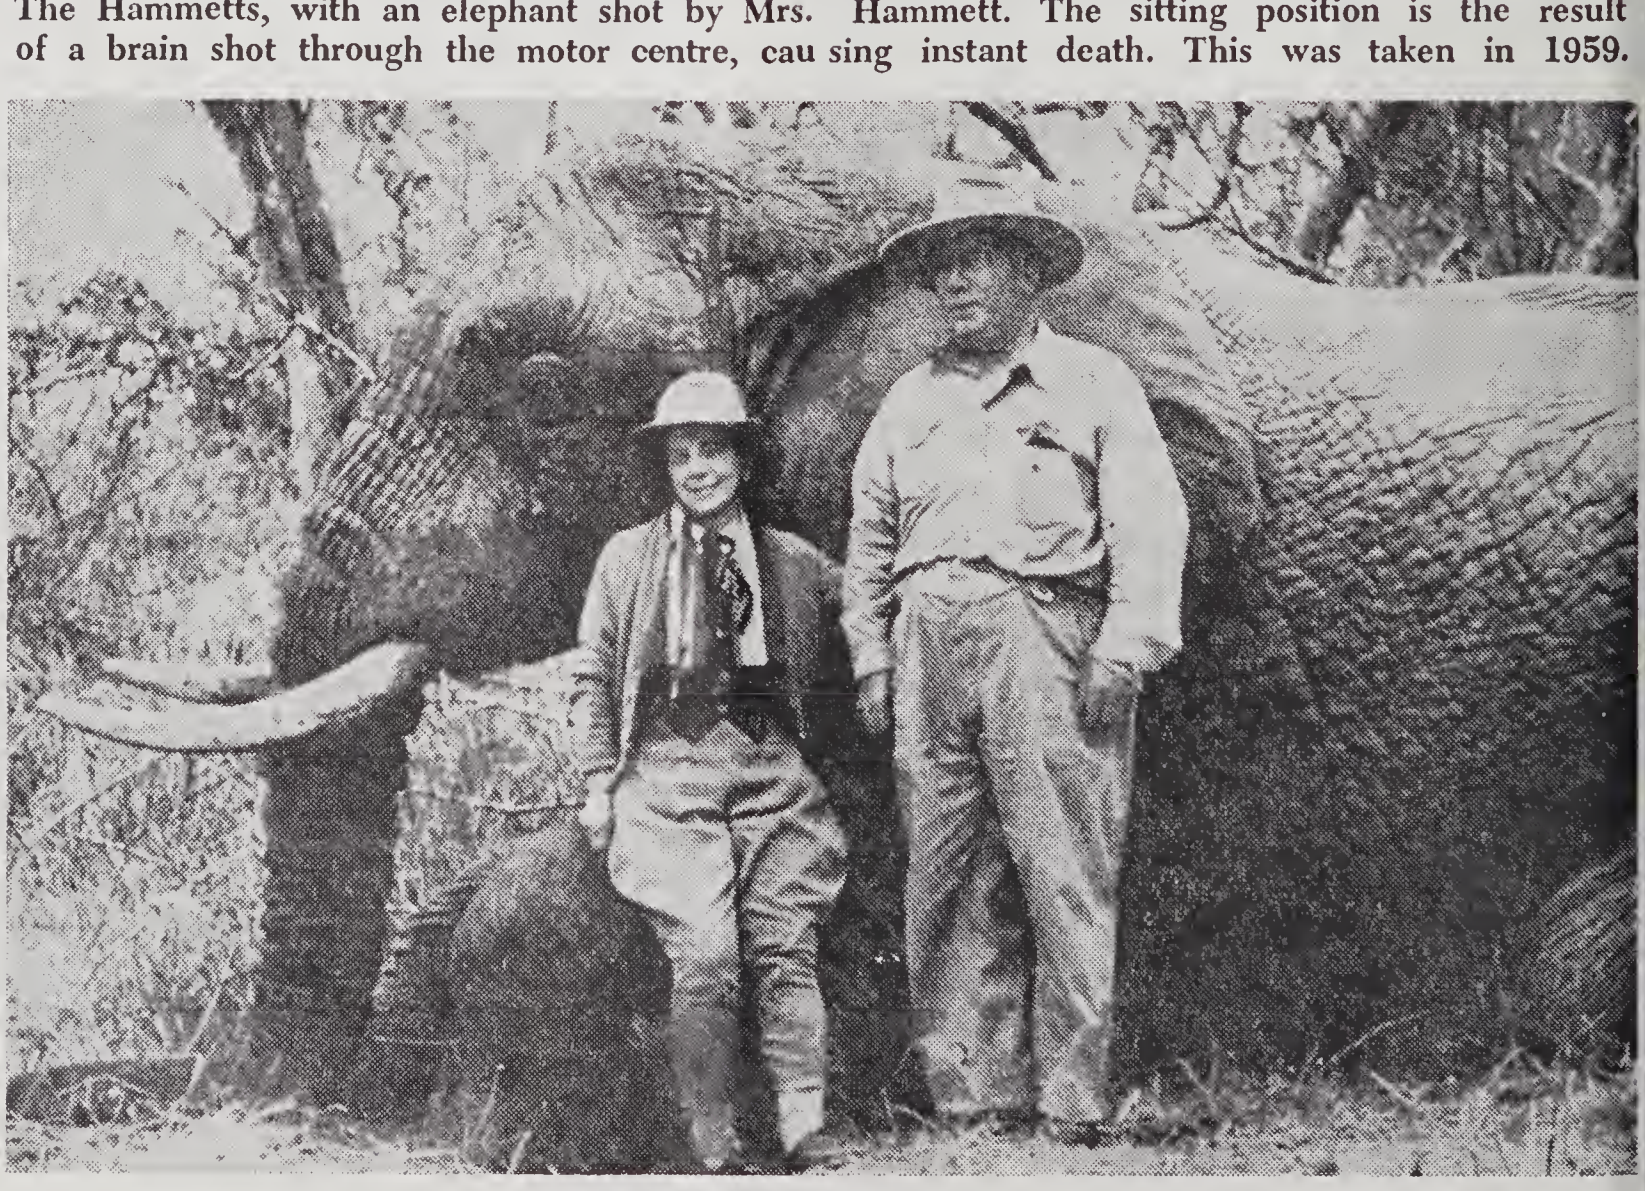

Alumni President

John E. Hammett

A surgeon of renown and a man of many interests, of which Queen's University is one of the most treasured, Dr. John E. Hammett of New York City is the new president of the Alumni Association. He succeeds D. G. Geiger of Toronto, who steps down after two highly successful years in office.

The official head of the graduate body, Dr. Hammett has a long record of service on behalf of the University. He is a member of the University's Board of Trustees and of the University Council. He is a member of the Trustees' advisory committee for the Faculty of Medicine. He has been a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association since 1949. He is president of the Friends of Queen's, Inc., with headquarters in New York, honorary chairman of the Alumni Fund for the

The Hammetts, with an elephant shot by Mrs. Hammett. The sitting position is the result of a brain shot through the motor centre, cau sing instant death. This was taken in 1959.

The Hammetts with a pair of greater Kudu, a very elusive trophy, and one of the most sought after by hunters. Mrs. Hammett's is an exceptionally fine head, measuring 56 inches.

U.S.A., and the driving force of all campaigns for funds conducted in the United States in recent years.

A native of Tweed, Ontario, Dr. Hammett entered Queen's in the Faculty of Medicine in 1913. There was a two-year interruption in 1915 when he joined the No. 5 Stationary Hospital, organized by the late Dr. Frederick Etherington, serving in the Near East and France.

He obtained his M.D.,C.M. degrees in 1919. In what corresponded to a rotating internship he served two years as house surgeon at Broad Street Hospital, New York, where he studied under such renowned teachers as Drs. Robert T. Morris, Walter Crump, Aspinwall Judd, William Schroeder, and John Perilli. Dr. Hammett entered private practice in New York in 1921, and has resided in Manhattan ever since.

Dr. Hammett became associate surgeon at Broad Street Hospital in 1922, and five years later joined the staff of the New York Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital. Eventually he was appointed Director of Surgery at Polyclinic, and many of the prominent doctors in the United States today, in both practice and teaching, are products of Polyclinic tutelage, a fact which is warmly satisfying to him. He was president of the Faculty of the Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital in 1949-50, 1957-58, and 1958-59.

In 1929 Dr. Hammett affiliated with Coney Island Hospital, becoming surgery director in 1950, and is currently chairman of their medical Board. Between 1927 and 1958 he attained fellowships in the American College of Surgeons, Academy of Medicine, American College of Cardiology, the American Academy of Compensation Medicine and the American Geriatrics Society. From 1931 to 1948 he served as surgeon for Madison Square Gardens. In 1941, Oxford Press published his book, Abdominal Surgery, which is widely used as a textbook in medical schools and by military authorities.

In 1953 Dr. Hammett was appointed by the New York Academy of Medicine to represent that institution on the State Commission on Education of Hospital Personnel. This Commission is still active. He has been active in the affairs of the New York County Medical Society, and at present holds the chairmanship of the Compensation Rating Board for the County.

Dr. Hammett served throughout World War Two in the United States Public Health Service with the rank of Senior Surgeon (Colonel). In 1947 he was awarded the Selective Service Medal for "impartial administration of the selective service system without compensation during the war years." He was elected to the Board of Governors of the Association of Reserve Officers, United States Public Health Service, in 1958.

Dr. Hammett's principal diversion is big-game hunting and conservation. He has hunted in the United States, Alaska, Canada, Mexico, Panama, and Africa. He had his first gun at the age of eight, and his sons, John and Douglas, quite naturally inherited his skills. In fact, it was Douglas' timely rifle accuracy which saved his father who was being attacked by a wounded grizzly bear (about 700 pounds) in the Yukon. He came out of this encounter with scratches, bruises, and wounds, which did nothing, however, to dampen his enthusiasm for this rugged sport.

Dr. Hammett has been a member since 1927 of the Campfire Club of America, an outstanding hunting and conservation organization, which he headed as president for two years, and he is now chairman of its conservation committee. He holds a membership in the Boone and Crockett Club which has the distinction of having been founded by Teddy Roosevelt.

As a graduate of Queen's, Dr. Hammett is one of the most active and enthusiastic supporters of anything that will further the interests of the University. He is a past president of the New York Society, and every year he and his wife entertain the Queen's folk in the New York area at a cocktail party in their home in Manhattan, and at a picnic at their summer home in New Jersey. His wife, the former Lyla M. Buse, a nurse whom he met while he was a student, shares his enthusiasm for hunting, accompanying him on all his trips; and for Queen's, serving as a most gracious hostess at the many affairs sponsored in the name of the University. Official recognition of her role was given in the presentation of a certificate of honorary membership in the Alumni Association at a meeting in New York in 1958 when she was cited as "a charming and gracious lady whose warm-hearted and generous hospitality has long been a happy feature of the activities of the New York Society of Queen's University."

The two Hammett boys, John and Douglas, are both graduates in Arts of Queen's. John is now studying for his Ph.D. in geography at the University of Chicago, and Douglas is in his final year in medicine at the University of Toronto.

When the Alumni Association selected Dr. Hammett as its president the appointment came as a fitting tribute to a man whose energies has been directed for so long to the best interests of the University. Under his capable direction the Association will continue to press forward in its programme on behalf of the alumni body and of the University.

Around the CAMPUS

Nuclear Physics. A one-year course in nuclear engineering is being offered by the University for the first time this year. The programme is designed to make engineers familiar with the basic concepts of nuclear energy and with the special problems that arise in the design of nuclear reactors and in the industrial applications of nuclear radiations. Admission is restricted to graduates in Engineering. The admission regulations are the same as for the M.Sc. programme. A student successfully completing the course is granted a diploma in engineering. Applications received before April 1 will be given first consideration. Commerce Council. Plans to help meet the growing shortage of manpower in the business world are under consideration by the Commerce Advisory Council of Queen's. The industrial development of Canada and the low birthrate of the 1930's have resulted in a demand for executive talent which is one of the most urgent problems of business today. The Commerce Advisory Council at its last meeting in December considered ways in which the work of the School of Business at Queen's might be advanced, especially in attracting large numbers of promising high school graduates, and in the expansion of courses in business administration for graduates in engineering, arts, or in the sciences.

The Council elected W. Leslie McDonald, Toronto chartered accountant, as its chairman for 1960. He will succeed the 1959 chairman, D. M. Allan, director and general manager, Toronto stores of the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. Those attending the meeting included Messrs. McDonald and Allan, R. D. Armstrong, executive vice-president, Chrysler Corporation, Windsor; O. H. Barrett, Montreal, John Macdonald, president, Johnson and Johnson Ltd., Montreal; W. Wallace Muir, management consultant, Ottawa; W. H. Poole, vice-president, Young and Rubicam Ltd., Toronto.

New Telescope. Financed by a grant of $25,000 from the Atkinson Foundation, a reflecting telescope has been installed in the Observatory on the top floor of Ellis Hall. The telescope has a fifteen-inch mirror and is mounted in a yoke, the axis of which is parallel to the earth's axis. A motor drives the telescope and causes it to follow the movement of the stars. The accessories include a three-inch finder telescope, a three-inch astrographic camera for photographing a relatively large area of the sky, and a six-inch catadioptric telescope used for wide-angle visual work. Dr. A. Vibert Douglas, professor of astronomy, and Dr. G. A. Harrower, associate professor of physics, are in charge of the Observatory.

AN EXHIBITION IN JUDO

Judo has attracted a large number of participants at Queen's. This exhibition shot was taken by Frank Maine, Sc. '59, a postgraduate student from Burlington, Ont., and was a prize winner in the annual contest conducted by the Queen's University Camera Club.

C F R C. The Queen's radio station C F R C now has new quarters in Carruthers Hall. C F R C is one of the oldest radio stations in Canada, with the first broadcast a play-by-play description of a rugby game on a transmitter built by Prof. D. M. Jemmett. The new home has a floor area of 2,000 square feet as compared to 800 feet in Fleming Hall which had contained the transmitter and studios since the station was licensed in 1923. The transmitter remains in the old location. The new station includes a control room, two studios, a technician's room, a reception room, a suite of offices and a library containing more than 5,000 records. Under the guidance of Margaret Angus, director of radio broadcasting since 1957, and Prof. Harold Stewart, technical director and builder of much of the equipment formerly in use, students will staff the new quarters, described as the ideal set-up for a small radio station. C F R C is on the air every day during the academic year for a total of approximately fifty hours weekly.

Here and There. Arthur L. Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard, managing director of the Frontenac Broadcasting Company, a director of the Canadian Press, and a director and past president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association, has been appointed as a member of the Board of Trustees of the University. . . . The original manuscript dealing with the discovery of radar in 1935 has been presented to the Douglas Library by Sir Robert Watson-Watt through the good offices of the University Rector, Dr. L. W. Brockington. . . . Dr. Ralph Jeffery, professor of mathematics, received a Doctor of Laws degree from McMaster University in recognition of his scholarship in mathematics and his work in education. . . . Dr. J. M. Blackburn, head of the Department of Psychology at Queen's, has been appointed a member of the board of directors of the newly formed Commonwealth Institute of Social Research. . . . The students gave 800 pints of blood at a special three-day Red Cross clinic.

J. Percy Page

Appointed Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Alberta

Famous as Coach of Edmonton Grads

● A retired educationist, J. Percy Page, B.A. '13, embarks upon a new career, at the age of seventy-two, with his recent appointment as lieutenant-governor of the Province of Alberta.

Mr. Page has had a long and distinguished career as a school teacher, with forty years' experience in the profession, and as a politician; but he is better known as the coach of the famed Edmonton Grads, a girls' basketball team that held the world senior women's title for seventeen consecutive years. In twenty-five years, before the club folded in 1940, it lost only twenty of 522 games and took the official world championship at four Olympic games in 1924, 1928, 1932, and 1936.

Born in Rochester, New York, of Canadian parents, Mr. Page came to Canada in 1890 and was brought up in Bronte, Ontario. He was educated at Hamilton Collegiate Institute, graduating as a gold medalist, and at Queen's, where he took his courses extramurally.

With six years' teaching experience in New Brunswick and St. Thomas he went to Edmonton in 1912 to introduce commercial training. He retired in 1952 after forty years' service for the Edmonton Public School Board. At retirement he was head of the commercial section of Victoria Composite High School.

Mr. Page entered politics in 1940 and was elected to the legislature as an Independent—a coalition party of the Liberals, Conservatives, and others opposed to Social Credit. He was leader of the Independent Opposition in the Legislature from 1944 to 1948.

In 1952 Mr. Page was elected to the Legislature as a Progressive Conservative. He was re-elected in 1955 and lost his seat in the June, 1959, election when Social Credit swept sixty-one of Alberta's sixty-five ridings.

Mr. Page is the author of a text which he wrote for Pitman's Practical Business Training. He was awarded an honorary degree in Commercial Science by the American Institute of Business.

As a basketball coach Mr. Page became an international figure. Robert Collins, writing in Maclean's a few years ago, said: "There has never been another girls' basketball team, or perhaps any amateur team, like the Edmonton Commercial Grads." Between 1915 and 1940 they travelled 125,000 miles through North America and Europe, taking on all comers in exhibition or championship games. In that time they:

Played 522 games and lost only 20.
Ran up consecutive winning streaks of 78 and 147 games.
Entered 11 Western Canada playoffs and won them all.
Entered 13 Canadian finals and won them all.
Played 24 games on three European tours and won every game.
Played nine official games with men's teams and won seven.

Once, against Queen's University, the Grads scored on forty-four of seventy-seven field shots—about a fifty-seven per cent average. Detailed records were kept for only their last 375 games but in that time they scored 18,174 points—nearly eleven thousand more than their opponents and an average of forty-eight per game.

They monopolized the Underwood challenge trophy. The typewriter company offered it in 1923 to encourage girls' basketball, particularly in Canada and the United States. Any champions of a province or state could challenge for it, at first in two-game total-points series and later in three-wins-out-of-five-games series. The Grads won it first and never let it go. They defended it forty-nine times, winning 112 of the 118 games played. In 1940 they were given the silver cup to keep.

The story behind the statistics is even more remarkable; a story of how for twenty-five years John Percy Page, the patient school-teacher coach, molded a succession of unpaid Edmonton school girls into champions; of their fabulous passing, shooting, and last-minute wins; of how the Grads retired for lack of spectators and opponents.

A non-smoker, non-drinker, hard worker and good athlete, John Percy Page made girls' and boys' basketball a physical training project at Edmonton's MacDougall High School, and he took over as coach of the girls' team. The school did not have a gymnasium so the games were played outdoors. Under Mr. Page's tutelage the girls won the high-school and provincial championships. They had so much fun that they in 1915 the graduates decided to continue playing together. For seven years the Grads quietly mopped up local opposition, losing only one provincial title.

No one, not even in Edmonton, paid much attention to the success of the Grads until they won the Dominion championship, in the first East-West final in 1922. From that time on they were national figures and when they won the Underwood Trophy in 1923 their fame became international.

J. PERCY PAGE

The Grads continued to win, always with John Percy Page guiding their destinies. Once in a long while they might lose, but they always came back in a return engagement to trounce their erstwhile victors. They played themselves out of competition, right down to the time of their retirement. They attended the 1936 Olympics in Berlin and took nine straight games from various European opponents. London, Pioneers, took the worst drubbing, 100-2.

By 1940 the R.C.A.F. was using Edmonton's Arena and the Grads disbanded. Six thousand Edmonton fans attended the final game against Chicago Queen Anne Aces. Grads won 62-52.

The Grads retired in 1940 but the legend lived on. In 1950 a Canadian Press poll voted the Grads Canada's best basketball team of the first half century. In 1955 Percy Page was named to the newly established Canadian sports hall of fame.

London Alumni Plan to Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary

The executive of the London branch of the Alumni Association is making special plans for the annual dinner meeting on February 19, to mark the sixtieth anniversary of the group.

The dinner will be held in the Hotel London, with Dr. J. A. Corry, Vice-Principal of Queen's, as the guest speaker. His subject is: "Prospects for Education." There is a reception at 7 p.m., and the guests will sit down to dinner at 7.30.

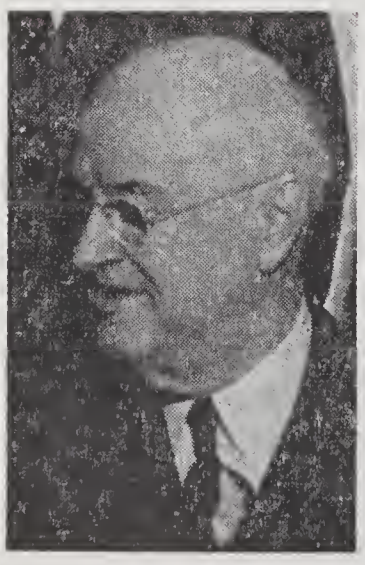

The Alumni Association is only in its thirty-fourth year, but alumni groups had been organized around the turn of the century, and even earlier, and the London, or Western Ontario Association of Queen's Graduates, as it was then called, was one of the first.

In December, 1900, the alumni living in or near Ridgetown conceived the idea of holding a meeting there for the purpose of bringing together the friends of the University in southwestern Ontario. They felt such a meeting would "lead to better acquaintances and more friendly relations among the graduates, would deepen interest in the welfare of the University, and promote the interests of all concerned." A date was set, and notices were sent out, with Rev. Dr. George Monro Grant, Principal, as the guest speaker. The meeting was subsequently called off when the Principal was obliged to cancel the engagement because of the illness of Mrs. Grant.

On March 1, 1901, Principal Grant was scheduled to lecture on "The Outlook for National and Imperial Unity" in St. Thomas, and the graduates decided to take advantage of this opportunity by arranging for a banquet to follow the lecture. At that time there were about one hundred in the area, and thirty turned up, from eleven different centres.

The Queen's Journal, which then carried news of graduate as well as undergraduate activities, commented: "It was a most successful function, lasting till 2 a.m., and as many had to return to their duties by early trains, they lingered about the scene, exchanging reminiscences of auld lang syne for an hour or two longer."

During the business portion of the meeting an executive was elected, with Principal Grant as the honorary president and Rev. D. R. Drummond of St. Thomas as president. Also appointed were: first vice-president, J. H. Smith, principal of the Collegiate Institute at Ridgetown; second vice-president, Miss Aletta Marty, St. Thomas; third vice-president, C. B. Edwards, London; fourth vice-president, J. A. Taylor, principal, High School, Dutton; secretary-treasurer, Richard Lees, St. Thomas; executive committee – Dr. John Odlum, Woodstock, Dr. C. B. Lake, Ridgetown, A. H. D. Ross, principal, High School, Tilsonburg, J. H. Dempster, London, George Malcolm, Stratford.

The second meeting was held in London in December, 1901, when it was decided to undertake a canvass on behalf of the Grant Convocation Hall Fund.

The third annual meeting and banquet was held at St. Thomas on March 6, 1903, with Rev. John Macnaughton, professor of Greek, as the speaker. His remarks were largely concerned, oddly enough, with the need for the establishment of a School of Forestry in connection with the School of Mining at Queen's.

"One feature of the meeting was the prominence of the extramural student and graduate. A majority of those present have done all or part of their work without the walls, and they are by no means the least enthusiastic and loyal of the sons and daughters of Queen's." The Journal also reported that the sum of $940 had been subscribed for the Grant Convocation Hall by members of the Association, including seven subscriptions of $100 each.

The London group has continued to meet down through the years, although its membership is now confined to the City of London and the immediate vicinity. It has proved to be an influential representative of the University in that area. Many good students have been attracted to the University from the London area because of the interest shown by Queen's graduates.

Since the formation of the Alumni Association the presidents of the London branch have been as follows: J. C. Stothers, F. A. Whitton, Prof. A. R. Walker, Dr. H. R. Kingston, Mrs. W. R. Hambly, Dr. G. W. Hofferd, C. A. Heard, C. F. Deeley, O. F. Banks, W. M. Herron, W. R. Alder, H. A. Stewart, M. L. Entwhistle, T. W. Latta, A. L. Furanna, Mrs. H. B. MacMahon, Mrs. O. S. Fells, G. W. TO THE WOMEN OF QUEEN'S

A New Year opens before us. I hope it will be a very happy one for you all. It might be well at this time to consider how best we could use this year to justify our existence as citizens of a great country and as graduates of a distinguished university.

During my term of office I have been amazed at the loyalty of our women graduates. Looking over the records sent to me from the Alumni office, it was thrilling to find graduates from every province in Canada showing their interest in their Alma Mater by renewing their membership. Many lived in isolated places, in the mining areas of Quebec, in the far north of the Western provinces and in the interior of British Columbia, but most lived in Central Ontario and Quebec. I hope, in 1960, even more of our 4,000 potential members will renew their membership and so participate in the great future of Queen's.

Have you visited the University recently? Its development is amazing—and—the new women's residence is wonderful. The Queen's University Alumnae Association is making an opportunity for you to see this New Queen's. The 1960 Annual Meeting of the Q.U.A.A. will be a residential week-end from Friday evening, April 29, to Sunday, May 1, with the Annual Meeting, April 30, in the afternoon, and a dinner that night with Dr. Pauline Jewett, the Marty Scholar of 1949 and now Associate Professor of Political Science at Carleton University, as guest speaker. Accommodation will be in one of the residences—we hope the new one—at a nominal charge of $10.00 for the weekend including meals. Write to members of your year and make a date for Friday evening April 29 in Ban Righ. Reservations may be made through Miss Janet McGinnis, 457 King Street West, Kingston, stating expected time of arrival, and year of graduation. The Kingston Branch is arranging tours of the University and Kingston on Saturday morning and an entertainment in the evening.

If you have not made your contribution to the furnishing of the new residence for women through the Alumni Fund, there is still time before the annual meeting. The generosity of individuals, of Branches, and of the Levana Society has been outstanding—but we have not quite fulfilled our obligation. Many small amounts add up to a goodly sum total, and I know every graduate would like to feel she had taken a part in this beautiful new building. One of the wings is occupied already and is most attractive in the modern manner.

The Q.U.A.A. has been asked to express an opinion on the names for the new residence for women. The Ban Righ Board considers it advisable to have an overall name, Gaelic or otherwise, with the wings or houses bearing the names of those who have rendered great service to the university, such as Mowat, Macphail, Chown, Macgillivray and Fitzgerald. If you would like other names considered, or wish to state a preference of those suggested, would you please send such a statement to the Honorary Secretary, Mrs. F. W. Benn, 4800 Cedar Crescent, Montreal 29, before the end of February.

I hope you will be able to attend the Annual Meeting in April. It will be the forty-eighth one of your Association. Great things have been accomplished by the Women of Queen's in these years that are past. Greater things may present themselves in the future.

Look back and give thanks,
Look forward and take courage.

196?

Since the first large dial telephone systems in Canada were supplied by AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC over 50 years ago, AE has been a leader in every phase of telephone development. To-day, a pushbutton branch exchange switchboard—the most modern of its kind available anywhere—has been developed in Canada for Canadian needs. Tomorrow electronic switching equipment and telephones, now being engineered by AE, will be even more versatile. Our knowledge of Canadian business requirements, not only nationally but locally, coast-to-coast, makes AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC the logical single source of supply for all communications or control equipment.

HOW MUCH LIFE INSURANCE SHOULD YOU OWN?

Most of us have asked this question only to discover there is no ready-made answer because needs and circumstances vary from family to family. The father of three children has greater needs and responsibilities than the young man who has just recently married. Some people have more substantial financial reservers than others. How much Life Insurance should you own to meet YOUR needs? Would it be $15,000?—$25,000?—$50,000 or more?

The Man from Manufacturers is in business to help you arrive at the right answer. Through his Security Graph Service you yourself can determine if you have enough life insurance to do the job you want done. Ask him about this special service today.

ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

New Publication Wins Approval Across Canada

Many Queen's Graduates Listed Among Contributors

by J. Cromwell Young

Just a little over a year ago Encyclopedia Canadiana, in preparation since 1952, appeared in its complete ten-volume form.

Judged purely from the quantitative point of view, it was a massive achievement for Canada, probably the biggest printing assignment ever undertaken in this country – approximately 10,000 individual entries, more than 4300 pages, close to 3,000,000 words and 5000 illustrations, making up a 33-pound set devoted to all aspects of our country, past and present. The printers estimated that something like eight freight-car loads of paper and seventy-five tons of metal type were required to produce the first edition alone.

Judged qualitatively, Canadiana seems to have won approval across Canada, in libraries, universities, schools and homes, as an authoritative work of reference – sound, accurate and scholarly, albeit attractive to the eye and interesting to read. Credit for the reputation it has gained can be shared by its editor-in-chief, John E. Robbins, M.A., Ph.D., LL.D., F.S.S.; his chief editorial adviser, W. Kaye Lamb, M.A., Ph.D., F.R.S.C., Dominion archivist and national librarian; the editorial advisory board consisting of scholars representing all sections of the country; and last, but not least, the 800 Canadian authorities who contributed to the final product. Perhaps "final" is not the word, since the set is under continual revision in the editorial offices at 311 Richmond Road, Ottawa.

In supplying articles of exceptional calibre, Queen's men and women played an important role. Among the hundreds of contributors are a large number of Queen's graduates, members of the Queen's faculty, former members of the faculty and several recipients of honorary degrees from the university.

Before his untimely death, the editors were privileged to secure from Dr. R. C. Wallace, beloved principal of Queen's for so many years, an article on the Arctic Institute of North America, an organization with which he was closely identified as executive director. Another former member of the Queen's faculty, Dr. D. C. Masters, now professor of history at Bishop's University, provided one of the approximately 3,000 biographies in Canadiana – an entry on Jasper Hume Nicolls, the Anglican clergyman who became the first principal of Bishop's College in 1845.

Present faculty members who served as contributors include Professors William Angus, K. Grant Crawford, C. A. Curtis, H. W. Hilborn, J. E. Hodgetts and Malcolm Ross. Dr. Angus, professor of drama, wrote a detailed account of the history of the theatre in this country from the days of Acadia and New France to the present time, discussing amateur theatre, professional theatre, the theatre as a force in education, and Canadian actors and dramatic critics. As an authority on Canadian municipal government and as a former deputy minister of municipal affairs for Ontario, Professor Crawford, now with the political and economic science department, was in an ideal position to write the article on municipal government — county, township, parish, rural, district, and urban. Two of the encyclopedia's most important articles in the field of finance — the history and practice of Canadian banking and a study of Canadian currency — were contributed by Dr. Curtis, professor of political and economic science, who also provided briefer articles on the Bank of Canada and the Foreign Exchange Control Board. Dr. Hilborn, professor of Spanish and Italian, provided a summary of the study and teaching of Spanish in schools and colleges across the country. The major article on broadcasting, covering both radio and television from radio's pioneer days in the early 1900's to the present situation under the new Board of Broadcast Governors, was contributed by Dr. Hodgetts, also a member of the department of political and economic science. Dr. Ross, professor of English, provided biographical material, including a biography of Canada's epic poet, E. J. Pratt.

The longest article in the encyclopedia, English-Language Literature in Canada, was contributed by a distinguished Queen's graduate and one of the country's outstanding editors, Dr. Lorne Pierce, recently retired from his position as chief editor of the Ryerson Press. His 18,000-word essay, covering more than twenty pages in Volume 6, is a masterpiece of vivid condensation, tracing Canadian literary efforts in the English language from the earliest colonial writers to the novelists, poets, dramatists and essayists of our own time.

Many Queen's graduates now hold responsible positions in the federal civil service and are thus in a favourable position to provide authoritative material on many aspects of Canadian life and activity. In this group are Dr. O. E. Ault, formerly director of the Personnel Section of the Civil Service Commission, who wrote the article on the civil service; E. E. Baxter, chief statistician for the Board of Grain Commissioners, who provided the article on rye (the cereal, that is); Leah J. Beehler, formerly a statistician with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, who wrote on the control and sale of alcoholic beverages in the various provinces; D. J. Dewar, formerly the scientific adviser to the Atomic Energy Control Board, who was an obvious choice to write on atomic energy; Robert England, special executive assistant to the Department of Veterans Affairs during the second World War, and in this position responsible for drafting much of the legislation dealing with civil re-establishment of veterans, who wrote on veterans' rehabilitation after the two world wars; T. E. Layng, archivist with the map division of the Public Archives of Canada, who contributed a major article, illustrated with handsome colour reproductions of rare maps, on cartography; Dr. Cecil C. Lingard, eminent editor of the Canada Year Book and author of Territorial Government in Canada, who wrote the main article on the Northwest Territories, as well as separate articles on the districts included in the Territories and on the old Assiniboia and Keewatin districts. Dr. Lingard also prepared the biography of Sir Frederick Haultain, first premier of the Northwest Territories of Canada and chief justice of Saskatchewan from 1912 until 1937.

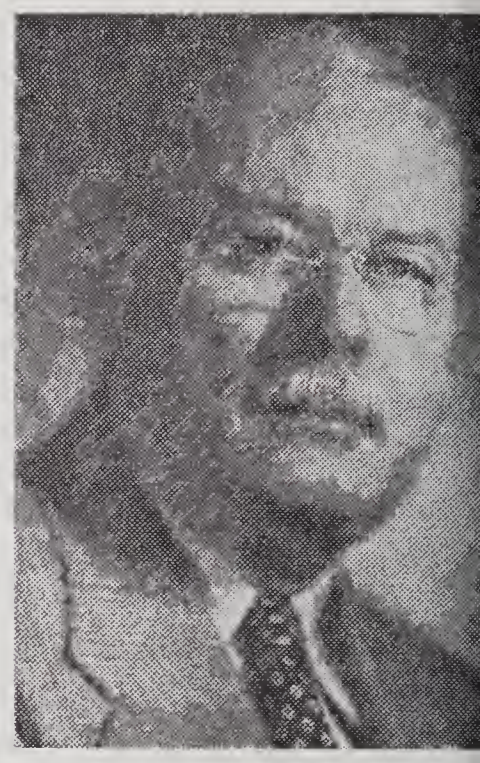

J. Mackay Hitsman, an officer with the Canadian Army's historical section, prepared a series of biographies on outstanding Canadian military figures. Lengthy articles on cement and on the industries of process metallurgy, and briefer items on asphalt and potash, were provided by Harold McLeod, director of the industry and merchandising division of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. N. A. MacRae, chief of the Department of Agriculture's tobacco division, wrote on the tobacco industry, while Arnold Raison, formerly with the occupational health division of the Department of National Health and Welfare, wrote on occupational health. O. G. Stoner, economist with the Department of External Affairs, provided a well-illustrated article on the Colombo Plan, with special emphasis on Canada's contribution. Philip Stuchen, formerly economist with the Department of Trade and Commerce, provided the biography of John Leard Dawson Ives, a leading Canadian trade-union official.

One would expect that the specialized knowledge of Queen's men and women who have gained eminence in the academic field would be tapped by a reference work that attempts to cover Canada both in breadth and in depth. Such has been the case.

Among Queen's graduates now prominent as scholars and educators a number contributed major articles. Several names spring instantly to mind: Dr. A. W. Currie, professor of economics at the University of Toronto; Wilfrid Eggleston, director of the journalism department at Carleton University; Dr. George P. Grant, professor of philosophy at Dalhousie University; Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, president of Acadia University; and Dr. R. O. MacFarlane, director of the School of Public Administration at Carleton.

Dr. Currie, author of The Economics of Canadian Transportation, contributed the encyclopedia's exhaustive article on transportation, dozens of articles on individual railways of the past and present, and the articles on pipelines and express companies. Professor Eggleston, author, journalist and wartime censor, produced definitive articles on English-language journalism, on censorship in Canada and on news associations that operate in this country; he also made several biographical contributions — M. J. Coldwell, L. M. Montgomery, Thomas Raddall, R. J. C. Stead, for example. An interesting article on the development of philosophy in English-speaking and French-speaking Canada was written by Dr. Grant. Two major articles, one on Latin and Greek in Canadian education and the other a critical history of Canadian literature written in languages other than English and French, came from Dr. Kirkconnell. Dr. MacFarlane, a former deputy minister of education for the province of Manitoba, was the author of the encyclopedia's article on that province.

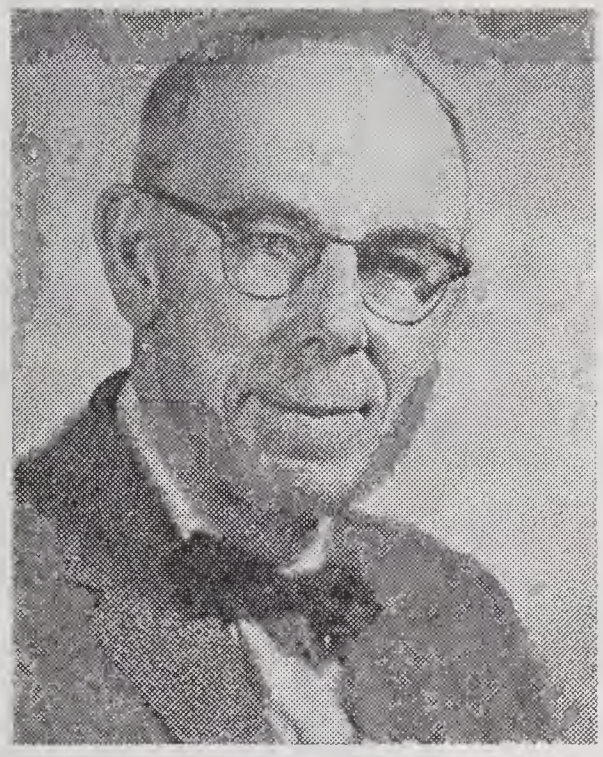

An interesting article on linguistics, which points out that the University of Montreal is the only Canadian university with a linguistics department, was prepared by Dr. Walter S. Avis, professor of English at the Royal Military College, Kingston, and secretary of the Canadian Linquistic Association. The field of accountancy in Canada was handled by J. D. Campbell, professor of accounting at the University of Alberta. George G. Croskery, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teacher's Federation, wrote on the origins and activities of the many teachers' organizations, both national and provincial. The article on the Society of Friends (Quakers) was contributed by Professor A. G. Dorland, formerly head of the department of history at the University of Western Ontario, while J. Alex Edmison, a familiar name to every Queen's graduate, wrote with authority on the John Howard Societies.

Biographies were contributed by Professor W. H. Kesterton, a colleague of Professor Eggleston's in the department of journalism at Carleton, and by Dr. Alec Lucas, professor of English at McGill University. Dr. G. E. Reaman, formerly head of the department of English at the Ontario Agricultural College and author of a number of works, including The Trail of the Black Walnut, used his intimate knowledge of western Ontario in preparing the articles on Waterloo and Wellington counties. (Canadiana carries separate articles on practically every Canadian community with a population of more than 300.) Dr. Reaman also wrote on the Dunkards, a religious group somewhat similar to the Mennonites, and on Canada's Pennsylvania Germans. Dr. Carter B. Storr, Ottawa public school inspector, an author and illustrator widely known for his children's programmes on television, provided articles on the history of canoeing in Canada and on non-theatrical motion-picture distribution in this country.

Queen's graduates in a number of other fields added their expert knowledge to the wealth of material in the ten volumes. Alex Calhoun, for instance, former librarian for the city of Calgary, wrote the major article on Alberta and the individual articles on Alberta communities, the biography of famed farm leader Henry Wise Wood and the entry on stampedes or rodeos. J. K. B. Robertson, proprietor of the Robertson Galleries in Ottawa, was author of the comprehensive article on Canadian art galleries. The United Church of Canada was covered by the late Rev. Dr. Gordon A. Sisco, formerly secretary of the church's General Council. Helen Creighton, nationally-known folklorist, prepared the article on folk dancing, while John A. M. Galilee, general manager and secretary of the Canadian Circulations Audit Board, wrote on advertising. Harry R. Moffat, western writer, provided the article on the city of Nanaimo, B.C.

Six outstanding Canadians who have been awarded honorary degrees by Queen's made distinctive contributions in their particular fields. They are the Rev. Dr. R. S. K. Seeley, formerly provost of Trinity College, University of Toronto; Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president of the University of Toronto; Sir Ernest MacMillan, dean of Canadian musicians; Prof. Frank H. Underhill, curator of Laurier House, Ottawa; Mary Quayle Innis, dean of women at University College, University of Toronto; and Dr. T. J. Meek, a former professor of Oriental languages at University College. Dr. Seeley wrote on the history and activities of the Anglican Church of Canada. Dr. Bissell provided biographies of two Canadian literary figures, E. K. Brown and A. J. M. Smith. Sir Ernest wrote an exceptionally fine seven-page article on music concert performance in Canada. Two of the outstanding biographies in Canadiana, those of Sir Wilfred Laurier and William Lyon Mackenzie King, both of them one-time residents of Laurier House, were appropriately penned by Professor Underhill. The 25-page article on Canada's economic history was written by Mrs. Innis, who, with her late husband, Harold Adams Innis, has made such a tremendous contribution to economic studies in the Dominion. Dr. T. J. Meek was the author of the article on Near Eastern studies in Canadian universities.

Six of these contributors associated with Queen's are themselves the subjects of individual biographies in Canadiana: Robert England, Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, Sir Ernest MacMillan, Dr. Lorne Pierce, Prof. Frank H. Underhill, and Dr. R. C. Wallace.

Encyclopedia Canadiana sought to cover Canada and in doing so found that the knowledge accumulated by the men and women of Queen's was an indispensable asset.

DR. ROBERT OPPENHEIMER

DR. ROBERT OPPENHEIMER IS DUNNING TRUST LECTURER

The Chancellor Dunning Trust Lecturer for 1960 was Robert Oppenheimer, Professor of Physics and Director of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton University, since 1947.

For eighteen years Professor of Physics at the University of California and the California Institute of Technology, he was a student at Harvard, Cambridge and Göttingen.

Between 1943 and 1945 he was director of the laboratory at Los Alamos in New Mexico where the first atomic bombs were made. From 1945 to 1954 he served in many advisory positions the Atomic Energy Commission, the President, and the Departments of State and Defence.

In addition to many publications addressed to his fellow scientists, books of general interest such as Science and the Common Understanding and The Open Mind and the television interview Interview with Oppenheimer have given to many an acquaintance with his sensitive and humane thought.

At Queen's Dr. Oppenheimer delivered three lectures, with Grant Hall filled to capacity and overflowing. The subjects of his addresses were "Knowledge as Science," "Knowledge as Action," and "Knowledge as Culture." The series will be published.

FACULTY WOMEN'S CLUB EXECUTIVE

FACULTY WOMEN'S CLUB

● The Faculty Women's Club of Queen's University becomes of age this year, for it had its beginning just twenty-one years ago. The Club moved into new quarters recently, taking over what was formerly a private residence at 71 Union Street, next door to the old Commerce Building.

The anniversary was marked with a pleasant luncheon in the McLaughlin Room of the Students' Memorial Union, on January 14, with seventy-five in attendance. Mrs. R. C. Wallace, wife of the former principal of Queen's, gave an entertaining address with highlights and anecdotes of club history.

The club had its beginning in a luncheon at the LaSalle Hotel on January 14, 1939, when Mrs. W. E. McNeill, former Dean of Women, entertained 121 women.

Mrs. Wallace recalled the first social event after the luncheon, which was a tea at Fort Henry, convened by Mrs. E. L. Bruce. By the fall of 1939 the Club was working for the Red Cross and for Toc H (a group supplying aid to the Royal Navy in the North Sea).

The Club undertook many money-raising projects, and included such events as fashion shows, a country fair, parties, and the like. By 1949 clubrooms were available at 144 University Avenue. These were opened by Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin. In 1959 the Club moved into new quarters on Union Street.

Among the purposes of the club have been the welcoming of newcomers to the campus, helping entertain when requested by the University administration, for instance, the wives of delegates or visitors; contributing a residence bursary to a woman student at Queen's every year. Notable guests have been entertained: Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Lady Livingstone, Gladys Swarthout, among others.

The Ontario Scholarships

The Department of Education gave for the first time in 1959 Scholarships entitled The Ontario Scholarships and valued at $400 each. These Scholarships were awarded to students who wrote and passed in June, 1959, eight papers of Grade XIII with an overall average of at least 80 per cent. As a result of this very sound move on the part of the Department of Education, a goodly number of potential scholars have come up to the universities this year with special recognition of their abilities and with financial help. Forty-three of the group have registered at Queen's. For the most part they have qualified also for University awards and many of them are holding as much as $1,000 in Scholarship moneys. In most cases the University Scholarships carry payments into the upper years. The complete list is given below.

It is gratifying to note that some of the scholars are second-generation Queen's people and in the case of Miss Mary Fraser, third generation. Miss Fraser is a daughter of Neil C. Fraser, Arts '25, and a granddaughter of the Reverend James R. Fraser, Theology 1895. Miss Marilyn Barber is a daughter of John W. Barber, Arts '39. Miss Carolyn Binks is a daughter of Wyman Binks, Science '40. Mr. Richard Brake is a son of Eric C. Brake, Science '28. Miss Brown is the daughter of W. J. Brown, Arts '34. Miss Dowsett is the daughter of Cora Bell (Hodgins) Dowsett, Arts '58. Mr. Graham Houze is a son of McLean Houze, Medicine '29, Mr. Geoffrey Orr is a son of J. C. Orr, Commerce '35. Miss Nancy Prentice is a daughter of Edwin Prentice, Arts '31, and Miss Margo Richards is a daughter of Florence (Newman) Richards, Arts '28.

Around the CAMPUS

Open House. More than 5,000 visitors were attracted to the campus for the Open House programme put on by the students and staff on February 20. Dramatic and intensely interesting teaching and research projects and experiments were shown in operation, with several hundred students acting as instructors and scientists-in-training.

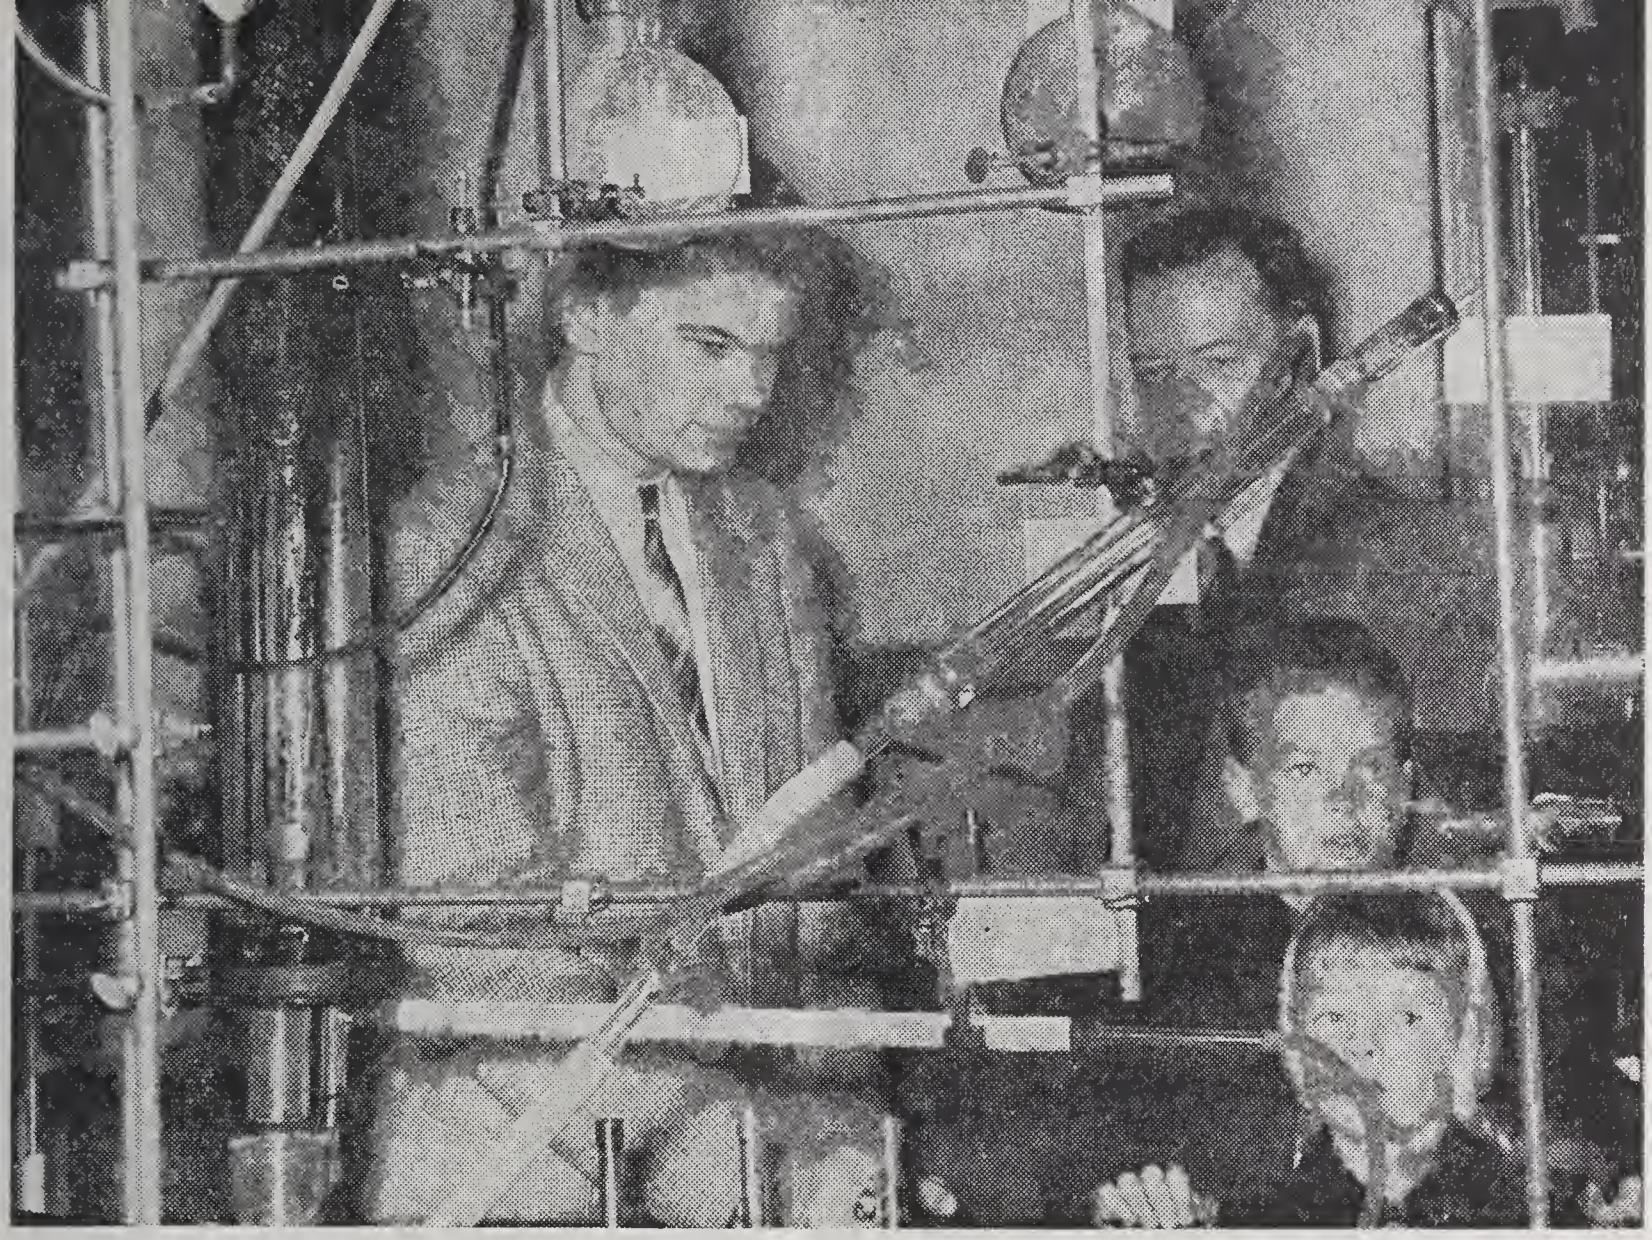

The student committee consisted of Robert Beamish, chairman, Toronto, Graeme Leonard, Marmora, Miss Joan E. Day, St. Catharines, Michael Shea, Foxboro, Mass., John H. Hayden, Ottawa, James Petropoulos, Toronto, William Graham, Parent, Que., and Miss Lynne Johnson, Dryden.

Bridge Research. A research project which may result in the strengthening of thousands of bridges on county and secondary roads in Ontario — and incidentally saving the taxpayers' money — is underway in the Department of Civil Engineering. This research is part of the Ontario joint highway research programme at Queen's, with the University and the Ontario Department of Highways co-operating.

A full-size county bridge has been erected in the structural laboratory in Ellis Hall, and a series of tests is being conducted to determine the strength of the bridge. By making more realistic appraisals of the strength of this and similar bridges and by suggesting ways in which the bridges can be strengthened, thus extending their lives, the researchers hope to save the Department of Highways and ultimately the taxpayers substantial sums of money.

Over-all direction of the project is under Prof. S. D. Lash, head of the Department of Civil Engineering. Conducting the research tests are three post-graduate students headed by Brian Hope, Fleetwood, Lancs., England, and with Pat Moran, Ardee, Ireland, and Terry Joyce, Kingston.

Busy, Busy. The month of February proved to be the most crowded period of the academic year, with events piling on top of events. Highlights of the social programme were the Levana Formal and the Tri-Service Ball. The Revue Guild put on three performances of "Thankhugh," an original musical comedy written by Robert Foster of Niagara Falls, with the best musical score in many a year by Dave Bessant, Sault Ste. Marie. The Glee Club produced "Way Out," an operetta written by Dr. Graham George, resident musician, that was an artistic success. The Queen's Ice Revue, "Stage Daze," featured the Canadian junior pair champions for 1960, Miss Gertrude Desjardins and Maurice Lafrance, strongly supported by student talent under the direction of Miss Sally Rorke of Toronto. The students' brass band held a concert in Grant Hall which was generally conceded to be the best ever attempted by this group. The Drama Guild put on three performances of "A Man Called Judas." Miss Marian Anderson packed Grant Hall for the treat of the year in the University Concert Series. Two sessions of Model Parliament were held, with Hon. Paul Martin as a guest. Under the auspices of the Arts Society a symposium on "Canada's Role in World Affairs—Present and Future" featured Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Mr. Walter L. Gordon, and Mr. Max Freedman.

OPEN HOUSE

Ray F. Mosalyk, Sudbury, fourth-year chemical engineering student at Queen's, is demonstrating the production of powdered or instant coffee, a display in the engineering section of the Open House at the University during February. Weak coffee solution was injected into an atmosphere of hot air which removes the water from the coffee. Watching the demonstration is Prof. W. D. Gilbert, of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, and his son and daughter.

Athletics. Queen's return to senior Intercollegiate hockey proved to be a success with the team holding down second place in the standings most of the season. There was good support from the students and city fans. Coach Keith Flanagan assembled a scrappy squad that proved to be a real crowd-pleaser in all its tilts. . . . Coach Jack Jarvis' proteges won two Intercollegiate boxing championships — Jim Day at 150 pounds, and Mike Woolgar in the heavyweight division. Woolgar is the son of Chuck Woolgar, Sc. '34, who was himself a champion in his day. . . . The men's basketball team managed to win only four of its ten games, but one was a resounding 66-47 victory over Varsity, which had previously handed Assumption Raiders their only loss of the season. . . . The girls' senior badminton team won the Intercollegiate championship with fifteen straight victories against no defeats. Marg Benson, Toronto, and Jessie Wallace, Brantford, retained the singles titles they won last year, and Dorothy McLaughlin, Oshawa, and Heather Beers, Bracebridge, won the doubles title. . . . The men's badminton team did not fare as well, finishing behind Toronto and McGill. . . . Terry Porter, rugged backfielder, was chosen by his teammates as the most valuable player on the 1959 senior football team, and Don Robb, end, was elected Captain of the 1960 squad. . . . Bob Crown, at 130 pounds, was the only Queen's wrestler to win an Intercollegiate championship.

Dr. W. A. Mackintosh Is Speaker At Ottawa Annual Dinner Meeting

"Canadian universities must be prepared to face the challenges of a rapidly changing world," Dr. W. A. Mackintosh told the Ottawa alumni at the annual dinner meeting held at the Eastview Hotel on January 26.

"The universities must maintain standards of intellectual quality and make no concessions," said the Principal. "They must have well-equipped instructors. They must have facilities to accommodate a rapidly increasing student body."

The Principal said that he saw the biggest threats to social stability in the rapid advances of science and technology, and suggested that now, more than ever, "it is the primary function of universities to maintain a link between the past and future. Without this link there would be chaos."

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Florence Dunlop, Arts '24, and was thanked by K. D. MacTavish, Q.C., Arts '20.

Chairman was Dr. Harold A. Quinn, Sc. '41, president of the branch. The convener was R. A. Jenness, Arts '54, assisted by Miss Kathy Walsh, Arts '53. There were approximately two hundred in attendance.

Frank E. Wright Elected Niagara Alumni President

Frank E. Wright, Sc. '53, Welland, was elected president of the Niagara Peninsula Branch for the ensuing year, at the annual meeting held in St. Catharines on January 29. Mr. Wright succeeds R. L. Burns, Arts '52, Niagara Falls.

Also elected were Des Clements, Sc. '51, St. Catharines, as first vice-president, H. L. Harris, Sc. '47, Niagara Falls, as second vice-president, and Al Graham, Sc. '58, Welland, as secretary-treasurer.

Guest speaker was Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain, who gave a most interesting account of campus life at Queen's today. He also spoke with reference to some of the problems facing higher education, in general, and Queen's, in particular.

H. J. Hamilton, alumni secretary, spoke briefly in connection with the Alumni Fund. He congratulated Mr. Burns and his committee for the job they had done in conducting a personal canvass.

Mrs. E. J. Pratt Is Speaker At Toronto Alumnae Meeting

Mrs. E. J. Pratt spoke on "Poetic Drama" at the meeting of the Toronto alumnae held on January 12. Mrs. Pratt took as an illustration the Book of Job, using a different approach from that of the play "J. B." She read passages from the Book, and entranced her listeners with the cadence of her voice and the rhythm of her phrases. The speaker was introduced by the president, Miss Evelina Thompson, Arts '38, and was thanked by Mrs. G. A. Cluett (Muriel Jean Lawrence), Arts '52.

Kingston Alumni Enjoy Skating Party

Members of the Kingston alumni branch and their families enjoyed a skating party held at the Jock Harty Arena on January 24. Approximately one hundred were in attendance.

Anyone with a concession for the sale of liniment would have done a land office business, as some of the more senior alumni called upon muscles that hadn't been put to work in many a year.

A highlight of the programme was a broomball game between teams representing the Alumni and Staff. The Alumni, led by Dr. D. W. Keenleyside, Arts '54, Med. '56, took the measure of the Staff, guided by F. R. "Bud" Ohlke, Arts '49, by a score of 3 to 1. Don Murray, Arts '50, P.H.E. '51, scored twice for the winners, with Bill McGuire obtaining the third counter, while Tabby Gow rapped in the only score for the Staff. The losers were presented with an antique lantern trophy in recognition of their efforts and will retain possession until next year.

Convener of this highly successful affair was Dr. D. W. Keenleysde.

Personalities in the News

A. E. "BUD" O'NEILL, Arts '11, was principal of the Oshawa Collegiate and Vocational Institute for twenty-five years. During that quarter century he made an imprint upon the institution and the community that will last a long time. The "Bulletin" of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation says: "During that time as well he gave leadership to the teaching profession in Ontario that was wise, colourful, and dynamic."

For these things, and for his distinctive qualities of personality, he has been honoured by the Board of Education by the renaming of the school as the O'Neill Collegiate and Vocational Institute. The qualities of his educational leadership which are still in such clear evidence in the school, are now confirmed by the name.

Mr. O'Neill retired ten years ago, but he tells his friends he is so busy that it is a good thing he did not retire earlier or he would be worn out. His main efforts are now devoted to the investment company which he and some friends established thirty years ago to enable teachers to provide the extra resources for a satisfactory retirement and a hedge against inflation. He was also in this company proving something more: that teachers are not merely those who can't do anything else, but they are people who can be successful in the world of affairs, even financial affairs. In the success of his Old Canada Investment Company he has proved his point – especially as far as his own capacity is concerned.

BRIG. W. A. B. ANDERSON, O.B.E., C.D., Arts '37, will take over his new appointment as commandant of Royal Military College at Kingston this summer. A member of one of Canada's most distinguished military families, Brigadier Anderson has been a soldier for twenty-four years. In 1936, senior cadet (B.S.M.) Anderson stood on the same square at R.M.C. where his father and two uncles had paraded before him, to receive the sword of honour as head cadet of the College.

Following R.M.C., Brigadier Anderson obtained his B.A. degree from Queen's, while on leave from the army after being commissioned in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery in 1936. During the war years he commanded the 15th Regiment, R.C.A., and held staff appointments at headquarters, First Canadian Army. In peacetime he has served as a staff officer at R.M.C. and as director of the Canadian Army Staff College. As a Colonel he also held the appointment of director of military intelligence.

On promotion to his present rank he became commander of Western Ontario Area in London. A post-war tour in Germany followed as commander of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade in the NATO force. In recent years he has served as vice-adjutant-general and deputy chief of the general staff, a post he now holds at army headquarters in Ottawa.

LORNE R. CUMMING, Arts '16, chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, recently was appointed as deputy minister of the Department of Municipal Affairs of the Ontario Government. In announcing the appointment Premier Leslie Frost described Mr. Cumming as perhaps Ontario's best-known municipal expert. Chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board for ten years, he has a vast knowledge of municipal affairs.

Resignation of DR. W. J. DUNLOP, Arts '12, as Ontario's Minister of Education and his appointment as a minister without portfolio was recently announced by Premier Leslie Frost. Ill health forced Dr. Dunlop, seventy-eight, to give up the post he had held for eight years.

The Education Department has been one of the Government's heaviest and most important portfolios during the past eight years. In the last four years school grants doubled—totalling about $150,000,000 in 1959. In 1951, the year Dr. Dunlop took office, the grants amounted to $46,000,000.

The retiring minister will serve on the University Co-ordinating Committee

DR. O. E. AULT, Arts '24, Canadian director of Economics and Technical Assistance for the Colombo Plan, has returned to Ottawa after the duties of his office have taken him around the world. He left last fall to attend the Colombo Plan's annual conference in Indonesia and to visit the scene of most of Canada's projects.

Dr. Ault came back impressed with the way donor and recipient nations sit down together to discuss giving and receiving. Canada sends people and goods half-way round the world, not cash. The $50,000,000 the country now spends on the Colombo Plan each year has to be converted into goods and services. The job is infinitely more complicated than sending off a cheque. But it is also, Dr. Ault believes, infinitely more useful.

The meter that measures our standard of living

It measures kilowatt-hours . . . and as the kilowatt-hours grow, it indicates the ever-greater role of electricity in making our lives easier and more enjoyable.

Abundant low-cost electricity probably contributes more to our standard of living than any other factor. It creates opportunity for industry and business . . . it speeds the production of goods . . . it opens the way to hundreds of thousands of better-paying jobs for Canadians.

Kilowatt-hours cost so little—but think of what they can do. In the home, low-cost electricity can bring a world of convenience, comfort and service. Planned lighting brings glare-free new pleasure and charm to every room—at the flick of a finger. In the kitchen and laundry electrical appliances save time and toil. Television and many other products contribute to our leisure and entertainment.

Are you making full use of inexpensive electricity?

LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

To make full use of modern electrical equipment—in home, office or factory—an adequate wiring system is essential. Your local power company, provincial Electric Service League or any qualified electrical contractor will assist you in planning to "Live Better . . . Electrically".

When is a Right a DUTY?

Today everyone enjoys as his birthright, privileges which once were the possession of only a few. But his birthright also includes responsibilities with respect to the privileges he enjoys.

Education is one of the privileges which carry responsibilities. All of us have the responsibility, for example, of helping to ensure that every young person has the opportunity to complete his education, and of seeing that the quality of instruction at our schools and colleges is maintained at a high level.

Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada is offering, for free distribution, a series of booklets on educational matters of importance. These booklets, issued as a public service, discuss problems in which all of us share responsibility. Inquiries about this series should be addressed to: VALUES IN EDUCATION,
SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA,
SUN LIFE BUILDING, MONTREAL.

Versatility . . .

Whenever industry requires equipment or machinery to increase production or efficiency — to save time or cut operating costs — Canadian Vickers is called in.

No matter how complex the problem, Canadian Vickers has the know-how, the plant facilities, the draughtsmen, engineers and craftsmen to design and build the answer.

SIX TO RETIRE

● With a total of one hundred and sixty-three years' service on the staff of Queen's, six professors are retiring this spring: Prof. J. C. Cameron, Dr. H. W. Harkness, Dr. R. L. Jeffery, Prof. D. M. Jemmett, Dr. W. A. Jones, Prof. F. M. Wood.

Prof. J. C. Cameron has been Professor of Industrial Relations for the past twenty-three years, and is widely known throughout Canadian industry for his work in his field. A native of Scotland, Mr. Cameron came to Canada in 1912. Before attending university he worked for fourteen years in industry in the capacity of electrician, foreman, time-keeper and accountant. After his graduation as a Master of Commerce at Queen's, he remained here for a period of four years assisting on a large research project. In 1933 he went to Canada Packers as economist and remained there until 1937. During these four years much of his time was devoted to industrial relations.

In 1937 Mr. Cameron returned to Queen's as head of the newly established Department of Industrial Relations. Since then he has devoted all his time to labour problems. He has acted on a number of occasions as chairman of conciliation boards, as impartial investigator on appeal cases for the National War Labour Board, and as an arbitrator in other labour disputes. During part of 1940 and 1941, Mr. Cameron was given leave of absence by the University and acted as executive assistant in the Dominion Department of Labour.

Prof. R. L. Jeffery has been the N. F. Dupuis Professor of Mathematics and head of the Department of Mathematics for the past seventeen years. A Maritimer, Dr. Jeffery was born in Overton, Nova Scotia, and graduated from Yarmouth Academy in 1914. After a year at the provincial normal school, he was principal of the Port Maitland High School 1915-16 and at Middleton 1916-17. For the next four years he was vice-principal of Horton Academy and a student at Acadia, graduating with a B.A. For nearly twenty years, from 1924 to 1943, Dr. Jeffery was professor of mathematics at Acadia University.

F. M. WOOD

Dr. Jeffery has published many mathematical papers and monographs. In recognition of his work he was made visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin in 1935-36, and visiting professor at the University of Saskatchewan 1938-39. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada in 1937.

Dr. Jeffery is chairman of the Board of Graduate Studies at Queen's, and has held several important posts with the Royal Society, including the chairmanship of Section Three. He was the founder and is a director of the Summer Research Institute of the Canadian Mathematical Congress, one of the top organizations of its kind in the world.

Prof. D. M. Jemmett has been associated with Queen's as a student and teacher for forty-seven years, forty of which were spent as head of the Department of Electrical Engineering. His extracurricular contributions to the University have been many. He established Queen's radio station CFRC in 1922, the first university station in Canada. He has served as Convocation marshal for many years. He has been a member of the Athletic Board of Control for thirty-seven years and its chairman from 1940 to 1959. He is a former commanding officer of the Queen's Officers' Training Corps. He was awarded the Montreal Alumni Medal in 1946 for distinguished service to the University.

Professor Jemmett saw service in both world wars. He holds the Distinguished Conduct Medal of World War One, in which he was wounded three times. For a time in World War Two he was liaison officer between all Canadian universities and the Royal Canadian Air Force. He was placed on the retired list with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

As a sportsman, particularly in yachting circles of the St. Lawrence basin, he is noted as a master of racing tactics and strategy. Twice commodore of the Kingston Yacht Club, his leadership has had much to do with making this one of the top clubs in Canada for many years. He has taken part in 1500 sailing races and won more than 700, many of them in open competition against the best yachtsmen in the country.

Dr. W. A. Jones, who has combined his position as professor of radiology with his work as chief of the Radiological Service at the Kingston General Hospital and private practice, has been on the University staff for forty-one years. Although he is retiring from the University, he is continuing his professional practice.

A native of Ailsa Craig, Ont., Dr. Jones is a graduate in medicine of the University of Western Ontario. He served in World War One with the rank of Captain from 1915 to 1919, in Canada and overseas. In World War Two he served with the rank of Colonel from 1939 to 1946 in Canada, the North Atlantic Area, England, and northwest Europe. He has received the O.B.E., V.D., C.D., and he is Commander of the Order of St. John. He is a past president of the Ontario Medical Association and a past president of the Canadian Association of Radiologists.

Dr. Jones has conducted clinical and radiological resarch on Cheubism, and has contributed many articles on this and other subjects to scientific journals in Canada, United States, and Great Britain.

Dr. H. W. Harkness has been a member of the Department of Physics for twenty-two years, and while he is retiring from full-time work, he will likely continue to carry on limited teaching. A graduate of Queen's with a B.Sc. degree in mechanical engineering and a B.A., he also studied at Chicago University, University of Toronto, and McGill, from which he obtained his M.Sc. and Ph.D.

For ten years, from 1917 to 1927, Dr. Harkness was professor of Physics at Cheeloo University, Shantung, North China, and he was associate professor of physics at Acadia University. From 1927 to 1929 he was a research assistant at McGill, and associate professor of physics at Acadia University 1930-36. He also taught at Memorial University, St. John's, Nfld., and the University of New Brunswick, before coming to Queen's in 1938.

Dr. Harkness has conducted a number of research projects and has contributed many articles to scientific journals. He is the author of A Laboratory Guide for Middle School Teachers of Physics.

Prof. F. M. Wood joined the Queen's staff in 1946, and has been in charge of mathematics for the Faculty of Applied Science since that date. He, too, it is expected, will carry on limited teaching.

A graduate of Queen's with a M.A. in mathematics and a B.Sc. in civil engineering Mr. Wood is a veteran of World War One, having served with the 46th Queen's Battery, C.F.A., as a sergeant 1916-17, and with the R.F.C. and R.A.F. as a Flight Lieutenant (Pilot) 1917-19. After the war he was a lecturer in mathematics at Queen's for two sessions, and then went to the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District as resident engineer. In 1923 he was appointed engineer in the Hydraulic Department of the Dominion Engineering Works. In 1925 he joined the staff of the Mathematics and Civil Engineering Departments at McGill University and he remained there until his appointment at Queen's in 1946.

In his research Professor Wood is particularly interested in hydraulics and the study of water hammer, and the reduction of water hammer and pressure surges in pipe lines. Many of his articles have appeared in the Transactions of the Engineering Institute of Canada and of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

With the departure of these six, the University loses the services of highly respected teachers, men who have served the administration and the student body faithfully and well over a long period of time. To them will go the best wishes of the graduates, many whom will have personal reasons for appreciation.

Of Annual Giving

● During 1959, $142,754 was contributed to the Alumni Fund by 6,094 graduates, as compared with $135,417 the preceding year.

By faculties, the contributions were as follows: Arts and Science, $61,620, from 3,041 alumni; Applied Science, $53,070, 2,335; Medicine, $28,064, 718. There were 732 new donors, contributing $8,551, and 502 increased the size of their contributions. There were 874 contributors to the Fund in 1958 who did not contribute in 1959. Those who did participate in the programme of annual giving represented 37.6 per cent of the total number of graduates solicited.

The average contribution was $23.42. Contributions, by size, were:

1706 gave $10.00, or less
2608 gave $10.01 to $25.00
1036 gave $25.01 to $50.00
407 gave $50.01 to $100.00
249 gave $100.01 to $200.00
63 gave $200.01 to $500.00
14 gave $500.01 to $1000.00
11 gave over $1000.00

By classes, Science '22 gave the greatest amount, $4,820, from thirty-six members, followed by the Class of Arts '12, with $3,261 from twenty-one donors. Fifty-one classes contributed $1,000 or more. Class agents were not used, except on a voluntary basis.

Four appeals had been mailed out during 1959. The first had brought in $37,981; the second $21,851; third, $30,537; fourth, $38,293; and $13,992 came in which could not be credited to a mailed appeal or a canvass.

In addition to the $142,754 contributed to the Alumni Fund, an additional $185,845 was given to the University by alumni; alumni organizations, $1,669; Medical Centenary, $5,552; other projects, $4,685; National Fund, $42,619; scholarships, prizes, and bursaries, $16,674; bequests, $114,615.

The Principal's Advisory Committee on the Alumni Fund has set a number of objectives for the current year. In addition to the men's and women's residences, the alumni will be given a chance to allocate their contributions to general endowment, to the Marty Memorial Scholarship Fund, and to bolstering the University's national scholarship programme. If these do not appeal to the graduates they are quite free to earmark their contributions to any other University project.

The annual report of the American Alumni Council, comparing Alumni Fund returns for the previous year, shows that Queen's has placed well in comparison with other Canadian universities. Queen's was in third place in the number of Alumni Fund donors, fourth in effectiveness of solicitation, second in amount contributed, second in the size of the average gift, second in total gifts to the Alumni Fund, and first in total alumni giving to the University.

By classes the alumni contributors and the amount of their contributions to the Alumni Fund during 1959 were as follows:

M. B. A. COURSE

School of Commerce and Business Administration Becomes School of Business

To Offer Full Two-Year Graduate Course For M.B.A. Degree

by L. G. Macpherson

Two important steps concerning the School of Commerce and Business Administration were taken by the Board of Trustees at its February meeting. Principal Mackintosh has announced that the Board approved the recommendation of the Senate and of the School that a full two-year graduate course for the degree of Master of Business Administration should be established forthwith. The course will be launched in September, 1960, beginning with the first year's work of six courses. The work of the second year will get under way in September, 1961, and our first M.B.A. graduates will be laureated at the spring convocation in 1962.

With this expansion, the work of the School will embrace five distinct programmes: the undergraduate B.Com. course, the M.B.A. course, the professional courses for chartered accountants, bankers, and trust officers, the executive programme of special courses, conferences and seminars for business men, and the programme of business research.

The Board of Trustees also agreed to the recommendation that the School should now become the School of Business, a name which by its simplicity and breadth of meaning embraces all five of the programmes mentioned above, while avoiding the limitations often associated in the past with the word "commerce." Like a young bride, we shall treasure our sentiment for the old name while we honour the new title which marks an important point of progress toward desired goals.

Planning for the M.B.A. course has proceeded for the past three years, a period that coincided fortunately with intensive study of the curricula and standards of business schools by the Carnegie Corporation and the Ford Foundation, and with serious reconsideration by many schools of their own curricula and objectives. The reports issued as a result of the studies by foundations and universities have been helpful in defining the problems involved and in proposing solutions to those problems. Our planning has benefitted also from visits by staff members to several Canadian and American universities, and the offices of the Ford Foundation, for discussions of M.B.A. programmes. We are convinced that the launching of a new master's degree programme at this time offers a great opportunity to design a course that will provide intensive preparation in the fields of knowledge and skill in the practice of administration in modern business.

The two-year course will be offered to mature men who have a university degree in arts, science, or engineering, and who can show satisfactory evidence of capacity for the responsibilities of business administration in their undergraduate records and in extracurricular activities, career experience, or the Admission Test for Graduate Study in Business.

The fields of production, marketing, finance and personnel administration have long been recognized in professional business schools as subjects with which the student must gain some familiarity and perhaps, in at least one of these fields, seek a measure of specialization. These remain as essential subjects, but business schools worthy of a proper place in the university community recognize the importance of a knowledge and understanding of the environment—economic, political, social and legal—within which business operates, and of the analytical techniques available to aid in solving administrative problems. They recognize, too, that administration itself has become a field of study at both theoretical and practical levels. The business student must acquire knowledge if he is to be wise, but it is at least equally important that he should acquire a mind that is trained in analysis and discernment and in the processes of learning, so that he may have a life-long ability to learn from experience.

This, of course, is a big order, and it must be put in the category of a great objective which will be attained only to a degree in any individual school. It is, however, an objective worth striving for by staff and students, in effort, in curriculum design, and in the teaching and learning activities.

The curriculum planned for our M.B.A. Course follows the views suggested above. An outline will show its general pattern:

First Year

Business Economics
Introduction to Administration and Human Relations (half course)
The Legal Environment of Business (half course)
Quantitative Analysis
Production Management (half course)
Labour Relations (half course)
Marketing Organization and Policy
Accounting and Finance

L. G. MACPHERSON

Second Year

Administrative Theory and Practice
Business Policy
One or more advanced courses in
- Financial Management
- Production Management
- Personnel Administration
- Marketing Management

Additional electives to make a weight of six full courses, from:
- Research Methods and Reports (half course)
- Research Problem and Thesis (1 or 2 full courses)
- Business Organization and Public Policy (half course)
- Business Taxation (half course)
- Investments
- Labour Problems
- Managerial Accounting
- Suitable graduate courses in the social sciences and mathematics, as available.

Perhaps a word should be said about methods. No single classroom technique is suited to all courses, to all subject matter, or even to all teachers. In its Commerce Course, Queen's has always used a combination of lectures, seminars, case discussions and research, and of course essay and problem assignments.

CASE-STUDY

Prof. L. G. Macpherson, Director of the School of Commerce and Business Administration, or, as it is now called, the School of Business, is shown addressing an executive group in one of the case-study rooms of Dunning Hall. Swivel chairs contribute to spontaneous debate.

In the M.B.A. course, a somewhat similar balance will exist, although the case method will play a larger part than it does in undergraduate work, for the reason that it is more suitable to the nature of the material and to the needs of the students at the graduate and senior undergraduate levels than at the junior stages.

The master's degree in business will be granted to candidates who complete the work of the two years with an average of 66 per cent. Students who attain an average of 66 per cent on the work of the first year but who are not in a position to complete the work of the second year will be given a Diploma in Business Administration.

When the full two-year programme is in operation, which will be the case in 1961, honours graduates in Commerce and Business Administration will be eligible to enter a one-year course leading to the M.B.A. degree.

Staff arrangements for the first year's work, beginning on September 20, 1960, are assured. We are fortunate in having a strong faculty available for the School of Business, and the enthusiasm and co-operation of the faculty has greatly eased the problems of reassignment of teaching duties and other academic responsibilities. Most members of the faculty will teach undergraduate courses as well as graduate courses, an arrangement which should be stimulating and strengthening in both the B.Com. and the M.B.A. programmes.

The physical facilities of the School will be described in an article by Professor B. J. B. Galvin in the April issue of the Review. Buildings are not the prime determinant of quality in a university, but the log with student and teacher at opposite ends is no longer suited to the demands of education, and indeed never was an adequate device for learning much more than how to roll off a log. Quite clearly, without a building like Dunning Hall the School could not have attempted to meet the new challenges in business education. The new building has already demonstrated the advantages to be gained from well-designed quarters for lectures, discussions, study and research. By providing for its construction, the University and its benefactors have removed what was indeed a serious obstacle in the way of the School's progress.

EXECUTIVE PROGRAMME

Four Conferences Planned for 1960

Programme Has Grown In Size, Scope and Variety

by F. D. Barrett

The Queen's Executive Programme for 1960 comprises a total of four conferences or courses varying in length from three days to twenty-two weeks. Their purpose is to provide a form of advanced education for managers and executives who are moving ahead in their careers and who feel a need for a deepening and broadening of their knowledge, understanding and professional skills. During the last four years, the programme has grown rapidly in size, scope and variety as the demand from the business community for this type of education and training has increased. During 1960, approximately two hundred and twenty executives are expected to take part in the programme.

The growth of our Executive Programme has been part of a similar pattern everywhere, a trend due to the increased complexities of administrative work, to a new sense of professionalism in management and to a quickly developing body of new knowledge about business management. For Queen's, as for many other universities, the emergence and growth of Executive Programmes has added a large new function to the traditional activities of the School of Business as it is soon to be called. The Executive Programme adds a vital link to the School's connection with the business community.

The present Executive Programme had its origin during the period from 1950 to 1957 when a two-year evening course for businessmen was held successively in Kingston, Belleville and Cornwall under the direction of Professor R. G. H. Smails. Throughout its seven-year history this two-year evening course was restricted to fifty members and proved a great success.

The courses and conferences making up the 1960 programme are: the Winter Programme for Executives, the Income Tax Seminar, Perspective for Management, and the Executive Summer School. Two of the 1960 conferences have been held before, the Income Tax Seminar which is now in its third year and Perspective for Management which is now in its fourth year. In 1956 a special one-week conference was held for senior executives and in 1958, a conference on "Financing Capital Requirements" was held.

The Winter Programme for Executives and the Executive Summer School are new additions this year. The Winter Programme for Executives was organized for the Kingston region. It will not be an annual affair since the local and regional need is not sufficiently large. However, since the Executive Summer School will serve an unlimited geographical area it is intended as an annual event.

To give the reader a more concrete picture of the Executive Programme at this point it may be worth while to describe one of the conferences in more detail. "Perspective for Management" will serve this purpose well, particularly since it is now in its fourth year and quite firmly established. Each year the subject of Perspective for Management has been different, although each year it has, as its name suggested, been directed toward providing the participants with a viewpoint and a perspective on some important aspect of business.

Perspective 1960 is an attempt to probe and explore the fundamentals which underlie all successful executive work: the basic aptitudes, functions and skills which constitute the essence of management and managing. The conference will provide guidelines and directions which the registrants can follow in developing their own executive skills to higher degree when they return to their companies and move further in their professional careers. It will take place during May 30 to June 3, inclusive.

The five days of the conference will be divided into half-day and one day units. Each unit will deal with a specific aspect of management work. These aspects are: Managers and Management, the Development of Management Ability, the Decision-Making Process, Management Planning and Forecasting, the Design of Organization, Delegating and Directing, Co-ordinating and Controlling. The final session will deal with the avoidance of the many pressures and tensions which may arise in the course of doing executive work.

The speakers in some of the 1960 executive courses come entirely from Queen's, in others they come almost entirely from outside. The instructors in the Winter Programme for Executives, which will be described later, consist entirely of Queen's faculty members. In Perspective for Management, only one of the speakers, Dean A. R. C. Duncan, head of the Department of Philosophy and Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science is from Queen's. The remaining eight members of the Perspective faculty come from business or from other universities and from the United States as well as Canada.

The businessmen who will lecture are Dr. Donald C. Bews, medical director of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada; R. T. Forrest, director of management development in Trans-Canada Airlines; Ralph Presgrave, consulting partner with Woods, Gordon and Company and vice-president of York Knitting Mills (now a full-time special lecturer at the University of Toronto); J. Herbert Smith, president of the Canadian General Electric Company and Alexander Winn, manager of management training and research, the Aluminum Company of Canada. The American speakers will be Professor Irwin Schell of M.I.T.; Professor Leonard Sayles, of Columbia University; and Bernard J. Muller-Thym, a management consultant from New York City who is also a visiting lecturer at M.I.T.

During Perspective for Management, the Income Tax Seminar and the Executive Summer School, the registrants and faculty will live in Morris House, one of the men's residences. Accommodation in a Queen's residence is desirable because it groups the men together in their off-hours in surroundings where they find it easy to engage in lively discussions. Almost as much is accomplished in these informal, social exchanges of ideas and experiences as in the formal sessions themselves. For busy professional managers and executives a few days or a few weeks in residence with their fellows, away from the desk and the telephone, is a rare opportunity for an interlude in their normal lives during which they have a chance to pause, think and discuss sharing a common residence life. The groups will also take their meals together in the dining room of Leonard Hall, the newest men's residence which is directly on the way to Dunning Hall, the new home of the School of Business where the lectures and conferences take place.

LIBRARY

A section of the library and reading room in Dunning Hall.

The men attending Perspective and the other conferences come from a wide variety of industries. Except for the Income Tax Seminar which is addressed specifically to executives who have responsibilities in the income tax fields, they hold many different types of positions. For example, they may be general managers, executive assistants, research directors, production managers, sales managers, secretary-treasurers, or controllers.

The most important thing they share in common is that they hold positions of very substantial responsibility at the senior or higher middle levels of management in their organization. In age they run from the early thirties to the late fifties although they average in the main somewhere around the early forties or late thirties. Some are university graduates and some are not; but all are men of keen mental ability and of superior capacities for achievement. In almost all cases they are in attendance under the auspices of their organizations because of their past accomplishments and have been selected for attendance and their capacity for growth and advancement.

Although the courses and conferences making up the Executive Programme are designed for business managers, it is interesting that a proportion of the registrants are usually executives from non-business organizations. In the Winter Programme for Executives, the registrants include an army colonel, the superintendent of an Indian reservation, the manager of Men's Residences at Queen's and the manager of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. This fact is eloquent testimony to the fact that the profession of management is extremely similar in all organizations. A course designed for business managers becomes automatically and to a large degree a course designed for managers of all types.

The Winter Programme for Executives is different from the other three courses and conferences in two respects. It is not residential and it extends over the relatively long period of twenty-two weeks. Four subjects are covered: Administrative Action, Marketing Management, Financial Management and the Canadian Economy. It consists of weekly, evening meetings three hours in length. Each subject is handled by a different Queen's professor, namely, L. G. Macpherson, J. J. Deutsch, R. J. Hand and F. D. Barrett. Fifty-five men are enrolled, about half of whom are from the three large corporations in Kingston and half from smaller and medium-sized enterprises. A large number of the men come in weekly from the surrounding towns of Belleville, Brockville, Perth, Corbyville, Deseronto and Gananoque.

The Income Tax Seminar differs from the other three parts of the Executive Programme mainly in the special nature of its subject matter and its registration. It lasts three days and is attended by some sixty to seventy financial executives. The lecturers and speakers in the income tax seminar consist of distinguished authorities in the corporate income tax field and is organized under the chairmanship of Professor Leonard of Queen's. The 1960 session of the Income Tax Seminar will be the third since its inauguration in 1956, a fact which is indicative of the position it has come to hold in the business community. It will be held on May 25, 26 and 27.

The speakers in the 1960 Income Tax Seminar will include Professors E. J. Benson and W. G. Leonard of Queen's and Professor Marcel Belanger of Laval University. Speakers from chartered accounting firms in London, Montreal and Toronto will consist of H. E. Gate, L. F. Heyding, S. W. Lemon, Howard I. Ross, and Lancelot J. Smith. The remaining speakers will be J. Gear McEntyre, Deputy Minister for Taxation; J. Harvey Perry, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation and John L. Graham, a Toronto barrister.

The subjects in the Income Tax Seminar will cover a wide range of technical and general issues such as for example "Problems Areas in the Interpretation and Application of Tax Regulations" on the one hand and "The Effect of Taxation on Business Decisions" on the other.

The Executive Summer School is the most recent innovation and will take place during July 10 to July 30, a three weeks period. It is somewhat similar to the Winter Programme for Executives in that its purpose is to provide a more extensive and intensive form of training covering certain of the core or central subjects in business management. But it differs in that it will be residential and will cover considerably more ground because of the greater total time for lectures and other work. In 1961, plans are for it to be extended to four weeks instead of three. It is expected that registrants will come from several Canadian provinces in addition to Ontario.

The subjects which will be covered in the Executive Summer School will be: Human Relations, Administration, Managerial Accounting, Financial Planning and Control, Marketing and Sales Management and Production Management. The faculty will consist of John Thompson, Vice-President of Howard Smith Paper Mills, Professor John Sarjeant and Professor John Sawatsky of the University of Toronto, Professor D. Monieson of the Wharton School of Business and Finance in Philadelphia and Professors E. J. Benson R. J. Hand, and F. D. Barrett of Queen's.

The Executive Summer School is a major new undertaking in the residential Executive field. Its length permits a greater approximation to be made to normal university training and methods. It resembles an abbreviated Master in Business Administration programme. It selects several of the basic courses from such a programme and handles them in much the same way except that provisions are made for the great business maturity and experience of the registrants. It is also characterized by an intensity and pace which is made necessary by the relative limitation of time.

Executive programmes are a new part of the post-war educational and business world. They bring a new type of mature student into the university community. They enlarge the scope and function of the modern School of Business and provide a sturdy bridge between the university and the world of affairs.

What has TIME done to Your LIFE INSURANCE?

Everyone knows what can happen to the performance of a car that isn't serviced regularly. The same risk of "poor performance" holds true for your life insurance if you neglect to keep it up to date. Time brings changes in your life that in turn create the need for a review of your policies. Perhaps new beneficiaries should be appointed. Perhaps the method by which benefits are to be paid, either by income or by single amount, is no longer in your family's best interest. What would a careful review of your policies reveal? That you have more than enough life insurance—or that time has brought new needs for protection and saving?

By keeping in touch with the Man from Manufacturers you can be sure your life insurance is arranged to do the job you want it to do. Why not call him for a policy "check-up" today?

Personalities In The News

"When LORNE PIERCE [B.A. '12, LL.D. '28] retired as editor of The Ryerson Press in January of this year, Canada lost her best-known book editor, and Canadian writers who publish through Ryerson lost a helpful and generous friend. Historically, Ryerson is the mother publishing house in Canada; and, over the past forty years, it is not too much to say that Lorne Pierce has been Ryerson.

"The claim might even be made that Lorne Pierce 'made' Ryerson. Certainly there is little resemblance between the Methodist press that he inherited and the secular and religious publishing house that Ryerson is today.

"It was a fortunate day for Canada as well as for Ryerson when Lorne Pierce assumed the editorial chair; for this House that has probably done more for Canadian letters than any other was at a cross-roads in its history when he took over.

"Today, when other publishers are coming more to the fore in publishing things Canadian, it should not be forgotten that it was Ryerson who pioneered much of Canada's literary soil; and, without Lorne Pierce, it is a question as to how much of this pioneering in Canadiana would have been possible."

DR. JOSEPH ALBAN QUIGLEY, Med. '37, has been elected president of the American Academy of Occupational Medicine. Dr. Quigley is the son of Dr. Joseph P. Quigley, Arts '03, Med. '07, one of the senior practising physicians in Kingston, Ontario.

After serving his internship in the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston, Dr. Quigley received further training as an intern and resident in New York City for a period of three years. He joined the medical staff of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co., Wilmington, Delaware, in 1941.

After assignments in Indiana, Alabama, and West Virginia, he was transferred in 1943 to the Manhattan Project, metallurgical laboratory, at the University of Chicago, for special study in nuclear medicine. The Manhattan Project at that time was engaged in research in controlled nuclear fission and had just begun operation of the first nuclear pile at Stagg Field.

Later that year, Dr. Quigley was sent to the Hanford plant in Richland, Washington, which produced fissionable material for the atomic bomb used at Nagasaki. He remained there until 1946, when he was transferred to the Du Pont plant at Penns Grove, N.J.

In March, 1950, he joined the staff of the New York Operations Office of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission as medical adviser. In this position he was responsible for the medical programme at a number of plants doing work with radioactive material for the Commission. The operations carried out in many of these plants were consolidated at a new plant built by the Commission at Fernald, near Cincinnati, Ohio. Late in 1951 he was named director of health and safety at this plant by the National Lead Company of Ohio, contract operator for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

ARNOLD MIDGLEY, Sc. '57, who won many Intercollegiate championships in skiing while a student, has continued his winning ways and this year raced away with two Canadian titles. In the meet held at Camp Fortune, near Ottawa, Ont., he led the field for the slalom championship and placed third in the giant slalom to win the Canadian Alpine combined crown.

Arnold skied in international competition in Europe last year, hopping over from England where he was on a postgraduate scholarship, and his record was good enough to warrant a position on the national team. He trained for the Olympics, but had difficulty in getting started because of other commitments but he came on with a rush and made a good showing on the U.S. racing circuit. But the team for Squaw Valley had been picked and he wound up as a spare.

Edward MacCabe, in the "Ottawa Journal," commented: "He has passed the hump between the garden variety racer and the international campaigner. He's a first-class competitor, and he loves to race."

DWIGHT S. "Buff" SIMMONS, Sc. '32, of Toronto, Ont., has been elected president of the 18,500-member Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario.

Mr. Simmons is general manager of Manufacturing of Imperial Oil Limited. He has been with that Company since his graduation in mechanical engineering from Queen's in 1932.

During World War Two, he was on loan to the federal government's Polymer project at Sarnia and collaborated in the design and operation of that plant which played a world-renowned role in the wartime manufacture of synthetic rubber.

Active in engineering education for many years, Mr. Simmons spent seven years on the Engineering Advisory Committee of Queen's University and served as chairman in 1956.

His activities with the A.P.E.O. have included five years as a member of Council, the last two, a member of the Executive Committee. During 1957-58 he served on the Engineering Technicians certification Board.

Konrad Schaum, Arts '53, is assistant professor of German at Princeton University, Princeton, N.J.

J. W. Smail, Com. '49, Sc. '55, is with the Bell Telephone Company at Ottawa, Ont. He is living at 45 Belgrave Road.

Anne Sokol, DPHN '58, is on the staff of the General Hospital, Kingston, Ont.

Harry Soloninka, Sc. '51, is manager of Haddin Davis and Brown (Sask.) Ltd. He resides at 2839 McCallum Ave., Regina, Sask.

D. E. Staveley, Sc. '59, is on the staff of Proctor and Gamble Ltd., Hamilton, Ont.

Walter Vaughan, Sc. '56, is doing post-graduate work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. George Weber, Arts '50, Med. '52, who has been head of the department of pathological chemistry, Montreal Cancer Institute, has been named director of the new cancer research unit at the University of Indiana's Riley Hospital and associate professor at the University's Department of Biology and Microbiology at Bloomington, Ind. Dr. Weber was a member of the Montreal Cancer Institute for six years.

Dr. D. E. Zarfas, Med. '52, and Mrs. Zarfas, Med. '52, are on the staff of the Children's Psychiatric Institute, London, Ont.

"DOWN TO QUEEN'S"

Included in the list of second-generation students published in the February issue of the "Review" should have been the name of Helen Marilyn Bateman, Arts, daughter of Dr. J. H. Bateman, Med. '35, and Mrs. Bateman (Helen Leslie), Arts '35, of Belleville, Ont.

Also, Brenda Anne Bradley, Arts, daughter of B. L. Bradley, Arts '38, and Mrs. Bradley (May Belle Koen), Arts '30.

The family tree for John David MacDonald, Arts '61, son of John Clark MacDonald, Com. '32, Arnprior, Ont., and grandson of Rev. J. M. MacDonald, Arts '03, Theol. '14, Weston, Ont., should have included one more name, that of Mrs. J. M. MacDonald (Grace Clark), Arts '04, his grandmother.

"That's why you should study maths, son"

A close look at Canada today will quickly convince any young man that mathematics will play an important part in his future. Everywhere about him he will see the handiwork of the professional engineer whose training, based on mathematics, is contributing so much to this country's vast expansion. For wherever big things are going on, there you will find the engineer . . . whose vision and initiative make him a key man in Canada's progress.

In the coming years, Canada's continuing development will offer the challenge and reward of engineering careers to thousands of young Canadians. For them there will be the satisfaction of participating in an important and skilful profession and the deeper satisfaction of contributing to the strength and prosperity of our nation.

For over 65 years, Canadian General Electric has engineered and manufactured much of the electrical equipment that has played such a vital role in making this country one of the most highly electrified in the world.

What does it mean to be rated?

Not long ago men and women with coronary artery disease, tuberculosis or diabetes were unable to obtain life insurance. Today it is possible for many of these people to be accepted in a special premium classification. Technically speaking they are said to be "rated" policyholders. For many years Manufacturers Life has contributed leadership in this special field. Today we are well known for our progressive outlook and for the favourable premium rates being offered.

Actually 90% of the people applying for Manufacturers Life policies today are accepted at regular rates. Another 8½% are offered insurance at the lowest possible cost considering their particular physical condition, while only 1½% are declined. Whatever your needs, you can be sure of progressive life insurance service when you call the Man from Manufacturers.

University Education and Mo

Every Educator

Must Regard Himself

As a Servant of Truth

Higher Education Should Promote

Not Only Knowledge

But Wisdom

By Bertrand Russell

Education is a vast and complex subject involving many problems of great difficulty. I propose, in what follows, to deal with only one of these problems, namely, the adaptation of university education to modern conditions.

Universities are an institution of considerable antiquity. They developed during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries out of cathedral schools where scholastic theologians learned the art of dialectic. But, in fact, the aims which inspired universities go back to ancient times.

One may say that Plato's Academy was the first university. Plato's Academy had certain well-marked objectives. It aimed at producing the sort of people who would be suitable to become Guardians in his ideal Republic. The education which Plato designed was not in his day what would now be called "cultural". A "cultural" education consists mainly in the learning of Greek and Latin. But the Greeks had no need to learn Greek and no occasion to learn Latin. What Plato mainly wished his Academy to teach was, first, mathematics and astronomy, and, then, philosophy. The philosophy was to have a scientific inspiration with a tincture of Orphic mysticism.

Something of this sort, in various modified forms, persisted in the West until the Fall of Rome. After some centuries, it was taken up by the Arabs and, from them, largely through the Jews, transmitted back to the West. In the West it still retained much of Plato's original political purpose, since it aimed at producing an educated elite with a more or less complete monopoly of political power. This aim persisted, virtually unchanged, until the latter half of the nineteenth century. From that time onwards, the aim has become increasingly modified by the intrusion of two new elements: democracy and science. The intrusion of democracy into academic practice and theory is much more profound than that of science, and much more difficult to combine with anything like the aims of Plato's Academy.

Until it was seen that political democracy had become inevitable, universal education, which is now taken for granted in all civilized countries, was vehemently opposed, on grounds which were broadly aristocratic. There had been ever since ancient times a very sharp line between the educated and the uneducated. The educated had had a severe training and had learnt much, while the uneducated could not read or write. The educated, who had a monopoly of political power, dreaded the extension of schools to the "lower classes". The President of the Royal Society, in the year 1807, considered that it would be disastrous if working men could read, since he feared that they would spend their time reading Tom Paine. When my grandfather established an elementary school in his parish, well-to-do neighbours were outraged, saying that he had destroyed the hitherto aristocratic character of the neighbourhood. It was political democracy—at least, in England—that brought a change of opinion in this matter. Disraeli, after securing the vote for urban working men, favoured compulsory education with the phrase, "We must educate our masters". Education came to seem the right of all who desired it. But it was not easy to see how this right was to be extended to university education; nor, if it were, how universities could continue to perform their ancient functions.

The reasons which have induced civilized countries to adopt universal education are various. There were enthusiasts for enlightenment who saw no limits to the good that could be done by instruction. Many of these were very influential in the early advocacy of compulsory education. Then there were practical men who realized that a modern State and modern processes of production and distribution cannot easily be managed if a large proportion of the population cannot read. A third group were those who advocated education as a democratic right. There was a fourth group, more silent and less open, which saw the possibilities of education from the point of view of official propaganda. The importance of education in this regard is very great. In the eighteenth century, most wars were unpopular; but, since men have been able to read the newspapers, almost all wars have been popular. This is only one instance of the hold on public opinion which Authority has acquired through education.

BERTRAND RUSSELL

Bertrand Russell has been described as a philosopher who is harder to sum up in a short space than any philosopher since Plato. Certainly he is the most eminent philosopher of the twentieth century; certainly he is a writer of rare power and wide range, enough to have earned him the Nobel Prize for literature in 1950. Upon presentation of the award, he was characterized as a "champion of humanity and freedom of thought."

History, social theory, science, mathematics, logic, epistemology, religion, education, all have been Lord Russell's concern. He has never hesitated to espouse the unpopular or the unconventional if he considered it the way of truth. He was, for example, jailed for his pacifism during World War I. When his book "On Education" was published in 1926, his theories were considered too advanced but many have since found favour. To practise his own theories he ran a school from 1927 to 1932.

In addition to university teaching in England, he taught in the United States from 1938 to 1944. He spent a year at the University of Chicago, one at UCLA and several at the Barnes Foundation, Merion, Pa. Returning to Britain in 1944, Lord Russell accepted a fellowship from Trinity College, Cambridge, where he now has an office.

Although universities were not directly concerned in these educational processes, they have been profoundly affected by them in ways which are, broadly speaking, inevitable, but which are, in part, very disturbing to those who wish to preserve what was good in older ideals.

It is difficult to speak in advocacy of older ideals without using language that has a somewhat old-fashioned flavour. There is a distinction, which formerly received general recognition, between skill and wisdom. The growing complexities of technique have tended to blur this distinction, at any rate in certain regions.

There are kinds of skill which are not specially respected although they are difficult to acquire. A contortionist, I am told, has to begin training in early childhood, and, when proficient, he possesses a very rare and difficult skill. But it is not felt that this skill is socially useful, and it is, therefore, not taught in schools or universities. A great many skills, however, indeed a rapidly increasing number, are very vital elements in the wealth and power of a nation. Most of these skills are new and do not command the respect of ancient tradition. Some of them may be considered to minister to wisdom, but a great many certainly do not.

But what, you will ask, do you mean by "wisdom"? I am not prepared with a neat definition. But I will do my best to convey what I think the word is capable of meaning. It is a word concerned partly with knowledge and partly with feeling. It should denote a certain intimate union of knowledge with apprehension of human destiny and the purposes of life. It requires a certain breadth of vision, which is hardly possible without considerable knowledge. But it demands, also, a breadth of feeling, a certain kind of universality of sympathy.

I think that higher education should do what is possible towards promoting not only knowledge, but wisdom. I do not think that this is easy; and I do not think that the aim should be too conscious, for, if it is, it becomes stereotyped and priggish. It should be something existing almost unconsciously in the teacher and conveyed almost unintentionally to the pupil. I agree with Plato in thinking this the greatest thing that education can do. Unfortunately, it is one of the things most threatened by the intrusion of crude democratic shibboleths into our universities.

The fanatic of democracy is apt to say that all men are equal. There is a sense in which this is true, but it is not a sense which much concerns the educator. What can be meant truly by the phrase "All men are equal" is that in certain respects they have equal rights and should have an equal share of basic political power. Murder is a crime whoever the victim may be, and everybody should be protected against it by the law and the police. Any set of men or women which has no share in political power is pretty certain to suffer injustices of an indefensible sort. All men should be equal before the law. It is such principles which constitute what is valid in democracy.

But this should not mean that we cannot recognize differing degrees of skill or merit in different individuals. Every teacher knows that some pupils are quick to learn and others are slow. Every teacher knows that some boys and girls are eager to acquire knowledge, while others have to be forced into the minimum demanded by Authority. When a group of young people are all taught together in one class, regardless of their greater or less ability, the pace has to be too quick for the stupid and too slow for the clever. The amount of teaching that a young person needs depends to an enormous extent upon his ability and his tastes. A stupid child will only pay attention to what has to be learnt while the teacher is there to insist upon the subject-matter of the lesson. A really clever young person, on the contrary, needs opportunity and occasional guidance when he finds some difficulty momentarily insuperable. The practice of teaching clever and stupid pupils together is extremely unfortunate, especially as regards the ablest of them. Infinite boredom settles upon these outstanding pupils while matters that they have long ago understood are being explained to those who are backward.

This evil is greater the greater the age of the student. By the time that an able young man is at a university, what he needs is occasional advice (not orders) as to what to read, and an instructor who has time and sympathy to listen to his difficulties. The kind of instructor that I have in mind should be thoroughly competent in the subject in which the student is specializing, but he should be still young enough to remember the difficulties that are apt to be obstacles to the learner, and not yet so ossified as to be unable to discuss without dogmatism. Discussion is a very essential part in the education of the best students and requires an absence of authority if it is to be free and fruitful. I am thinking not only of discussion with teachers but of discussion among the students themselves. For such discussion, there should be leisure. And, indeed, leisure during student years is of the highest importance. When I was an undergraduate, I made a vow that, when in due course I became a lecturer, I would not think that lectures do any good as a method of instruction, but only as an occasional stimulus. So far as the abler students are concerned, I still take this view. Lectures as a means of instruction are traditional in universities and were no doubt useful before the invention of printing, but since that time they have been out of date as regards the abler kind of student.

It is, I am profoundly convinced, a mistake to object on democratic grounds to the separation of abler from less able pupils in teaching. In matters that the public considers important no one dreams of such an application of supposed democracy. Everybody is willing to admit that some athletes are better than others and that movie stars deserve more honour than ordinary mortals. That is because they have a kind of skill which is much admired even by those who do not possess it. But intellectual ability, so far from being admired by stupid boys, is positively and actively despised; and even among grown-ups, the term "egg-head" is not expressive of respect. It has been one of the humiliations of the military authorities of our time that the man who nowadays brings success in war is no longer a gentleman of commanding aspect, sitting upright upon a prancing horse, but a wretched scientist whom every military-minded boy would have bullied throughout his youth. However, it is not for special skill in slaughter that I should wish to see the "egg-head" respected.

The needs of the modern world have brought a conflict, which I think could be avoided, between scientific subjects and those that are called "cultural". The latter represent tradition and still have, in my country, a certain snobbish pre-eminence. Cultural ignorance, beyond a point, is despised. Scientific ignorance, however complete, is not. I do not think, myself, that the division between cultural and scientific education should be nearly as definite as it has tended to become. I think that every scientific student should have some knowledge of history and literature, and that every cultural student should have some acquaintance with some of the basic ideas of science. Some people will say that there is not time, during the university curriculum, to achieve this. But I think that opinion

DUNNING HALL

Provides Up-to-date Educational Facilities

Incorporates Best Features Of Modern Office Block

by Brian Galvin

Opened on November 17, 1959, Dunning Hall provides Queen's School of Commerce and Department of Political and Economic Science with some of the most up-to-date educational facilities to be found on any campus in North America. The new building, situated on the corner of Union and University, directly opposite the Douglas Library, brings together under one roof several segments of the Department previously housed in no fewer than four different locations on the campus – including the former "Home for Friendless Women and Children" at 75 Union St.! In addition to the Department of Politics and Economics, the occupants of Dunning Hall include the departments of Industrial Relations, Local Government, and Geography, the Institute for Economic Research, and the Professional Courses administered by the School of Commerce for chartered accountants, bankers and trust company officials.

Dunning Hall, named after the late Chancellor of Queen's, is a four-storey structure built in Queenston limestone and features a spiral staircase running from the main entrance to the fourth floor. In their design the architects (Messrs. Marani, Morris and Allan of Toronto) strove to avoid the institutional atmosphere of large buildings by segregating the various functions of the Department by areas, and where possible by floors. This was felt to be particularly important since the building was to provide private offices for over forty people, research and seminar rooms for small groups of senior students, and lecture rooms for large freshman classes, as well as space for the administrative personnel and supplies of the professional courses. Thus, classrooms holding from fifty to one hundred and fifty students are on the ground floor, and the professional courses, administrative offices, and supply rooms are housed on the second floor. On the third and fourth floors are groups of half a dozen offices with stenographer and typing facilities adjacent and with nearby seminar, research, and other special purpose rooms for the use of senior students, staff and visitors.

The classrooms are decorated in cheerful colours and are furnished with traditional tablet arm chairs but with a difference which should appeal to many former Queen's students—the seats are upholstered with one-inch foam rubber and are covered with gold, blue or red fabric to blend with the room colour scheme. Two of the classrooms are specially designed to facilitate case studies and to foster discussion among participants. The floors are tiered and shaped in a "U" so that the participants can face each other and can readily engage in the case discussions. As an added help to spontaneous debate, each participant is provided with a swivel chair so that he can quickly confront any other member of the group.

Also on the ground floor is a four-hundred-and-thirty seat auditorium, fully equipped for sound and for showing slides or movies. While primarily intended for large first-year classes, it has excellent acoustics for quartets and other small musical groups. In keeping with this dual purpose, the blackboard can be easily hidden from view by pulling floor length curtains which span the entire width of the podium. Leading directly off the stage is a small lounge and rest room for the use of guest lecturers and other visitors—a type of facility which indicates the care which has gone into planning the functional aspect of the building.

Offices for staff are located on the third and fourth floors, and are furnished with modular furniture to suit each individual's particular needs for filing, space, working area, and book shelving. Although offices are furnished to a standard plan, drab uniformity is avoided by the use of this modular furniture which can be arranged in several different ways and also by the use of a number of varied colour schemes for upholstery. The arrangement of offices in suites of six to eight rooms permits convenient groupings of departments and sections with common interests and requirements for special services. Each office has its own telephone which is connected to the central University switchboard, and by dialing three digits the user can communicate promptly with other staff members either in Dunning Hall itself or in any other building on the campus.

The second floor includes a large conference room with a common room and kitchen nearby which are intended for the use of staff members in the winter months and for the summer executive programme organized by the School of Commerce and other departments. Both the conference room and the common room have parquet flooring which does much to give the rooms a distinctive appearance. Again, colour and comfortable furnishings combine to provide an informal setting for groups of executives or staff members to study and discuss problems of mutual interest. The kitchen facilities are as labour saving as possible so as to reduce to a minimum dependence on outside caterers for coffee and light refreshments served at the functions held in the conference rooms. An electric hot water heater provides instant hot water for the Silex equipment and an automatic dishwasher helps to relieve the monotony of washing the dishes – the latter has the unqualified approval of all staff members who have occasion to use the common room for afternoon coffee. Conveniently close to the conference room are the seminar rooms which hold up to ten or twenty people. These are used in the winter session for senior students and in the summer months are useful for breaking up the plenary conference sessions into syndicates or small study groups.

With graduate programmes in economics, politics and industrial relations and with the new Master of Business Administration programme now being offered by the School of Business, the requirements of graduate students have been met by providing an atractive reading room on the third floor and a graduate common room and computing centre on the ground floor. In addition, the third floor features several research rooms for the use of research assistants and graduate students under the direction of staff members, whose offices are adjacent to these facilities. The reading room, although an interior room, has excellent fluorescent lighting and it was felt that the absence of windows would be no hindrance to the pursuit of graduate studies. Large oak tables are provided giving plenty of work space and matching the oak shelving which lines all four walls from ceiling to floor.

The professional courses personnel who administer the chartered accountants, bankers, and trust companies correspondence courses, have a special problem in that they have to print, store, and supply on demand both lesson material and text books for over four thousand students living in all ten provinces of Canada. As well as administrative offices, they require considerable storage space and compiling areas. To assist in handling the quantities of material involved in this operation, a freight elevator has been installed, giving access directly from street level to the main storeroom on the second floor and thereby avoiding the need to truck heavy loads through any other part of the building.

Dunning Hall is the first building on Queen's campus in which provision was made for air-conditioning. Although the air-conditioning equipment has not yet been acquired, the necessary duct work has been built into the structure in such a fashion that air-conditioning can be installed on any one or more floors. As a start, it is proposed, in the near future, to install air-conditioning on the classroom (ground) floor and in the conference room and auditorium. This will make these rooms very desirable for the summer programmes for executives, Queen's Summer School and similar activities held in the humid months of June, July and August.

In conclusion, one might describe Dunning Hall as basically a teaching building but incorporating the best features of a modern office block. Although considerations of efficiency and suitability have been kept uppermost in mind, no concessions have been made to uniformity for its own sake. Simplicity and a few embellishments such as wrought iron railings and a circular staircase have combined to produce a structure which is not only pleasing to the eye but is also highly functional.

The late Dr. J. A. McRae, emeritus professor of Chemistry, is shown, third from left, with a few of his colleagues at the time of Fall Convocation in 1956 when he received an LL.D. degree from Queen's. With him, left to right, are Dr. G. B. Frost, professor of Chemistry, head of the Department; Dr. L. A. Munro, professor of Chemistry, and Prof. R. L. Dorrance.

Dr. J. A. McRAE

● Head of the Department of Chemistry from 1940 to 1956 and a member of staff for forty-four years, Dr. John Alexander McRae, M.A. (Queen's), Ph.D., D.Sc. (Manchester), LL.D. (Queen's), F.R.I.C., F.R.S.C., emeritus professor of chemistry, died at Kingston, Ontario, April 8, at the age of seventy-one.

Dr. McRae graduated from Queen's with his M.A. degree in 1909 and the same year joined the University staff as a lecturer. During 1910-11 he held the same position at the University of Toronto. He returned to Queen's the following year, where he remained for the rest of his teaching career, with the exception of the years 1919-21 during which he attended Manchester University.

On his retirement in 1956 Dr. McRae was honoured by Queen's with the degree of Doctor of Laws. The citation read: "distinguished graduate of this University, for forty-four years a member of its family, a scientist whose contributions to organic chemistry have brought respect for his high standards, a teacher whose thoroughness asked no concessions from the exacting discipline of his subject, a colleague as generous in his loyalty as he has been laconic in his comment."

Dr. McRae was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada in 1938. He was also a Fellow of the Royal Institute of Chemistry and a Fellow of the Chemical Institute of Canada.

Active in Freemasonry, he served as Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario 1941-43. He was also prominent in curling, in municipal affairs and in the work of his church, St. Andrew's Presbyterian, where he served as elder for fifteen years.

He is survived by his widow, Catherine Logan, of Invernesshire, Scotland, whom he married in 1925.

Around the CAMPUS

Theological Convocation. Ten graduates received their degrees and chalices from Principal Elias Andrews at the annual Convocation of the Queen's Theological College on April 20. A highlight of the ceremony was the address by Rev. A. Leonard Griffith of Chalmers United Church, Ottawa, Ont., who spoke on "The Church in Today's World," and who urged that the Christian Church keep a united front in its activities throughout the world.

Greetings to the graduates were brought by Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Principal of Queen's University, and by Rev. Dr. George A. Brown, chairman of the board of management of the Queen's Theological College.

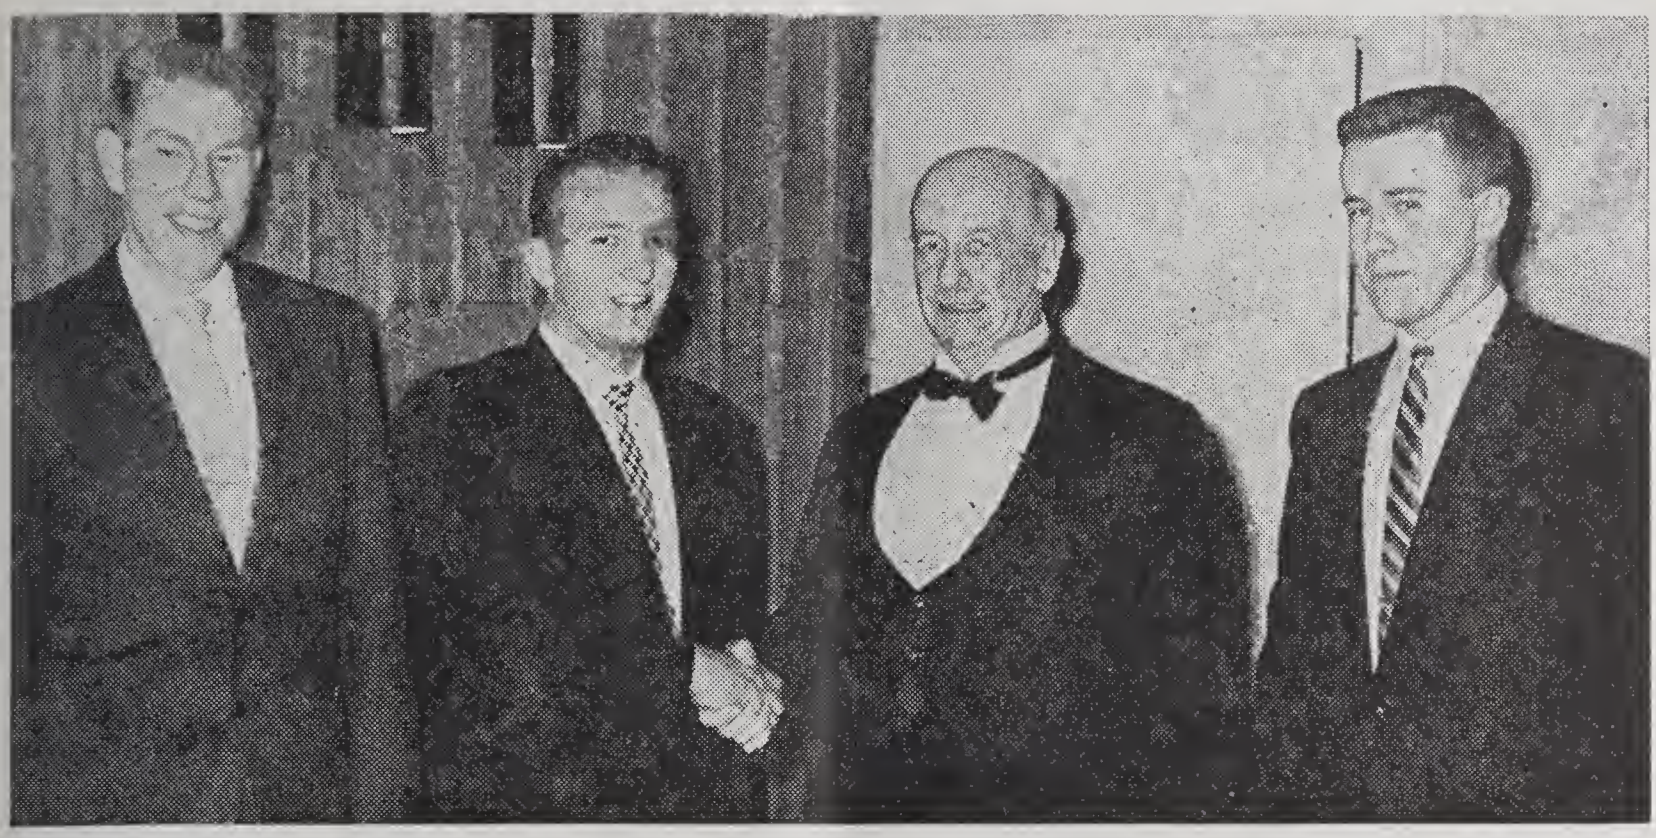

The major award of the Convocation, the Hugh Waddell and Leitch Memorial travelling scholarship of $1,000, was awarded to George McLean Richardson. Each member of the graduating class was presented with a book, the gift of Dr. C. W. Drury, Toronto, Ont.

Testimonial Dinner. In honour of Prof. Douglas M. Jemmett, head of the Department of Electrical Engineering for forty years, the Class of Electrical Engineering 1960 held a testimonial dinner at the LaSalle Hotel on March 15. Present were the members of the class, colleagues of Professor Jemmett, and former students, many from out of town. Announcement was made of the establishment of the D. M. Jemmett Scholarship in Electrical Engineering, and presentations were made to Professor and Mrs. Jemmett, including the commission of a photograph by Karsh.

The graduating class, headed by Gary Tucker, Windsor, Ont., and Harry Menna, Riverside, Ont., planned the project and made all the arrangements. The forty-two members set a goal of $6,000 for the capitalization of the Scholarship and raised approximately $1,500 from among their own number. An appeal to the electrical engineering graduates has brought the total up to $5,000 at the time of going to press and it is expected that the goal will be reached before the end of the year.

Golden Jubilee. Established in 1910 with twenty-four students, Queen's Summer School this year is observing its golden jubilee.

The session of 1960 is expected to be the busiest in the history of the institution. About 1,500 persons are expected to be on the campus during the July-August period, the largest group of these being on the B.A. course and those enrolled in the School of Fine Arts. About 300 university students will be registered in the Ontario College of Education training course for secondary school teachers, and in addition there will be the usual enrolment of women teachers taking the physical education classes of the Ontario Department of Education.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER FOR PROF. D. M. JEMMETT

Left to right, Harry Menna, Gary Tucker, Professor Jemmett, and Robert Lundvall. The students are all members of the final-year class in Electrical Engineering and organized a testimonial dinner in honour of Prof. D. M. Jemmett, who is retiring after 47 years at Queens.

Director of Summer School is Dr. H. W. Curran, who is also Director of the Department of University Extension.

Medical Research. Research grants amounting to $642,000 were given to medical scientists in the Faculty of Medicine during 1959-60. Of this, $48,500 came from research fellowship awards; grants-in-aid of research amounted to approximately $330,000, and a research equipment grant totalled $264,500.

Queen's has become known as a centre for research in the cardiovascular field and haematology, for exciting discoveries in electron microscopy, for ingenious investigations in electromyography, and for careful studies in ophthalmology, reports Dean G. H. Ettinger.

Here and There. Thirty-one National Research Council of Canada scholarships are for graduate work at Queen's this year. These include eight bursaries worth $1,800 each, and twenty-three studentships valued at $2,200 each. . . . About 3,500 of Canada's leading university professors, teachers, and scientists will attend the sessions of the Learned Societies at Queen's in June. The Royal Society will be represented by about 300 fellows. . . . A portrait of Dr. W. T. Connell, professor emeritus of Medicine and Clinical Medicine and chief of medicine at Kingston General Hospital, has been presented to the Hospital and will be hung in the new Connell Wing. The portrait sponsored by many of his former students and members of the advisory council of the Faculty of Medicine, was presented by his son, Dr. W. Ford Connell, professor of Medicine and Clinical Medicine and chief of medicine at the Hospital. . . . A final-year student in the Faculty of Law, Robert A. Little, Arts '58, will head the executive of the Alma Mater Society, student-governing body, for 1960-61. Mr. Little is the son of Judge Walter Little, Arts '28, and Mrs. Little (Marjorie McDonald), Arts '28, Parry Sound, Ont. . . . Nuffield Fellowships have been awarded two Queen's staff members – Prof. H. M. Good, associate professor in the Department of Biology, and Dr. John Stedmond, assistant professor of English language and literature.

Dr. John J. Deutsch Is Speaker At New York Society Meeting

Dr. John J. Deutsch, vice-principal of Queen's in charge of administration, was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the New York Society on March 30. The meeting was held at the Top of the Six's Restaurant on Fifth Avenue, with seventy in attendance.

Dr. Deutsch reported on the many changes that had taken place at Queen's in recent years, with particular reference to postgraduate work, research, and the growth of the physical plant. He predicted that the University would continue to grow, but that it would probably remain comparatively small in size, with emphasis on quality.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by E. C. Delahay, Arts '48, president of the New York Society.

H. J. Hamilton, alumni secretary, brought greetings from the University. He spoke of the valuable contribution made to Queen's by the New York Society since its formation in 1898.

A highlight of the evening was the showing of coloured slides of a safari made to Africa by Dr. John Hammett, Med. '19, president of the Alumni Association, and Mrs. Hammett. Dr. Hammett provided a running commentary which added to the enjoyment of the pictures.

A social hour preceded the dinner which gave the Alumni an opportunity to mingle and renew acquaintances.

Miss Isabel Laird Is Guest Of Hamilton Alumnae

In honour of Miss Isabel Laird, professor of psychology at Queen's, a tea was held by the Hamilton Alumnae at the home of Mrs. G. H. Stone (Lola Honsberger), Arts '48, Com. '48, on March 5.

Miss Laird spoke to the group on the Queen's summer school in Bermuda. She was introduced by Miss Jeannette Voaden, Arts '59, and was thanked by Dr. Dora Stock, Arts '14, LL.D. '52.

Mrs. W. G. Cornett (Jessie Ewart), Arts '21, presided at the tea table.

Miss Jean McGaughey Addresses Kingston Alumnae

Miss Jean McGaughey, Arts '46, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Kingston alumnae held in the Common Room of Ban Righ Hall on March 1. Miss McGaughey gave an illustrated talk on Korea, where she had served for some years as an administrative officer in the Supply Division of the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency. She was thanked for her entertaining address by Mrs. W. S. Brooke (Clara Farrell), Arts '24.

The report of the nominating committee, as presented by Miss Melva Eagleson, Arts '25, was accepted as follows: past president, Mrs. R. D. Bradfield (Eva Newell), Arts '26; president, Mrs. C. H. R. Campling (Laura Miller), Arts '46; first vice-president, Mrs. F. W. Gibson (Margaret Mackay), Arts '46; second vice-president, Mrs. G. O. Saunders (Pauline Martin), Arts '33; secretary, Mrs. M. F. Graham, Arts '20; treasurer, Miss Dorothy Taylor, Arts '41; programme convener, Mrs. W. M. Smith, Arts '56; membership convener, Mrs. W. H. L. Smith (Elizabeth Carmichael), Arts '28; social convener, Miss Patricia Longworth, Arts '59; press convener, Miss Janet McGinnis, Arts '46; councillors—Miss Caroline Mitchell, Arts '26, Mrs. Walter Tschappat (Mary Fairbanks), Arts '38, and Miss Lois Allan, Arts '21.

TORONTO ALUMNI AWARD

Dr. Lorne Pierce, who was presented with the Toronto Alumni Award this year, is shown here with Ian Rogers, president of the Toronto branch. Dr Pierce was honoured at a dinner.

Dr. Lorne Pierce Presented With Toronto Alumni Award

Presentation of the Toronto Award was made to Dr. Lorne Pierce, Arts '12, LL.D. '28, at the annual dinner meeting of the Toronto branch at the Granite Club on February 24.

The award is made to a person who is "deserving of recognition for services to society and directly or indirectly to Queen's University. Previous recipients have been Col. E. A. Baker, J. M. Macdonnell, E. C. Gill, and Principal W. A. Mackintosh.

Dr. R. O. Earl, Arts '14, in presenting Dr. Pierce for the award traced his career since graduation from Queen's to his retirement as editor of Ryerson Press in January of this year. He paid tribute to Dr. Pierce's outstanding contribution to Canadian letters not only in his editorial capacity, but in his support and encouragement of Canadian writers and artists, and in his own writings. Not the least of his many accomplishments was the promotion of understanding and appreciation among English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians.

"Dr. Pierce has been a long-time friend of Queen's," said Dr. Earl. "He began sending books to the University Library in the early 20's, and as the collection grew it was transferred to what came to be known as the "Lorne Pierce Room." With the aid of his wife, he established one of the outstanding research libraries of Canadiana in the Dominion.

Presentation of the Award was made by Ian MacF. Rogers, Arts '46, president of the Toronto branch. In his reply Dr. Pierce spoke with emotion of his appreciation of the honour. He gave some delightful reminiscences of his long and fruitful stewardship as book editor of Ryerson Press.

There were approximately 150 in attendance. Convener was B. P. Mordy, Arts '44.

Dr. A. R. McKinnon Speaks On Research in Education

Dr. A. R. McKinnon, Arts '52, director of educational research for Toronto, was the guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Toronto alumnae held at the Granite Club on February 12. There were 115 present. Miss Evalina Thompson, Arts '38, was in the chair.

Dr. McKinnon presented a new concept of education, with research as the fourth "R". "Research in education looks for ways to encourage activity of thought and receptivity to beauty and humane feeling," he said. "It is also useful as a means of unification of the various aspects of learning and philosophy."

Dr. McKinnon was introduced by Mrs. J. G. MacGregor (Eunice Simpson), Arts '23. He was thanked by Mrs. J. M. Hazlett (Flora Fair), Arts '16.

The alumnae were particularly grateful to Dr. McKinnon because he had consented to speak on short notice. Dr. Charlotte Whitton, Arts '17, LL.D. '41, had been scheduled originally, but had to withdraw five days before because of illness. Dr. Z. S. Phimister, Arts '30, director of education for Toronto, agreed to take her place, and then was taken ill himself. He kindly arranged to have Dr. McKinnon fill in, and the latter did so in sterling fashion. He was accompanied by Mrs. McKinnon (Gene Lewis), Arts '52.

Conveners were Miss Bessie Billings, Arts '25, Mrs. A. L. Scace (Jean Simmons), Com. '26, and Mrs. Joseph Dyer (May Sharpe), Arts '29.

Rev. A. M. Laverty Visits Kirkland Lake Alumni

Alumni in the Kirkland Lake area gathered at the home of Miss Hazel Grimmon, Arts '29, on April 5 to meet with Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain.

Mr. Laverty gave a vivid account of the many changes that had taken place on the Queen's campus in recent years and an outline of trends and developments at the University.

Those present included Charles Green, Sc. '31, Mrs. Green (Margaret Irene Purcell), Arts '30, Mrs. Harry McNabb (Catharine McPhee), Arts '35, Mrs. William Allan (Barbara Scott), Arts '59, Miss Anna Stewart, Arts '54, Ronald McIntosh, Mrs. McIntosh (Maureen Hope), N.Sc. The group is considering holding an informal gathering at least twice a year, and may try to get the present and prospective Queen's students together in the fall.

Dean of Women Addresses Ottawa Alumnae

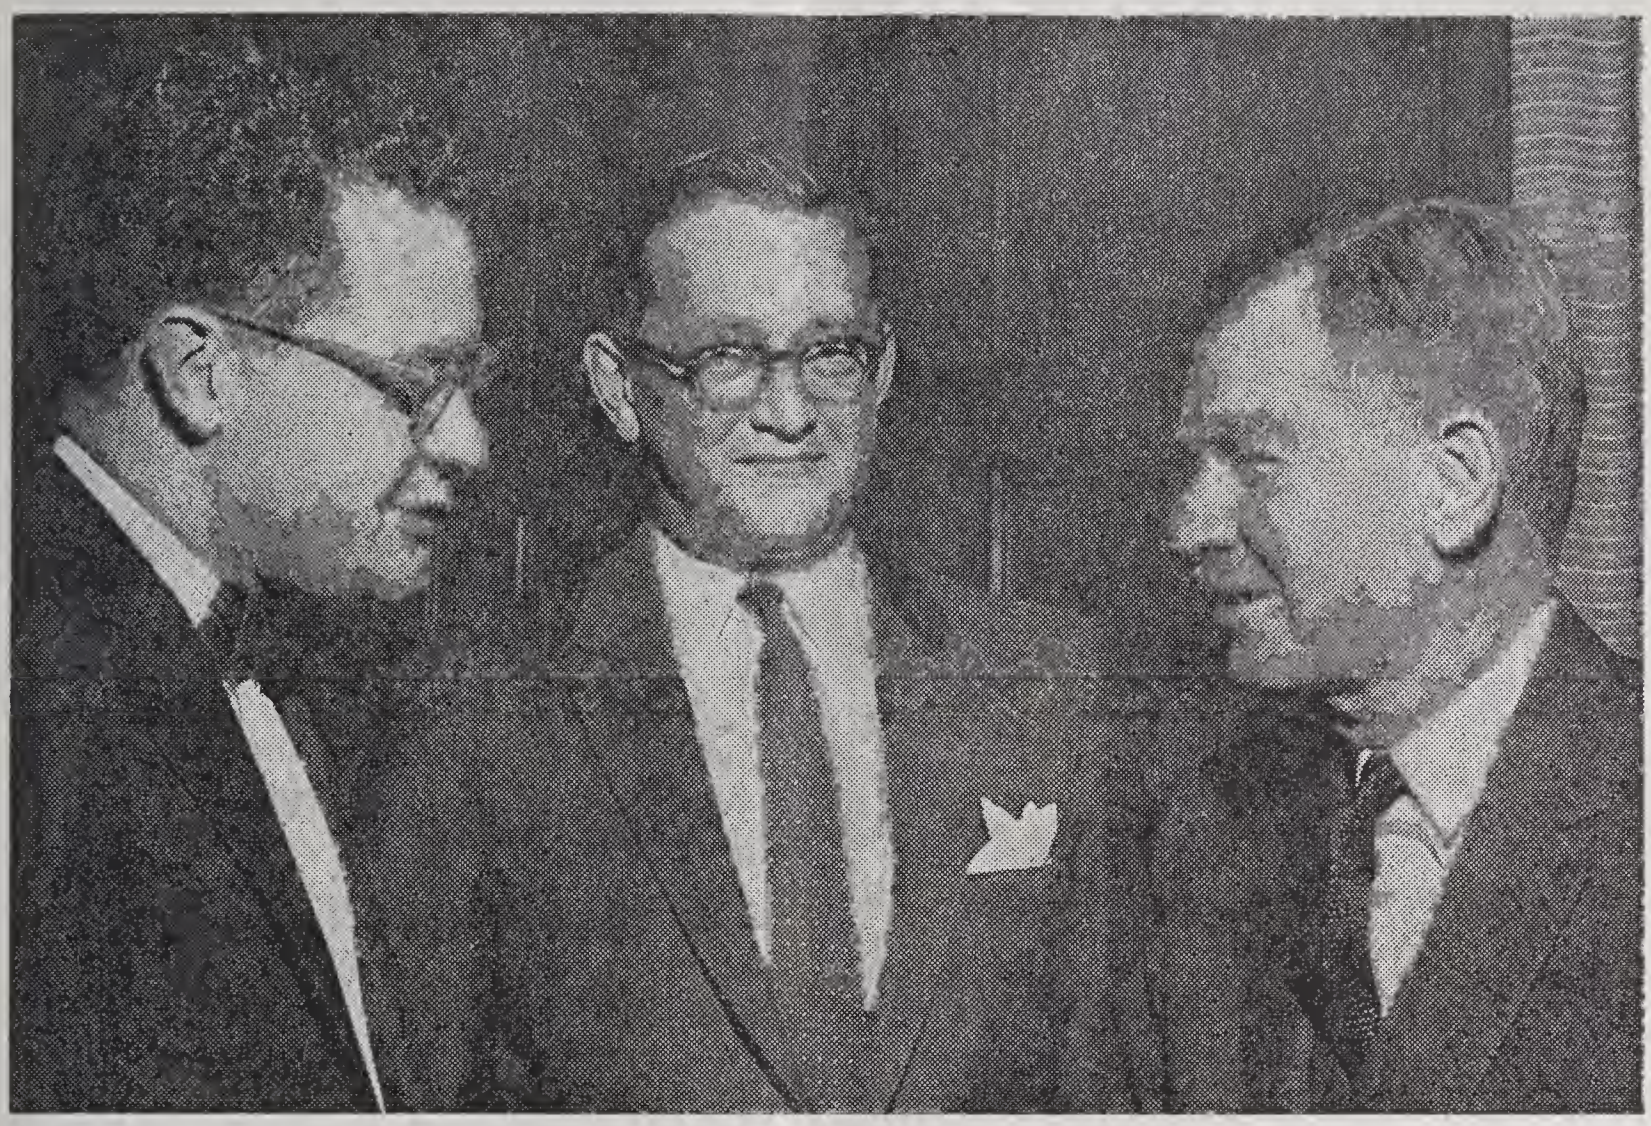

Dean of Women at Queen's, Mrs. Edwin Bryce, was the guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Ottawa alumnae held at the Ladies Parlour in Southminster United Church on April 6. There were more than seventy in attendance.

Mrs. Bryce spoke of the duties and responsibilities entailed in her position, as well as giving a report on the new women's residences and the other many changes on the campus. Her warmth and interest impressed everyone present.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Florence Dunlop, Arts '24, and was thanked by Miss Mora Guthrie, Arts '19.

In the business portion of the meeting Miss Kathryn Walsh, Arts '53, was elected president for the ensuing year. Miss Walsh succeeds Miss Mary Elliott, Arts '47.

SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY MEETING

Dr. Lionel Reese, president-elect, and N. C. Brown, president, chatting with Dr. J. A. Corry, guest speaker, at the sixtieth anniversary meeting of the London branch held on February 19.

Donations of $587.50 were approved as follows: C.F.U.W., $17.50; Eliza Fitzgerald Fund, $20.00; room in the new women's residence, $400; Marty Memorial Scholarship Fund, $75; Dean of Women's Emergency Fund, $75. These contributions were made possible because of such undertakings as the Garden Party (held in conjunction with the Ottawa alumni branch), a Coffee Party, and a Bridge Party.

Dr. J. A. Corry Is Speaker At London's Sixtieth Anniversary

"Rapidly changing modern society with enormous productive power will place ever-increasing burdens on universities," Dr. J. A. Corry, vice-principal of Queen's, told the London alumni at their sixtieth anniversary dinner at the Hotel London on February 19.

"Society is facing a new age in which there will be a constantly increasing demand for higher, broader education," said Dr. Corry. "This revolution is going to change our lives as radically as the industrial revolution and it is going to change it much faster."

"Universities must teach more fundamental science," said Dr. Corry. "It was men with fundamental knowledge and imagination who have made the great progress in technology. "In this respect universities must take the greatest care that their product does not become obsolete in a few years."

It has been found that more companionship and self-respect when a girl gets out of jail she can find working in a factory or office than in a private household.

EDUCATION

arises partly from unwillingness to adapt teaching to those who are not going to penetrate very far into the subject in question. More specifically, whatever cultural education is offered to scientific students should not involve a knowledge of Latin or Greek. And I think that whatever of science is offered to those who are not going to specialize in any scientific subject should deal partly with scientific history and partly with general aspects of scientific method. I think it is a good thing to invite occasional lectures from eminent men to be addressed to the general body of students and not only to those who specialize in the subject concerned.

There are some things which I think it ought to be possible, though at present it is not, to take for granted in all who are engaged in university teaching. Such men or women must, of course, be proficient in some special skill. But, in addition to this, there is a general outlook which it is their duty to put before those whom they are instructing. They should exemplify the value of intellect and of the search for knowledge. They should make it clear that what at any time passes for knowledge may, in fact, be erroneous. They should inculcate an undogmatic temper, a temper of continual search and not of comfortable certainty. They should try to create an awareness of the world as a whole, and not only of what is near in space and time. Through the recognition of the likelihood of error, they should make clear the importance of tolerance. They should remind the student that those whom posterity honours have very often been unpopular in their own day and that, on this ground, social courage is a virtue of supreme importance. Above all, every educator who is engaged in an attempt to make the best of the students to whom he speaks must regard himself as the servant of truth and not of this or that political or sectarian interest. Truth is a shining goddess, always veiled, always distant, never wholly approachable, but worthy of all the devotion of which the human spirit is capable.

83 Florwin Drive,
Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.
April 10, 1960.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Remember I wrote to you several years ago, outlining a grandiose scheme for collecting funds from impecunious alumni like me? Seems as though I suggested a system of post-dated cheques, somewhat the same as are used in paying off N.H.A. mortgages.

In my own case it worked for a year, the best alternative, I thought, to hitting the budget with one big chunk (big only relatively, of course). However, the combination of bank charges, postage, etc., made the idea impracticable.

Fortunately I struck on another idea several months ago that fits in nicely with your Alumni Fund Committee's Regular Annual Donor programme. I bought a $50.00 Canada Savings Bond which, when paid for by monthly salary deduction, will be forwarded to the Fund. I wanted at the time to register Queen's as the owner, but this is not possible. The bond will be fully paid for on October 30 this year. Kept to maturity by Queen's, it will be worth somewhat more than the original amount.

If, as an idea of promoting contributions from the doubtlessly large alumni group living on tight budgets, this has any value, please feel free to use it, especially at the time when Canada Savings Bonds drives are being conducted nationally.

SCIENCE '50 SOLVENT

Members of the Class of Science '50, which ran into financial troubles at the time of the 1959 reunion, through circumstances over which they had no control, put on a campaign to recoup their losses. George Devlin, permanent president, reports that the drive was oversubscribed, the debt has been discharged, and the class is solvent once more. Eighty-nine members responded to the appeal.

The reunion of the Class of Science '50 was an artistic, if not a financial, success, and Mr. Devlin says that plans for the next reunion, in 1963, will ensure success on both counts.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

the QUEEN'S REVIEW

MAY 1960

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA is pleased to announce that the initial response to its Values in Education series has been more than gratifying. Hundreds of thousands of booklets have been distributed on request to all parts of Canada and the United States. These booklets, which are still available, deal with the advisability of remaining in school; existing scholarships and bursaries; technical and trade schools; school boards and their functions, and sports tips for teen-agers. Bulk shipments can be made to educators for distribution in schools.

Sun Life is now preparing a further series of booklets in its Values in Education series. 'How to Get More Fun out of School' is directed to the young teen-ager. It is hoped that 'The Value of a College Education' and 'Why Study the Humanities?' will encourage young men and women to attend university and help them in their search for their proper vocation. Two booklets have been prepared for adults — 'Adult Education Today' and 'Educating Yourself for Retirement.'
Sun Life hopes sincerely that these booklets, and others to be issued in the future, will act as a stimulant on the young people of our nation and at the same time prove helpful to parents and educators alike in the performance of their duties. Sun Life will be glad to consider any suggestions concerning topics for future booklets.

John Bertram Stirling

Elected Chancellor

By Unanimous Vote

Of University Council

Succeeds

Late Hon. C. A. Dunning

One of Canada's most distinguished engineers, John Bertram Stirling, of Montreal, Quebec, was elected Chancellor of Queen's University by unanimous vote of the University Council on May 20. Dr. Stirling succeeds the late Hon. C. A. Dunning.

The Chancellor is the highest officer of the University, and the incumbent holds office for three years. He presides at meetings of the University Council, which links Trustees, Senate, and graduates, and he presides at Convocations.

A graduate of Queen's with a B.A. in 1909 and a B.Sc. in civil engineering in 1911, Dr. Stirling is president of E.G.M. Cape and Company, engineers and contractors, Montreal. He has been elected to the highest offices in his profession, including the presidency of the Engineering Institute of Canada, and of the Canadian Construction Association, and other professional groups. He is a former president of the Montreal Board of Trade.

A member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association for many years Dr. Stirling served as president from 1951 to 1953. His term as president of the Association coincided with that as president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, which gave him an opportunity to meet with Queen's groups from coast to coast.

At the Spring Convocation in 1951 Queen's gave Dr. Stirling an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. His citation read: "A man of high standing in the construction industry of Canada and a loyal and devoted son of this University."

For many years Dr. Stirling has been a Trustee and more recently Chairman of the Building Committee and Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees. His interest in education has been second only to that in his own profession.

Born in Picton, Ontario, and brought up in Dundas, where his father, a Queen's graduate, was a medical doctor, he graduated from elementary and secondary schools there before entering Queen's in 1906. During World War One he served overseas for four years with the Canadian Engineers. Since that time his home has been in Montreal.

The office of Chancellor was created in 1874, as one of the steps taken by the University to offset the lack of support forthcoming from the union of the Presbyterian churches. Queen's had had an intimate connection with the Old Kirk wing, and could not hope for the same support from the Free Church wing. The new Church declined all responsibility for the Arts Faculty, and gave only a limited support to the theological department. This changed relationship meant some revision of the constitution, and it was then that the position of Chancellor was created.

The first appointment was made in 1877, and one of the founders of the University, Rev. Dr. John Cook, was named. At his installation he declared that the founders of Queen's, of whom he was then almost the last survivor, had they been able to anticipate the ultimate triumph of a more liberal policy would probably not have attempted their task. Moreover, looking back over thirty-seven years he said: "Our error was in giving the institution a strictly denominational character, for which there was no sort of necessity and from which our struggles with the sectarianism of another Church ought to have preserved us."

Dr. Cook served from 1877 to 1879. He was succeeded by Sir Sandford Fleming, 1880-1915; James Douglas, 1915-1919; Edward (later Sir Edward) Beatty, 1919-1923; Sir Robert Borden, 1924-1929; James A. Richardson, 1929-1939; The Hon. Charles A. Dunning, 1940-1958.

J. B. STIRLING

THE NEW CHANCELLOR OF QUEEN'S

It is not only Queen's University that will be pleased that Dr. J. B. Stirling of Montreal has accepted the office of Chancellor. Pleasure in the appointment will be widely shared by Dr. Stirling's legion of friends.

Dr. Stirling represents those qualities that have come to be associated with Queen's men—self-reliance, a determination for useful achievement, a deep sense of a citizen's duties, and a warm kindliness towards others in the midst of great personal success.

It is only fitting that Queen's should honour a man who has so well exemplified its spirit; and by the same token, the appointment of such a man will help assure that such a spirit will always be part of the Queen's tradition.

Dr. Stirling comes to the Chancellor's office after loyal service to Queen's over the years. He has been President of the Queen's Alumni Association (and the recipient of its Montreal Medal); he was active in the campaign of 1958 and has been Chairman of the Building Committee; and he has been Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees. In taking up his new duties at Queen's, he will have a thorough knowledge of the University in its needs, its plans, and its range of work.

Dr. Stirling is a Queen's man who has taught, by his own example, the need for graduates to shoulder their share of responsibility not only in their own professions but in the community and the nation.

He himself has risen to professional eminence, becoming president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, president of the Canadian Construction Association, and the president of the firm of E. G. M. Cape and Co., engineers and contractors.

But he has always maintained that the engineer has particular responsibilities for being an active citizen. He has been opposed to "an overdevelopment of group consciousness" in the profession. He himself has played the wider role, as president of such bodies as the Montreal Board of Trade and the Better Business Bureau, and by giving leadership in many campaigns, especially in the field of health, and serving on the boards of two hospitals.

"Wisdom and knowledge are the soul of steadfastness." So the Queen's motto may be translated. And by the new Chancellor of Queen's this motto has been translated into terms of character.

SPRING CONVOCATION

● Six hundred and four men and women received degrees at Spring Convocation on May 21. The degrees were granted in two ceremonies, which marked the close of the hundred and eighteenth session of the University.

604 Men and Women Receive Degrees In Two Ceremonies

Honorary Degrees Conferred on Eight Prominent Canadians

Morning Convocation

At the Convocation for Applied Science, 216 were granted degrees: M.Sc. '21; B.Sc. (honours), 23; B.Sc., 172.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on Dr. W. B. Lewis, vice-president of research and development, Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, Chalk River, Ont.; and on Dr. L. R. Thiesmeyer, president of the Pulp and Paper Research Institute of Canada, Montreal, Que.

The Convocation Address was delivered by Dr. Thiesmeyer, who told members of the graduating class that they were living in the most exciting century in history. He warned them, however, against the mistake of thinking that there was nothing left to be invented. "In such a fast-moving world as we have inherited, the two most significant words in the English language are not 'atomic energy', but the two short and ancient words 'not yet'."

Afternoon Convocation

At the Convocation for the Faculty of Arts and Science, the Theological College, the Department of Commerce and Business Administration and the Department of Physical and Health Education, 388 were granted degrees: Ph.D., 4; B.D., 3; M.A., 8; M.Sc., 20; B.A. (honours), 40; B.Sc. (honours), 22; B.A., 241; B.Com., 27; D.B.A., 6; B.P.H.E., 17.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Divinity were conferred on Rev. G. S. Maxwell, Trinity United Church, Peterborough, Ont.; and Rev. R. E. Vipond, minister of Lakeview United Church, Regina, Sask. Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were given to Dr. R. O. Earl, emeritus professor of Biology and former Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science, Queen's University; E. C. Guillet of the Eastern High School of Commerce, Toronto, Ont.; Yousuf Karsh, noted portrait photographer, Ottawa, Ont.; John A. Stevenson, journalist and former London Times correspondent, Ottawa, Ont.

In his address to the graduating class, Dr. Earl called for "intellectual industry in harnessing emotion, intuition, memory, and intellect for the attainment of wisdom and understanding." He expressed the belief that mankind was coming into a great new age, "not the world of Aldous Huxley or George Orwell, but much better than we have now."

The Prince of Wales Prize, awarded to the graduating student adjudged to have the best academic record, was divided equally between G. G. Davis, Woodstock, Ont., and R. H. Wilby, Hamilton, Ont.

DOCTORS AND LAWYERS

Eighteen Graduates in Law Are First in More Than Fifty Years

Fifty-Two Receive Degrees In Faculty of Medicine And Fourteen in Nursing Science

● History was made at Spring Convocation on May 28, when eighteen men and women received the degree of Bachelor of Laws, the first graduates in Law at Queen's in more than fifty years.

The Convocation was for the Faculty of Medicine, the Faculty of Law, and the School of Nursing. Three received diplomas in Medical Radiology (Diagnosis), fifty-two received the degrees of Doctor of Medicine, and Master of Surgery, fourteen the degree of Bachelor of Nursing Science, and nine the diploma for Nursing. It marked the last time the medical graduates will receive the Master of Surgery—henceforth the medical degree will be simply Doctor of Medicine.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on R. F. Farquharson, retiring professor and head of the Department of Medicine at the University of Toronto; J. J. Robinette, lawyer, Toronto, Ont.; and C. A. Wright, dean of the University of Toronto Law School. The citations read:

RAY FLETCHER FARQUHARSON—physician, teacher, scientist, a son of the manse whose ministry of medicine has covered the whole of Canada; a professor at a provincial university, whose influence on the teaching of clinical medicine has permeated every Canadian Medical School; a scientist whose advice is sought by governmental and other authorities which support research in Medicine, and by those whose investigations are so supported.

JOHN JOSIAH ROBINETTE—accomplished lawyer, distinguished counsel, learned in the law, Bencher and Treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, shining exemplar of the practice of a private profession as public trust.

CECIL AUGUSTUS WRIGHT—able lawyer, distinguished legal scholar and consumately provocative teacher of law, who holds imperial sway in his favourite subject, the Law of Torts.

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD

The new building for the Faculty of Law, which is now under construction and expected to be ready for occupancy this fall, is to bear the name of Kingston's adopted son and Canada's first prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald.

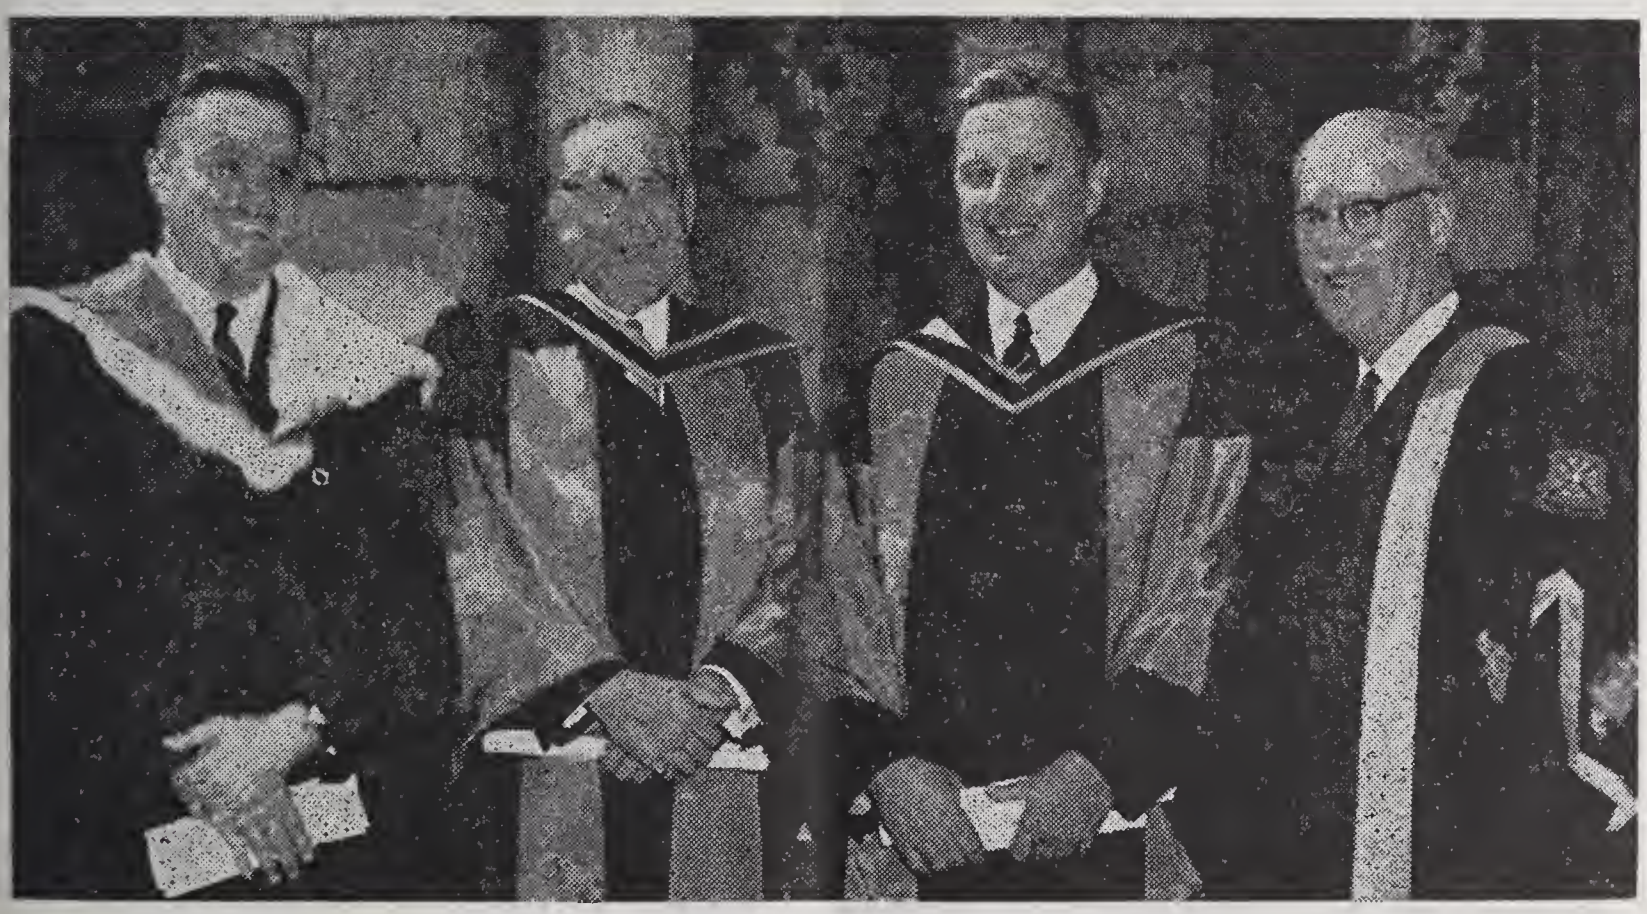

While Sir John A. never had any formal connection with the University he had a "lifelong friendly interest in its development." He helped to raise money to start the new university in 1839, he was interested in the establishment of the Faculty of Medicine, his legal advice was sought on many occasions. He also received one of the first honorary degrees from Queen's.

Although Sir John A. is not listed as one of the founders of the University he was so regarded and so described by Principal George Monro Grant. When trees commemorating each of the founders were planted on the Queen's campus in 1881, one of them was in the name of Sir John A.

TEACHER HONOURED

Dr. R. F. Farquharson, retiring head of the Department of Medicine at the University of Toronto, received the honorary degree of Doctors of Laws. He is shown here with Dean G. H. Ettinger.

A HAPPY DAY FOR THE LAW FACULTY

Dean W. R. Lederman of the Faculty of Law, left, is all smiles as he stands with the two recipients of honorary degrees, Dr. C. A. Wright and Dr. J. J. Robinette. On the right is Dr. Mackintosh.

● The forty-eighth annual meeting of the Alumnae Association held in Ban Righ Common Room on April 30 attracted ninety members, sixty of them occupying rooms in the new residence for women, not yet officially opened or named. Members, who have contributed $36,000 through the Alumni Fund during the last two and a half years towards furnishings of the building, were delighted to find it a beautiful, functional building, tastefully furnished and well equipped.

Two executive committee meetings attended by twenty-two members were held in the Levana Board Room and a coffee party was given by Mrs. C. H. R. Campling (Laura Miller), Arts '46, and her Kingston branch in one of the Common Rooms. The branch also arranged a tour of University buildings on Saturday morning.

Ban Righ dining hall accommodated 100 for lunch and 200 for dinner on Saturday, and, following the dinner, an evening of song, accompanied by a skit called: "Queen's and Princesses: Their Daze and Knights," on the follies and foibles of Queen's co-eds through the years was presented by Mrs. W. S. Brooke (Clara Farrell Jackson), Arts '24. The script of this hilarious pageant was written and read by Mrs. W. A. Campbell (Mary Clark), Arts '24, and will likely be available to members.

At lunch, the President, Mrs. W. J. Hyde (Elizabeth Farrell), Arts '17, presented Dr. A. Vibert Douglas, former Dean of Women, with an honorary membership in the Alumnae Association and a pin with the Queen's crest set in pearls, on behalf of the members.

At dinner, Dr. Pauline Jewett, a Marty Memorial Scholarship award winner of 1949, spoke on "Participation of Women in Politics." She was introduced by Mrs. Hyde, and was thanked by Mrs. F. W. Benn (Marion Macarthur), Arts '24.

Sunday morning service at Morgan Memorial Chapel was conducted by the Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain, with Dr. Graham George at the organ.

Annual reports indicated a year of achievement. Membership rose from 1,337 to 1,700 paid members. Branches contributed $855 to the Marty Memorial Scholarship Fund (the Scholarship has been awarded this year to Miss Esme Lepinis, M.A. in German, who proposes to study for her Ph.D. at Yale University); $140 to the Dean of Women's Emergency Fund, administered by Dean Bryce and used to help students needing financial help in emergencies; and the sum of $4,006 towards furnishings for the new residence for women.

The association, having completed its financial undertakings towards the furnishings of the new residence, will now begin a drive to raise $10,000 towards capitalization of the Marty Memorial Scholarship Fund in order to guarantee

OBJECTIVE $165,000

Alumni Fund Goal in 1960
Is $165,000
From 6,500 Contributors

A goal of $165,000 from 6,500 contributors has been set for the Alumni Fund in 1960, the report of the Alumni Fund Committee, headed by Willis G. Cunningham, revealed to the spring meeting of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association on May 20.

The sum of $34,179 has been realized to date from the first appeal, which was sent out April 1. The report stressed the importance of personal canvasses at the branch level. Quotas will be set for each branch, based on the 1959 returns, in an effort to stimulate activity.

Consideration was given to reducing the number of issues of the Review from nine to six and to sending the magazine to all graduates and not merely to contributors to the Fund. If these plans are adopted the new programme will be started with the January, 1961, issue.

Revised Constitution Is Approved

Dr. Wallace Troup chairman of the constitution committee, presented a final draft of the revised constitution, incorporating a number of changes recommended by a Toronto group headed by Ian MacF. Rogers, and it was approved. The constitution will be placed on the agenda for the annual meeting of the Association on October 7.

A progress report was given in connection with the threatened removal of tax exemptions for contributions made by alumni of Canadian universities resident in the United States. Affected are five other Canadian universities, besides Queen's, and one or two others which have applications pending for organizations similar to Friends of Queen's Inc. The aid of all Canadian universities is being sought to make representation to the Canadian government for maintenance of the status quo and the introduction of a reciprocal arrangement for graduates of United States universities resident in Canada.

The president, Dr. John E. Hammett, was in the chair.

Dr. and Mrs. N. Miller Visit Western Alumni

A goodwill tour of the branches in Western Canada was made this spring by Dr. Norman Miller, emeritus professor of Mathematics, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Miller, past president of the Alumnae Association.

Their itinerary was as follows: Lakehead, May 5; Winnipeg, May 6; Saskatoon, May 11; Edmonton, May 14; Calgary, May 17; Trail, May 18; Kelowna, May 19; Salmon Arm, May 20; Victoria, May 25; Vancouver, May 26. On their return trip the Millers also met with the alumni in Sault Ste. Marie on June 2.

Dr. Miller brought his listeners up to date on all activities at Queen's, with particular reference to the new buildings, and the increase in courses being offered at Queen's, including those of the Law Faculty and the School of Business.

In addition, Mrs. Miller showed coloured slides of the campus, which emphasized the remarks about the many changes that had taken place at Queen's in recent years.

On their tour the Millers met many former students, friends, and colleagues. In all places they were given a warm welcome.

Although there are no organized branches at Kelowna and Salmon Arm, B.C., the alumni in those areas took advantage of the opportunity to meet with the Millers and to be brought up to date on Queen's. At Kelowna they met at the home of Earl W. VanBlaricom, Arts '12, and Mrs. VanBlaricom (Kathleen Van der Water), Arts '19. Also present were Dr. W. J. Knox, Med. '03, LL.D. '51, Mrs. W. J. Knox (Janet Dickson), Arts '03, Miss Jean Wilton, Arts '26, Mrs. J. W. Deacon (Mary Dean) Arts '32.

'52, and Mrs. Ross, came from Ashcroft, B.C., a distance of about one hundred miles. So successful was the gathering it was planned to hold similar meetings in the future.

DR. NORMAN MILLER

At both Kelowna and Salmon Arm the film "Queen's University at Kingston" was shown. In conjunction with Dr. Miller's remarks it gave the graduates a vivid picture of the University today.

At many of the meetings new executives were chosen:

Mr. Munro described the meeting at Salmon Arm as "wee but chice". . . . A member of the Class of Arts '88, and the oldest living alumna of Queen's, Mrs. S. W. GRANDFATHER GRADUATES

One of the heartiest ovations at the Convocation for the Faculty of Medicine, the Faculty of Law, and the School of Nursing was reserved for Richard C. Oaks when he stepped up to receive his LL.B. In this fashion the public showed its approbation of a man who had achieved the ambition of a life-time by obtaining his law degree after he had already established himself as a successful Kingston businessman and after he had attained the venerable status of a grandfather. In fact, Mr. Oaks is a grandfather four times over, all the children belonging to the family of Jack Sisson, Arts '53, P.H.E. '53, and Mrs. Sisson (Elinor Oaks), Arts '53.

Nor was that all that was notable about Convocation for the Oaks family—another son-in-law of Mr. Oaks, W. E. Robinson, married to Cathy Oaks, received the degrees of M.D.,C.M.

Reunion 1960

Interesting Programme Planned For October 7 - 9

Queen's - Varsity Game Will Be Feature Attraction

Reunion weekend this year will be held earlier than usual, with an interesting programme planned for October 7-9.

Under the Dix Plan the classes of 1910, 1924-'25-'27, 1935, 1943-'44-'45-'46 are scheduled to hold a reunion. The Classes of 1926 were originally included, but the class executives have decided to postpone their festivities until 1961, to mark their thirty-fifth anniversary.

Registration begins Friday afternoon, with headquarters in the Students' Memorial Union. Graduates are urged to drop in early, register, and find out the plans made on their behalf. During the afternoon tea will be served in the McLaughlin Room of the Union.

On Friday evening there will be a University Reception in Grant Hall. This has proved to be a popular meeting place at reunions. Refreshments will be served by members of the Kingston alumnae.

One of the highlights of the weekend will be the football game on Saturday afternoon when Queen's entertains her traditional rivals from the University of Toronto. This game was a deciding factor in the selection of an earlier date for Reunion – most graduates want to see Queen's play Varsity. After the game there is a reception and tea in Adelaide and Ban Righ Hall.

The Reunion Dinner in the Student's Union on Saturday night is the main event especially for the senior graduates. At this dinner there will be a presentation made to the members of the Classes of 1910. For the more recent graduates there is an informal buffet and reception at the LaSalle Hotel.

Under the auspices of the Alumni Association there are two dances on Saturday night – one in Grant Hall and one in the Gymnasium. Of particular interest to the Medical graduates is the fact that the Meds Formal will be held in the LaSalle Hotel on Friday evening from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m. with music by Ellis McClintock's orchestra.

On Sunday morning there will be a University Church Service in Grant Hall for the graduates and their friends. The service will be conducted by Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain.

Members of the Classes of 1910 will be guests of the Alumni Association at the football game and at the Reunion Dinner. They will have their own headquarters, the John Orr Room of the Students' Union. G. S. Otto of Hamilton has sent out a letter to the members of Arts '10 and Dr. R. M. Fergusson is looking after this detail for Medicine '10 and Science '10 has been invited personally by the Association.

G. S. Graham is doing a little long-range organizing from London, England, for Arts '24. Science '24 is being looked after by Don MacDonald, Regina, Sask., Morley Roberts, Schenectady, N.Y., and a Kingston committee of Don Macpherson and Don Robertson. Dr. Bill Campbell is writing to the members of Medicine '24.

The affairs of Arts '25 are in good hands, as Miss Kay Elliott, of Toronto, Ont., president of the Alumnae Association, has agreed to stir up interest. Science '25 has Ian MacLachlan and Pep Leadlay on the scene in Kingston.

Charlie McCutcheon has sent out an invitation and has reserved a number of rooms at the Capri Motel for the members of Arts '27. Dr. Ian Revelle is sending out a letter to Medicine '27 and Dr. John Delahaye is looking after local arrangements. Sc. '27 has decided to postpone their reunion until 1962—their thirty-fifth anniversary.

The classes of 1935, which will be celebrating their twenty-fifth anniversary, have Mac Forsythe looking after Arts; H. B. Megill, Montreal, Que., and R. A. Sheppard, Ottawa, Ont., arranging smorgasbord and rooms at the Capri for Science; and Dr. Hugo Ewart and Dr. W. J. Yarmey attending to Medicine.

Organizers for the '40 classes are as follows: Arts '43, Don Webb; Medicine '43, Dr. C. R. M. Eaid and Dr. L. N. O'Connor; Science '44, A. F. Holloway and C. H. R. Campling. Medicine '44, Dr. J. S. Hitsman, Dr. W. J. S. Melvin, and Dr. P. F. Playfair; Arts 45, Irving Collins; Arts '44, Vernon Ready; Arts '46, Ken Murchison and Jim McQuarrie; Science '45, L. C. Second and K. G. Richardson. Medicine '40 is having a special twentieth anniversary reunion, and a good turn-out is expected.

Around the CAMPUS

Record Enrolment. The Queen's campus was the scene of two summer schools this year and the enrolment set a new record. More than 1,000 were enrolled for the six weeks of the Queen's University Summer School, the majority being public and high school teachers from all parts of Canada, and the course lasted from July 4 to August 12. The Ontario College of Education also conducted a summer course at Queen's for the training of secondary school teachers, from July 5 to August 26, with an enrolment of approximately 200. These student teachers taught classes made up of high-school students from much of Eastern Ontario who had missed subjects or who wished to improve their grades. The classes were held at Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

On the staff of the Summer School this year was Professor James A. Roy, who taught at Queen's for thirty years, and since his retirement in 1950 has been living in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Reunion. The fiftieth anniversary of the Queen's University Summer School was marked on the weekend of July 8-10 with a reunion of graduates who had been in attendance at one or more sessions. The programme included a reception, an art exhibition, tours of the campus, a Convocation, a seminar on "State Controls – A Threat to Democracy," with Dean A. R. C. Duncan as chairman, a banquet with Vice-Principal J. J. Deutsch as speaker, a play, and a dance. Among the visitors who came a considerable distance were Lorne Brown of Newark, N.J., a past president of the Summer School Association, L. A. Rathwell, Winnipeg, Man., and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Eoll, Atikokan, Ont.

Premiere. The premiere performance of "Emily Carr," a stage biography with pictures, was a feature of the Emily Carr festival held at Queen's, August 6-8. The play was written by Herman Voaden, a B.A. graduate of 1923 and an M.A. of 1926, and was a Department of Drama production. The leading role was played by Amelia Hall, one of Canada's leading professional actresses. An unusual feature of the play was the use of a number of Emily Carr's drawings and paintings projected from the rear on to a screen.

Sponsored by the Departments of Art and Drama, the Emily Carr Festival included, besides the play, a display of Emily Carr books, her photographs, and reproductions of her paintings in Convocation Hall. At the Agnes Etherington Art Centre there was a display of Great Paintings by Emily Carr (from the C. S. Band collection), an exhibition by the Canadian Group of Painters, and a display of Emily Carr manuscripts. On August 7 there was a lecture in Ellis Hall by Yvonne Housser, and showings of the National Film Board film, "Klee Wyck," and of the new film strip "Emily Carr."

BACK TO SCHOOL

Among the twenty-six businessmen attending the first executive summer school offered by the School of Business were three Queen's graduates. Shown above, left to right, are Ewart M. Haacke, Sc. '42, manager, J. A. Wilson Lighting and Display Ltd.; T. Neil Davidson, Sc. '41, manufacturing engineering superintendent, Northern Electric Co.; Major K. L. F. Coupland, Sc. '48½, Canadian Army, and George R. Post, Arts '56, economics lecturer, School of Business.

Sports Curtailed. Lack of capital has forced the reduction of the University's participation in Intercollegiate sports to football, basketball, and track for an indefinite period. The Athletic Board of Control, faced with a heavy deficit for next year, came to the reluctant decision that the only solution was to drop out of hockey, wrestling, boxing, skiing, badminton, tennis – all sports to be retained on an intramural basis. The sports programme is dependent in large measure from the income from football, and the revenue has been falling off in recent years while the costs of equipment and travelling have increased steadily. The last increase in the athletic fee paid by the students was in 1952.

Research Centre. Known to the older graduates as the Badminton Club, the large stone building on Wellington Street which in recent years housed the H.M.C.S. Cataraqui, has been made available by the National Research Council to Queen's for research purposes.

A model of the harbour at Cobourg, Ontario, will be built to scale in a concrete basin depicting part of Lake Ontario. The research will be a continuation of a study which has been under way for the past two years at Queen's on the problems of siltation in Lake Ontario harbours. Prof. R. J. Kennedy, of the Department of Civil Engineering, has overall direction of the project, which is sponsored by the Associate Committee on Waves and Litoral Drift of the National Research Council. Directly in charge of the operation will be Dr. Bernard Le Mehaute, formerly of Grenoble, France, who is a research associate and special lecturer in the Department of Civil Engineering at Queen's.

Chown Hall. The new women's residence at Queen's has been named Chown Hall by the Board of Trustees. In making this announcement Principal W. A. Mackintosh said: "This building, which is the third women's residence to be erected, is named in honour of Miss May Chown at the request of the Alumnae Association. Miss Chown was one of a devoted group of women who worked ardently for many years to achieve the erection of Ban Righ Hall, the first residence. Despite the scepticism of others, they succeeded in raising the sum which had been stipulated.

"For many years Miss Chown was the resourceful and thrifty treasurer of the Ban Righ Hall Board which accumulated substantial sums with which to start Adelaide Hall, the second residence. Though she retired some years ago from the post, she still takes an active interest in the progress of the residences for women.

"In honouring Miss Chown the University also honours a whole host of women graduates who worked loyally and effectively in succeeding decades to achieve adequate residences for women at Queen's University."

Director. A graduate of McMaster, Queen's, and Princeton, Dr. W. Donald Wood has been appointed Director of the Industrial Relations Centre and Associate Professor of Economics at Queen's. Dr. Wood succeeds Prof. J. C. Cameron, who is retiring after twenty-three years of outstanding service as head of industrial relations at Queen's.

Dr. Wood is at present head of the industrial relations research division at Imperial Oil Limited in Toronto. Prior to this, he had broad business and industrial relations experience in government, academic, and private business fields and served for five years in the R.C.A.F. in administrative and personnel posts. The author of a number of research studies, published articles and speeches on industrial relations, Dr. Wood is particularly well known for his pioneer research in the white collar field. He takes up his new duties on September 1.

DR. W. D. WOOD

On Leave. Dr. J. A. Corry, Vice-Principal, will spend the next year in Europe on sabbatical leave. A recent recipient of a senior award by the Canada Council, Dr. Corry plans to study in the fields of his own interest, principally federalism and legal and constitutional studies. He intends to give particular attention to the effects of increasing government activities on the liberties of the individual. On the latter point he will look specifically at the impact of the welfare state in Britain on the individual.

Connell Wing. Named in honour of Dr. Walter T. Connell, for forty-six years on the staff of Queen's Faculty of Medicine, the Kingston General Hospital's new $4½ million wing was officially opened June 28 by Hon. M. B. Dymond, Ontario minister of health, and himself a Queen's Medical graduate. The eight-storey, 643-room wing thus perpetuates the name of one of the outstanding medical men in the history of the University and of the Hospital. A portrait of Dr. Connell, the gift of many Queen's graduates, is hung in the new building.

Memoirs. Senator C. G. (Chubby) Power, who resigned from the Mackenzie King Liberal Government over the conscription issue in 1944, is coming to Queen's to write his political memoirs. Senator Power has been appointed a Fellow under the Skelton-Clark Memorial Foundation for 1960-61.

DISTINGUISHED GRADUATES RECEIVE HONORARY DEGREES

At the special Convocation held to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the Queen's Summer School three distinguished Canadians were given honorary degrees. Shown above, left to right, are: Z. S. Phimister, director of education for the City of Toronto; Dr. H. W. Curran, director of the Summer School; A. E. O'Neill, member of the Oshawa Board of Education; and B. C. Diltz, dean of the Ontario College of Education. The Convocation was followed by a special luncheon.

Zac Sinclair Phimister — distinguished graduate of this University and former student in this Summer School, whose notable career as teacher in elementary and secondary schools, inspector, army education officer, and Director of Education in the City of Toronto has been marked by enthusiasm for his profession and a lively resourcefulness in bringing what is fresh and vital to the training of youth.

The Convocation was followed by a special luncheon honouring the three men in the McLaughlin Room of the Students' Memorial Union.

IN THE NEWS

Dr. William Ward Wigle, a member of the Class of Medicine '44, was recently elected president of the Ontario Medical Association.

Dr. Wigle is engaged in general practice with a group of five in the Dingwall Medical Clinic in Dryden, in which he does the major portion of the surgery when he is not away on O. M. A. business.

A native of Dryden, Dr. Wigle received his early education in the schools of that community. He was employed by the Dryden Paper Co. Ltd., Woods Department, and as a guide for tourists for approximately three years before entering Queen's in 1938. He graduated with the Class of Medicine '44 in July, 1943.

DR. W. W. WIGLE

Dr. Wigle served his junior internship at the Toronto General Hospital. In 1944-45 he served as a Surgeon Lieutenant with the R.C.N.V.R. He took his surgical internship at Lancaster Hospital, Saint John, New Brunswick, in 1945-46. For the next three years he was engaged in private practice in Red Rock, Ontario. After four months with Port Arthur Clinic Medical group in 1949 he went into general practice and organization of the Dingwall Medical Clinic in Dryden, and he has remained there ever since.

Active in the affairs of the community, Dr. Wigle has served a term on Dryden Public School Board and on Dryden Municipal Council, as well as being a past president of the Rotary Club. He has been a member of the College of General Practice since its beginning, and he was chairman of the Council of the Ontario Medical Association 1958-59.

Shortly after his installation as president of the Ontario Medical Association Dr. Wigle was the guest of honour at a dinner tendered by his classmates at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

Dr. James M. Neilson, B.Sc. '36, professor of geological engineering at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, has been appointed Assistant Dean of the Faculty.

Dr. Neilson has been on the Michigan Tech faculty since 1950. He graduated from the Royal Military College of Canada in 1935 and the following year received the B.Sc. degree in civil engineering from Queen's. He took his M.Sc.

degree at McGill in geological sciences, and the Ph.D. degree in geology from the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Neilson served in the Mediterranean and European theatres of operations with the Corps of Royal Canadian Engineers from 1940 to 1945, attaining the rank of Major. His professional experience includes engineering, mining, and geological work in Canada, United States, and Mexico. He is a geological consultant, a frequent contributor to professional journals, and is active in research.

Col. Edwin A. Baker, B.Sc. '15, LL.D. '40, Canadian chief of the 49-country World Council for the Welfare of the Blind, is the first recipient of the Helen Keller International Award for Outstanding Service to the Blind.

Colonel Baker, blind since a bullet passed through the bridge of his nose in World War One, is managing director of the Canadian Institute for the Blind. He was cited "for his international activities as a pioneer in the drive to expand, for the benefit of millions of blind people in the emergent countries, ideas and techniques which have been developed in a few countries."

In an interview afterward, Colonel Baker said there are 2,000,000 people totally blind in India alone and by Canada's definition of blindness the number would reach 7,000,000. To cure such a number is impossible and the logical attack is against diseases causing blindness, many of which can be prevented.

Prof. W. F. Ade, B.A. '33, chairman of the Department of Modern Languages, Purdue University Calumet Center, Indiana, recently completed all requirements for his second earned doctorate, the Doctor of Education degree, at Indiana University. The degree was conferred on him at Indiana's commencement in June.

In 1949 Professor Ade received his Ph.D. degree in Germanics and Comparative linguistics as major and French and English as minor from Northwestern University. As a Fullbright Fellow in Germany in 1955-56 he was enrolled for post-doctoral studies in the Universities of Heidleberg, Munich, and Erlangen, receiving a Certificate for Post-Doctoral Study from each.

Dr. Ade teaches German, French, and English at Purdue University Calumet Center. This summer he conducted a two-month de luxe tour through ten countries in Europe, including trips to the French and Italian Riviera, Capri, Lucerne, the Oberammergau Passion Play, London, Paris, Edinburgh, Geneva, Vienna, Venice, and Rome.

J. Wilfred Eggleston, B.A. '26, director of the Department of Journalism at Carleton University, has been commissioned by the National Capital Commission to write a book on the City of Ottawa.

The book will deal with the history of Ottawa as the Capital of Canada, and with the work of the various government commissions who have been responsible for National Capital development. It will be an official book published by the Queen's Printer, and will be on sale in the Spring of 1961.

Professor Eggleston is president of the Canada Foundation, a member of the editorial board of the Canadian Geographic, and is the author of seven major works including a novel, High Plains, a book of poetry, Prairie Moonlight, and Other Lyrics; two volumes of literary criticism The Frontier and Canadian Letters and the Green Gable Letters. Three historical works are included in Mr. Eggleston's work: Scientists at War, Canada at Work, and The Road to Nationhood.

● Guy Curtis is one of the legendary athletic heroes of Queen's. Over a period of many years, more than he was in actual attendance at classes, he starred for Queen's in hockey and football. Today the students still sing

. . . Remember Captain Curtis and the conquerors of Yale!

although they may not have more than a vague idea of who Captain Curtis was or why he should be remembered.

In this interesting flashback, Dr. James M. Young, Arts '02, Med. '04, relates some of his experiences with the Guy Curtis of his day:

Guy Curtis was no myth in the fall of 1898 when I entered Queen's as a freshman. As a matter of fact he was my mentor. The thought came to me recently that it might be of interest to the football fraternity to recall a few personal experiences on the campus.

Since his active rugby days in the late 80's and early 90's it had become a habit to Guy Curtis to take a holiday in Kingston every fall and invariably he spent his afternoons roaming along the sidelines of the old upper campus. I need hardly say that he had the respect and admiration of the campus and indeed there was a soft spot in the hearts of the players for Guy Curtis.

So it was my good fortune to find Curtis on the sidelines when I walked out for my first practice in rugby. I had never seen a rugby football, was a seasoned lacrosse player, had played soccer and baseball on the town teams of Renfrew, and had been taught the manly art of self defence by my father, a fine boxer. I was assigned a position at outside wing on the scrub team facing the first team back division.

During the practice I anticipated a play by the Quarter as he ran toward my end of the line – a pass to the left half – I broke through, intercepted the ball and had speed enough to outrun the full back for a try.

Guy Curtis saw that play, the initiative, the timing, the speed. When I returned to my position I was called over to the sideline. His first words to me were, "Young, you are going to play outside for Queen's, but that was a rotten play." He spoke mildly, adorned and enforced his argument with a artistic turn to some biblical phrases that were new to me, and yet did not appear to be vulgar. He had me on the hook and kept me there while he initiated me into the position of Outside Wing with its responsibility. I had been guilty of leaving my position. He reminded me that I was one of fourteen and a play, such as I had made, would let the team down. Had I missed the interception of the ball the Half would have had a clear get-away and I would have been out of the play. The lesson was impressive, and by concentrating on my error he clarified my responsibility at outside. In the next five years that I patrolled my beat, that lesson was never forgotten.

A few weeks later I was playing with Queen's III, against the Cadets in a morning game on the R.M.C. grounds. It was soon evident that the opposing Outside had been instructed to hang on to me and he certainly was doing a good job of it, as I just could not get away. Once again fortune smiled upon me; there was Curtis on the sideline beckoning to me. He was indignant about the refereeing and had some warm words for the referee: "That fellow should be thrown off for scragging you." Then he told me to first warn the chap and then let him have one. The instructions were carried out neatly and with dispatch, and Curtis had the answer for me. I never recall any further scragging during my football days.

One lovely October day as we were stretched out on the campus waiting for practice, I watched Curtis instructing the three-man scrimmage. The late Rev. D. L. Gordon was left scrimmager. At that time the three-man scrimmage went into action interlocked and Curtis was trying to explain to D. L. how to brace himself for a possible thrust by the Inside Wing. The scrimmage would go into action and Curtis simulating the thrust had repeatedly thrown the scrimmage off balance. Finally as the scrimmage went into action Curtis stood back and then kicked D. L. in the pants and started running away roaring in laughter with D. L. after him ready to scalp him. I have a visual picture in my memory of that hilarious scene. The kick worked; D. L. mastered the necessary technique in co-ordination and was a tower of strength to the line.

In 1900 we won the Intercollegiate.

In 1902, as Captain of Queen's, I contacted Guy Curtis at his home in Delta, through the good offices of the late E. J. Williams, M.D., of Brockville who had played Outside for us in 1900.

In due time I had a letter from Curtis in which he graphically described a play we might use against Varsity to meet a threat of a Halfback with a punting record of 50 to 60 yards. He summarized in these words. "Kick high, kick short, everybody onside and go into them for their home's in heaven."

The outside wings were to drop back to be onside when our Half kicked the ball and their speed would put everybody onside and they would have the green light to grab the ball as no yards had to be given.

Guy Curtis had a pleasing personality with a humorous twinkle. He was a Queen's man; his heart was in the game, and he loved the campus and was happiest as he strolled along the sidelines.

I have always felt under a debt of gratitude to Guy Curtis. The keen interest he had taken in me and the forecast he had made on a snap diagnosis helped me more fully to appreciate his enlightened coaching.

PROF. J. A. ROY

Professor James A. Roy, who retired in 1950 after teaching at Queen's for thirty years, returned to the campus this year as a member of the staff of Summer School. Professor Roy has been living in active retirement in Edinburgh.

The Prospects For Football

Majority of 1959 Team Eligible To Play This Year

Experienced Players Available For Quarterback Position

● What kind of a football team are we going to have this fall? This is a question frequently heard at this time of year as the summer comes to a close and students are winding up their vacation jobs and the graduates are closing their cottages for the season. No one is more interested in the answer to that question than Head Football Coach Frank Tindall as he pores over his charts and runs the films of last year's games for the umpteenth time.

One encouraging fact is that so many of last year's team are returning. Via the graduation route the Tricolor lost the services of eight, although some may be coming back for postgraduate work. Three more won't be eligible because of examination difficulties, which is a somewhat better record than has been the case in recent years.

Those who will be coming back are: ends—Captain Don Robb, Peter Thompson, and Gord Dougall; tackles—Gary Lucenti, Frank Hawkins, Sam Poaps, Bill Miklas; guards – Bill Johnson, George Bethune; centre – John Ware; backs – Terry Porter, Mike Wicklum, Mike Pettit, Wayne McGill, Robin Ritchie, Dick Pearce, Brian Todd, Bob McAleese, Norm Dunstan, Don McNay; fullbacks—Gary Strickler, Dave Pasloski, Dave Skene. If the Plumley boys, Kent and Don, return for further studies, as planned, then the squad will be strengthened with an experienced quarterback and end.

Pete Wityk, the standout rookie tackle of two years ago, will be eligible for Intercollegiate competition and his return will bolster the line. Also, Cal Connor, the good little quarterback of 1958 who was not at Queen's last year, has been attending Summer School and hopes to rejoin the squad.

Up from the Intermediates are such promising candidates as the Rasmussen boys, Don and Laird, John Erickson, Dave Sonshine, son of Harry who was a standout player in the thirties, Gord Simister, Neil Wilson and Bill Watson.

With the elimination of the freshman rule in college ranks, Coach Tindall may be able to find some promising material among the new crop of students. Some good prospects have applied for admission and the picture will be a lot clearer after the matriculation results have been announced. There will be at least one husky boy in this group – Frank Tindall, Jr.

Queen's finished in third place in the league last fall, defeating McGill twice and losing two to Varsity by a narrow margin. In the two games with Western the Tricolor lost decisively, but gave the ultimate champions a good run for their money before defensive lapses in the final quarter lowered the boom.

Formation of a Quarterback Club was one outcome of the highly successful meeting. The master of ceremonies was Ed Quinn, Arts '55. The guests were welcomed by the new president, Ken Church, Com. '42.

Rain Fails To Spoil Edmonton Branch Picnic

A new venture of the Edmonton branch, a picnic planned for July 23, was rained out, but in spite of the elements all who attended had a good time.

The programme planned by the committee in charge went by the boards as rain forced the party indoors. Cards and checkers and conversation were substituted for outdoor activities, and were enjoyed by the forty-one who were on hand.

The happy affair was held at the summer home of Mrs. F. W. Wootton (Christena Dyde), Arts '14, at Whitewood Lake, approximately forty-five miles west of Edmonton. The guest of honour was the oldest living alumna of Queen's, Mrs. S. W. Dyde (Jennie Farrell), Arts '88, aged ninety-eight.

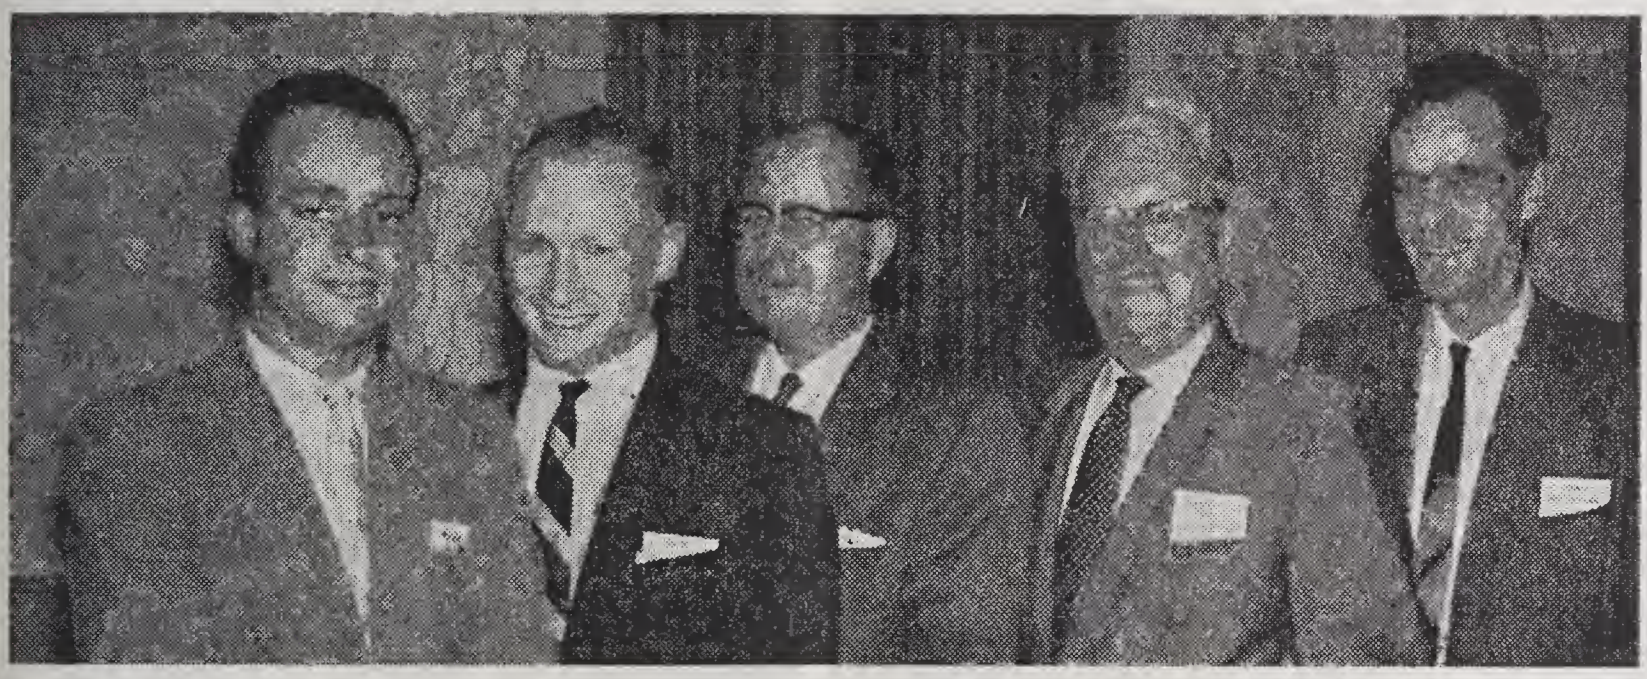

In charge of arrangements was the president, W. H. Crowe, Sc. '47.

The executive is making plans for another event this fall, which will probably take the form of a dance.

What has TIME done to Your LIFE INSURANCE?

Everyone knows what can happen to the performance of a car that isn't serviced regularly. The same risk of "poor performance" holds true for your life insurance if you neglect to keep it up to date. Time brings changes in your life that in turn create the need for a review of your policies. Perhaps new beneficiaries should be appointed. Perhaps the method by which benefits are to be paid, either by income or by single amount, is no longer in your family's best interest. What would a careful review of your policies reveal? That you have more than enough life insurance—or that time has brought new needs for protection and saving?

By keeping in touch with the Man from Manufacturers you can be sure your life insurance is arranged to do the job you want it to do. Why not call him for a policy "check-up" today?

The meter that measures our standard of living

It measures kilowatt-hours . . . and as the kilowatt-hours grow, it indicates the ever-greater role of electricity in making our lives easier and more enjoyable.

Abundant low-cost electricity probably contributes more to our standard of living than any other factor. It creates opportunity for industry and business . . . it speeds the production of goods . . . it opens the way to hundreds of thousands of better-paying jobs for Canadians.

Kilowatt-hours cost so little—but think of what they can do. In the home, low-cost electricity can bring a world of convenience, comfort and service. Planned lighting brings glare-free new pleasure and charm to every room—at the flick of a finger. In the kitchen and laundry electrical appliances save time and toil. Television and many other products contribute to our leisure and entertainment.

Are you making full use of inexpensive electricity?

LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

To make full use of modern electrical equipment—in home, office or factory—an adequate wiring system is essential. Your local power company, provincial Electric Service League or any qualified electrical contractor will assist you in planning to "Live Better . . . Electrically".

Chancellor Installed

Dr. J. B. Stirling Takes Declaration of Fidelity

Prime Minister J. G. Diefenbaker Among Recipients of Honorary Degrees

Before a capacity crowd which filled Grant Hall to overflowing and which included Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, Dr. John Bertram Stirling was installed as the eighth Chancellor of Queen's in a dignified ceremony at autumn convocation on October 20.

Ian MacLachlan, secretary of the University Council, presented the Chancellor-elect to the Vice-Chancellor and Principal, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, who administered the Declaration of Fidelity. The Chancellor was robed by Dr. Lorne Pierce, representing the University Council, and by H. G. Conn, Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science.

As the Principal presented the new senior officer of the University to the audience, the students in the gallery gave a thunderous rendition of the Queen's yell, in which the graduates and friends joined.

In his address Dr. Stirling, who is the president of E. G. M. Cape and Company, one of Canada's oldest construction firms, pointed out that engineers in growing numbers are replacing other professional men as managers in industry and business. He cited the case of four recent elections of engineers as university chancellors: Dr. R. E. Powell, McGill University; Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Dalhousie University; Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, Carleton University; and himself.

At the conclusion of his address Dr. Stirling presided at Convocation. Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on The Right Honourable John George Diefenbaker, Prime Minister of Canada; Hon. Mr. Justice D. C. Abbott, Chancellor of Bishop's University; James F. MacLaren, consulting engineer, Toronto, Ont.; and R. E. Powell, Chancellor of McGill University. An honorary Doctor of Science degree was conferred on Dr. C. S. Beals, Dominion Astronomer, Ottawa, Ont.

The Prime Minister replied on behalf of the recipients of honorary degrees. He spoke of Queen's as one of the greatest universities of this nation, and one that found no equal in the speed with which it established a Faculty of Law and the necessary quarters for it.

"The new law building is a memorial to Sir John A. Macdonald," said Mr. Diefenbaker; "a man who not only pioneered Confederation in Canada, but was also one of four men who put forward resolutions in the Assembly of Upper Canada which led to the bill incorporating Queen's University."

"Sir John A. Macdonald was one of the first men to receive an honorary LL.D. from Queen's," he said, "but other prime ministers have been similarly honoured." He did not name them, but they were Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfred Laurier, Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, and Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent.

CITATIONS

Douglas Charles Abbott—learned in the law, distinguished in his public service in the House of Commons, the Cabinet and on the Bench, Chancellor of a sister University, whose cheerful tolerance and robust good sense have been dimmed neither by the devious calculations of finance nor in the dark labyrinths of the law.

Carlyle Smith Beals—distinguished astrophysicist and administrator, Dominion Astronomer, who has pursued his notable career from a Nova Scotian village to the far galaxies of the universe, one of a vanishing group of Canadians still permitted to use the word, Dominion.

John George Diefenbaker—learned in the law, one of Her Majesty's Privy Council, Prime Minister of Canada; in his profession of the law, tireless and impassioned in his defence of the rights of the individual; in public office, champion of a vigorous Canadianism, who recently in the United Nations has spoken as the authentic voice of Canada.

James Ferris MacLaren—distinguished civil engineer, whose skill and experience have contributed greatly to the safety and amenities of Canadian urban life and whose integrity and concern for standards have won the esteem of his fellow engineers.

Ray Edwin Powell—Chancellor of a sister university to whose affairs he has brought great talents and a devoted and generous interest; an industrialist, whose bold vision and powerful execution have contributed a gallant chapter to Canadian history.

REUNION 1960

Classes of 1910
Well Represented
For Fiftieth Reunion

Five Hundred Graduates
Attend Reunion
Weekend Festivities

Reunion 1960 was an unqualified success from every angle—the weather was perfect, the opportunities for communion were plentiful, and the football team overpowered their ancient rivals from Toronto in convincing fashion.

It is estimated that there were five hundred, half the number who were on hand last year because of the smaller classes scheduled for a reunion. All events, official and unofficial, were well attended and the impression was gained that all concerned enjoyed themselves.

The Classes of 1910, scheduled for their fiftieth anniversary, were well represented. Among those present were:

Arts '10—Miss Mary Anglin, Kingston, Ont.; Miss Bertha Bailey, Kingston, Ont.; Miss May Chown, Kingston, Ont.; George E. Copeland, Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. A. D. Cornett (Jean Macalister), Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. Norman Davies (Ada Richardson), Toronto, Ont.; Mrs. J. C. D. d'Esterre (Georgina Reid), Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. G. A. Jenkins (Hattie Davidson), Cambridge, Mass.; Dr. Norman Miller, Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. S. B. Smith (Etta Bailey), Ottawa, Ont.; Mrs. E. L. Rice (Henrietta Henderson), Kingston, Ont.; Miss Della Stewart, Strathroy, Ont.; Dr. G. N. Urie, Ottawa, Ont.

Medicine '10—Dr. R. M. Fergusson, Smith Falls, Ont.; Dr. H. C. Mabee, Kingston, Ont.

Science '10—Dr. Alan A. Bateman, New Haven, Conn.; McLaren Ewart, Medicine Hat, Alta.; Arthur A. Holland, Pensacola, Florida; R. M. McKenzie, Burlington, Ont.

Classes of earlier vintage were represented by William James Russell, Arts '00, Crystal City, Man., who impressed all with his vim and vigor and with his tales of football at the turn of the century. Mr. Russell had played under the tutelage of Guy Curtis. Also on hand were E. W. Henderson, Sc. '05, and Mrs. Henderson of St. Catharines.

The senior graduates were the guests of the Alumni Association at the football game and at the Reunion Dinner in Wallace Hall on Saturday night. They were presented with sterling silver spoons bearing the Queen's crest and the inscription "Fiftieth Reunion." The presentation was made by Dr. John E. Hammett, of New York City, president of the Alumni Association.

Features of the weekend programme included a tea in the Students' Union on Friday afternoon, a bus tour of the city and the campus under the direction of Dr. H. W. Curran, director of the Department of Extension and, also, incidentally, president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce; a reception in Grant Hall on Friday night, attended by upwards of 300 alumni, friends, and members of staff, at which refreshments were served by members of the Kingston alumnae branch.

On Saturday several of the classes held meetings, mostly in the men's residences. The football game provided a most pleasant afternoon as Queen's took over an early lead, outplayed the Blue and White for most of the afternoon, and walked off with a decisive 26-13 victory. After the game there was a tea in Ban Righ Hall, at which Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Mackintosh greeted the guests; the tea was served by members of the Women's Faculty Club, under the direction of Mrs. W. G. Leonard, president. In the evening there was a reception and buffet at the LaSalle Hotel, for the younger members of recent classes and for graduates for whom no reunions were scheduled, and at Wallace Hall in the Students' Memorial Union. Dances in Grant Hall and the Gymnasium attracted many of the graduates later in the evening. The programme closed on Sunday with a University church service conducted by Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain.

Arnold Edinborough, formerly a member of the staff of the English Department at Queen's and now editor of Saturday Night, was the guest speaker at the Reunion Dinner in Wallace Hall. He regaled his audience with reminiscences of his days at the University and added just the right note to the happy proceedings.

Dr. John J. Deutsch, vice-principal (administration), acted as chairman and introduced the senior graduates individually and the reunion classes collectively. James Russell, as the sole representative of Arts '00, brought down the house with a spirited rendition of his year yell:

Hark! Hark! The Angels Thundered!
Queen's! Queen's! Nineteen Hundred!

Greetings from the University were extended by Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Principal. He gave the graduates a warm welcome and invited them to see for themselves the many changes that had taken place since the years they had been students on the campus.

N. G. Stewart, Arts '11, Sc. '15, led the group in a rousing sing-song featuring some of the old Queen's favourites popular on the campus years ago. He was accompanied by Mrs. E. M. Van Koughnett (Margery Booth), Arts '24.

Reunion Notes

Classes represented at the Reunion Dinner included those of Arts, '24, '25, '27, '35, Science '24, '25, '35, Medicine

Medicine '46 had a dinner at the Capri. . . . Arts '43, '44, '45 and '46 were at the LaSalle Hotel buffet. . . . The members of Science '58 and '59 and Arts '60 also joined the reception and buffet at the LaSalle.

Graduates who had not seen the campus in many years were greatly impressed with the many changes. All the new buildings were admired, none more than the new men's and women's residences. . . . Coffee was served in Leonard Hall on Saturday morning and many alumni took advantage of the opportunity to look through the newest unit of the men's residences. . . . One of the clearest impressions carried away by one of the senior visitors was that the Queen's spirit had not dimmed through the years.

SIR JOHN A. MacDONALD HALL IS OFFICIALLY OPENED

LAW BUILDING OPENED

● The new Faculty of Law building, named in honour of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first Prime Minister, was opened formally on October 20 by Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker. He also unveiled a portrait of a long-time friend of Queen's, the late Hon. W. F. Nickle, former attorney-general for Ontario.

Sir John A. Macdonald Hall, built of the limestone typical of all Queen's buildings, provides a modern, well-planned home for the law school, which was revived in 1957 after a lapse of many years.

The building provides classrooms and library facilities for 200 students and offices for ten to twelve faculty members. Separate wings give ideal accommodation for teaching and for research and library study. The one-storey teaching wing has three classrooms and four seminar rooms, several of which have semi-circular tiered seating. There are common rooms for students and faculty, and a coffee room. The classrooms are bright and airy.

A feature of the library wing is a spacious reading-room extending upwards two storeys with an open mezzanine on two sides. It is flanked by two floors of offices. The stacks have a capacity of 75,000 books and although the Faculty of Law is only in its fourth year, the library already has 30,000 volumes. An important contribution was the library of the late Hon. W. F. Nickle, given by his family.

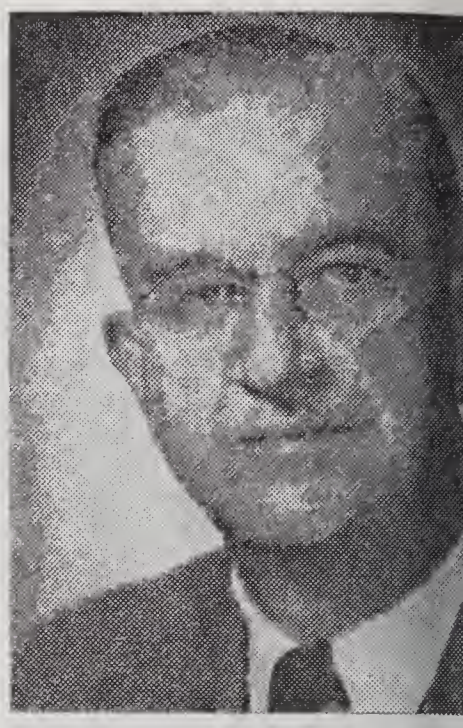

A collection of international law material second to none in this country will be the basis for some special emphasis upon the study at Queen's of international law, a subject of growing importance in a fast changing world. The school also has a valuable collection on criminology and penology.

Alumni Fund Grows

$86,024 in Hand By October 1

W. G. Cunningham Reports

Dr. J. E. Hammett Re-Appointed President of Alumni Association

Directors Decide To Send Review To All Graduates

● Dr. John E. Hammett, of New York City, was appointed for a second one-year term as president of the Alumni Association at the sixty-sixth semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors held at Queen's on October 8.

Also re-appointed for one-year terms were H. I. Marshall, Ottawa, Ont., as First Vice-President, and Dr. John Orr, Kingston, Ont., as Second Vice-President.

Appointed for a one-year term as additional Directors were: Dr. R. A. Macpherson, Winnipeg, Man., A. S. Robb, Belleville, Ont., S. F. Saunders, Orillia, Ont., N. G. Stewart, Kingston, Ont., and Graham Whidden, Toronto, Ont.

Announcement was made that in the annual election of Directors, for a three-year term, the following were elected: J. G. Anderson, Peterborough, Ont.; Miss Bessie Billings, Toronto, Ont.; Dean H. G. Conn, Kingston, Ont.; H. I. Marshall, Ottawa, Ont.; W. E. Soles, Quebec, P.Q.

At October 1 the sum of $86,024 had been received from 4,260 alumni, an increase of $4,000 over the same period last year, W. G. Cunningham, chairman of the National Alumni Fund Committee, reported. It was felt this was encouraging, inasmuch as past records show that donations increase more than proportionately during the last few months of the year. The objective for 1960 is $165,000 from 6,500 donors.

All Alumni Fund chairmen have been approached regarding personal canvasses this year. Reference was made to some of the canvasses planned for the larger centres. In the New York area Harold Searle has set up an organization that is a model of its kind. In Ottawa Wallace Muir is conducting a "Telethon," which has had excellent results elsewhere, and Montreal is planning a similar canvass. In Toronto, Mr. James Bavis has instituted a campaign by classes.

The list of Regular Annual Donors was almost tripled during the last six months. In the spring 800 alumni who had contributed regularly over the years were asked if they would like to become R.A.D.'s, which would mean they would be sent no appeals, but would receive a special reminder at a date of their choice. Approximately 600 replied in the affirmative, and there are now 850 listed as R.A.D.'s. It is hoped to build up this group to 2,000, to form a solid nucleus for the Fund.

The Board decided that starting January 1, 1961, the Review would be published six times a year, and copies of the magazine would be sent to the entire graduate body, provided that the necessary increase in the budget can be arranged with the University authorities.

A progress report was presented on the status of tax-exempt organizations such as Friends of Queen's Inc., which is under review at Washington, D.C., and the threat therein that the privilege of tax exemptions for contributions made by alumni of Canadian universities resident in the United States would be removed. The feeling was expressed that everything that could be done by alumni associations was being done and an effort should be made to enlist the aid and support of the Canadian universities at the top-administration level.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

Directors, branch representatives, and committee chairmen present at the fall meeting of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association were: Dr. B. G. Ballard, Ottawa, Ont.; Dr. E. M. Boyd, Kingston, Ont.; B. W. Burgess, Montreal, Que.; C. R. Buss, Thorold, Ont.; Dr. O. A. Carson, Kingston, Ont.; William Coulby, Oshawa, Ont.; W. G. Cunningham, Kingston, Ont.; W. A. Dawson, Hamilton, Ont.; E. C. Delahay, New York, N.Y.; Miss Kay Elliott, Toronto, Ont.; D. G. Geiger, Toronto, Ont.; Dr. John E. Hammett, New York, N.Y.; J. A. H. Henderson, Montreal, Que.; Miss Marcella Jackson, Toronto, Ont.; Prof. D. M. Jemmett, Kingston, Ont.; Dr. C. H. McCuaig, Kingston, Ont.; Dr. W. A. L. McDonald, Trenton, Ont.; Dr. G. W. Mylks, Kingston, Ont.; Dr. John Orr, Kingston, Ont.; George Perrin, Ottawa, Ont.; W. R. Richmond, Toronto, Ont.; C. B. Ross, Timmins, Ont.; Mrs. G. O. Saunders, Kingston, Ont.; N. G. Stewart, Kingston, Ont.; Miss Kathryn Walsh, Ottawa, Ont.; Mrs. Lilyan Wiley, Toronto, Ont.

The need for closer relationship with the student body so that new graduates would be interested in and informed about the Alumni Association was stressed in a lively discussion. Among the suggestions put forward were student participation in the Reunion Weekend programme, e.g., an Alma Mater Society reception, Open House, and special events; human interest stories in the Journal, literature, and the like.

Representatives of branches who reported on their club programmes were: J. G. Anderson, Peterborough; Dr. W. A. L. McDonald Belleville; William Coulby, Oshawa; Bruce Ross, Porcupine; George Perrin, Ottawa; B. W. Burgess, Ste. Anne de Bellevue; E. C. Delahay, New York Society; W. R. Richmond, Toronto; Miss Kathryn Walsh, Ottawa Alumnae; Mrs. G. O. Saunders, Kingston Alumnae; Miss Marcella Jackson, Toronto Alumnae; C. R. Buss, Niagara; W. A. Dawson, Hamilton.

GO YOU GAELS!

Football Team Heads the League

Plays Exciting Brand of Ball In Setting Early Pace

● Queen's supporters all over the country were elated to discover that the senior football team was a strong contender for league honours when Coach Frank Tindall unveiled this year's edition of the Golden Gaels.

In pre-season games the Tricolour romped through two wins over intermediate teams, 48-0 against O.A.C. and 54-0 over R.M.C., and what was even more encouraging a 38-31 victory over the McGill Redmen. The Gaels were deep in strength at most positions and Coach Tindall had a difficult task in cutting his squad down to the limits he was permitted to carry.

In league play Queen's lived up to its early promise. The team nosed out McGill 28-27 in the opening league encounter, and handily defeated Toronto 26-13 before a large Reunion crowd. The victory skein was rudely broken in London when the Western Mustangs won by 21-10, but in the return engagement in Kingston the following week the Gaels turned back Western 36-0 and again hopes were riding high.

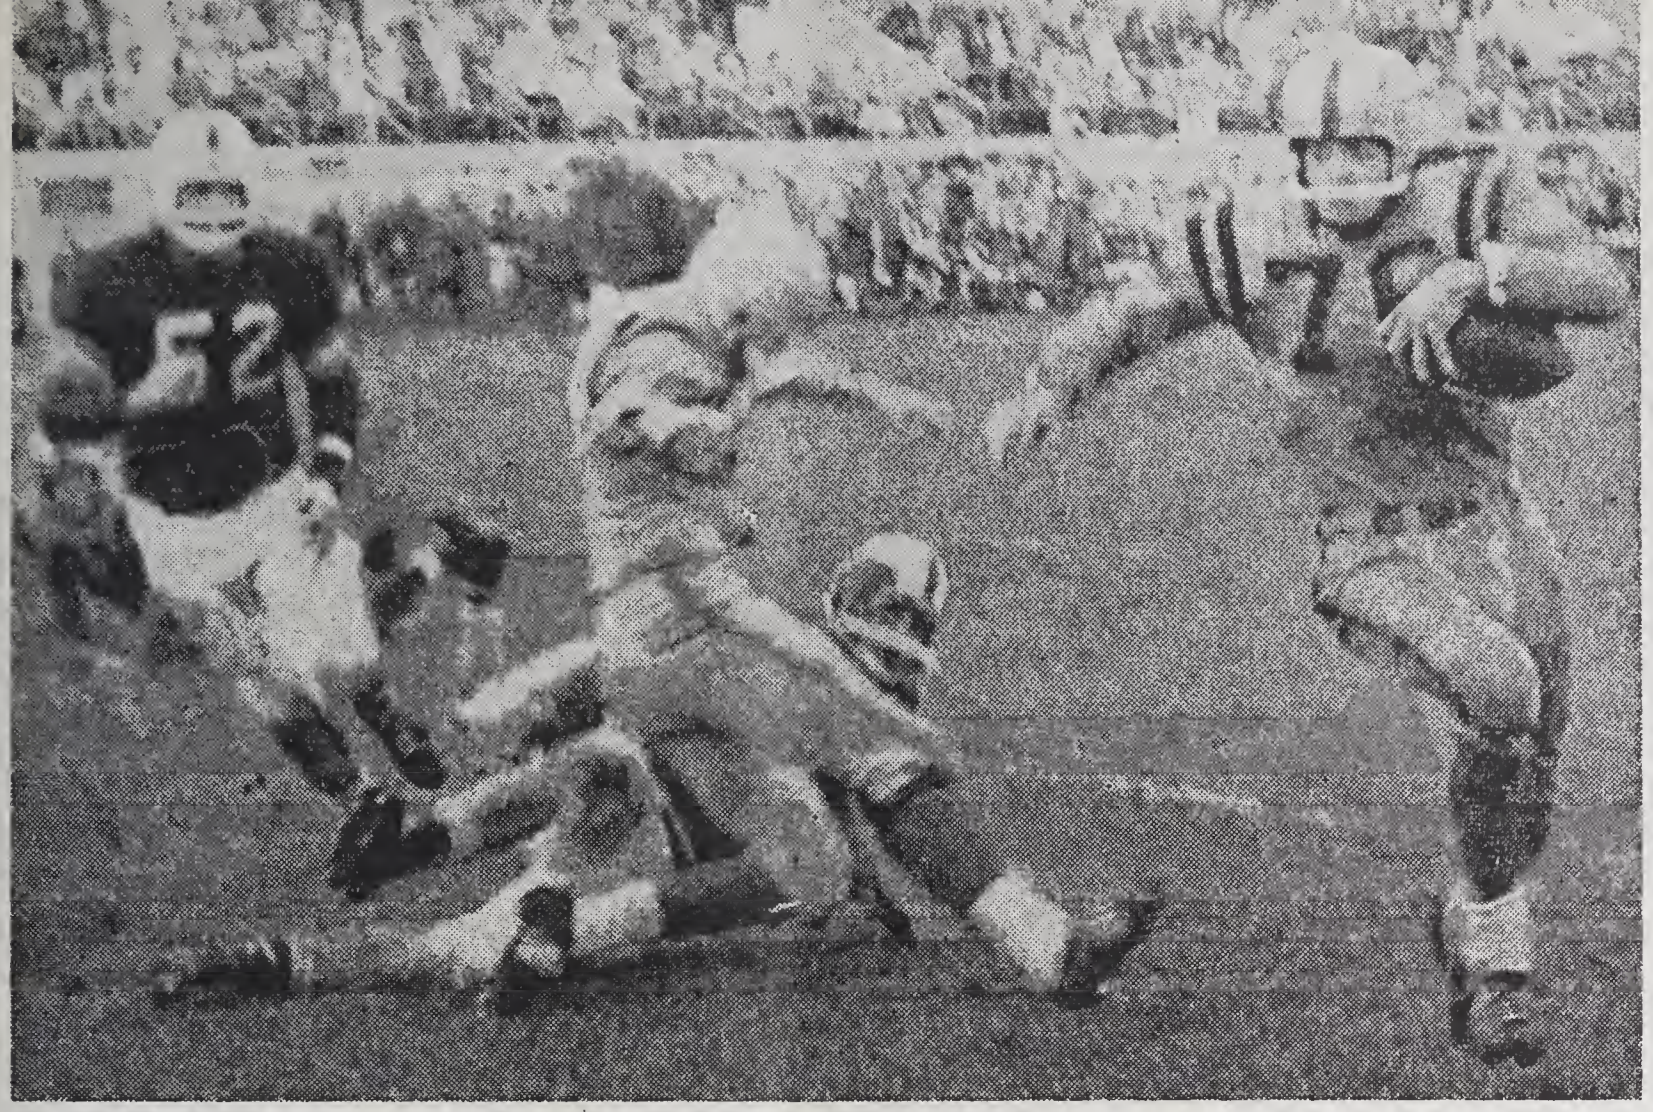

As this is being written Queen's is in first place with three wins and one defeat, Western and McGill are tied with two wins and two losses, and Toronto, early-season favourites, bring up the rear with one win in four starts.

In Montreal on October 1 the margin of victory could not have been narrower. Queen's scored four touchdowns and converted three, while McGill racked up four T.D.'s and converted two. It was a real cliff-hanger, with the issue in doubt right up to the final whistle. In the last minute the Redmen had the ball deep in Queen's territory, but the right side of the Queen's line, led by defensive-end John De La Vergne, threw back McGill's bread-and-butter runner, Bob Milligan, on a third down and a yard-to-go situation. Milligan was stopped a yard short of the Queen's 26-yard line and a first down, and that was the ball game.

The Gaels got their touchdowns on a three-yard drive off tackle by Robin Ritchie, a Cal Connor pass of 30 yards to end Don Robb, and two end runs of four and six yards by Connor.

Before a happy homecoming crowd in Kingston the Gaels showed great strength in upsetting Varsity 26-13. Two field goals by Robin Ritchie starting things rolling, and a touchdown by Ritchie and another by Gord Simester after running 42 yards through the entire Toronto team, both converted by Ritchie, gave Queen's a 20-0 lead at the half. The home forces faltered in the third quarter and Toronto scored a touchdown, but the threat was wiped out when Mike Pettit caught a 10-yard pass all alone in the end zone. Varsity scored another major on the last play of the game, but the fire was out by that time.

It was a confident group that set out for London the following week and, in truth, the squad looked like world-beaters, boasting a 10-0 lead at the end of the first quarter on the strength of Robin Ritchie's field goal and Dave Skene's touchdown. But from that point on the Purple and White took charge and the lead shrunk to 10-7 at the half, and the final score was 21-10. It was

WICKLUM SCORES!

Mike Wicklum, speedy halfback of the Golden Gaels, is shown crossing the Western goal-line for a touchdown. Most of the scoring this year has been done by Robin Ritchie, who leads the league in this respect, Mike Wicklum, and Cal Connor, quarterback, who directs the attack.

Western's day, as the home team outplayed the Gaels to the enjoyment of the large homecoming crowd.

The next Saturday it was a different story. Queen's dominated the play from the beginning and, what is more important, kept up the pace throughout as the fans boomed their approval. Robin Ritchie had himself quite a day, picking up two touchdowns, making four converts, and scoring a single on an attempted field goal. It remained for the dynamic Mike Wicklum to bring the supporters to their feet as the fleet speedster burst around the left end in the second quarter and raced 70 yards for a touchdown, 55 yards of it straight down the sideline as he outdistanced three pursuers.

By the time this reaches print the ultimate champions will probably be known. No matter how it turns out it has been an exciting year for the fans. The league strength has been evenly distributed with any one team being capable of knocking off its opponent on any given day. An interesting development has been the showing made by Queen's and McGill against their habitually stronger rivals.

Postscript

In the return game against Varsity, in Toronto, Queen's won out 21-6. The stubborn, hard-tackling Gael defence set up two touchdowns and kept the University of Toronto well in check. In the first quarter George Bethune recovered a fumble on the Varsity 13-yard line. Gord Simester made ten yards, and Robin Ritchie hit paydirt on a slice off tackle. In the second quarter Cal Connor went round the end to score on a play that had been set up from a fumble after a crashing tackle by Dave Skene. The final Queen's touchdown came on a 41-yard drive which culminated with Mike Wicklum scoring on an end run from the three-yard line. Varsity counted a major in the first quarter, but was held off the scoreboard thereafter.

Sudbury and District Alumni Hear Report on the University

"The Outlook for Queen's" was the subject of an interesting address given by Dr. W. A. Mackintosh at a dinner meeting held at the Idylwylde Club, Sudbury, on September 12.

The Principal reported on the changes in staff, plant, and curriculum in the last few years. He also gave a picture of what might be expected in the immediate future. He pointed out that Queen's might expect a moderate increase in enrolment, but was not subject to the pressures experienced by universities in metropolitan centres. He said the emphasis would continue to be on quality, not quantity.

Dr. Mackintosh was introduced by R. H. Waddington, Sc. '23, and was thanked by A. J. DeDiana, Arts '31. The president, L. G. W. Jarvis, Sc. '49, was in the chair.

HOW MUCH LIFE INSURANCE SHOULD YOU OWN?

Most of us have asked this question only to discover there is no ready-made answer because needs and circumstances vary from family to family. The father of three children has greater needs and responsibilities than the young man who has just recently married. Some people have more substantial financial reservers than others. How much Life Insurance should you own to meet YOUR needs? Would it be $15,000?—$25,000?—$50,000 or more?

The Man from Manufacturers is in business to help you arrive at the right answer. Through his Security Graph Service you yourself can determine if you have enough life insurance to do the job you want done. Ask him about this special service today.

Retirement Every Year!

THE ALASKA BROWN BEAR is the biggest meat-eating animal in the world, often attaining a height of ten feet when he rears up on his hind legs. Like all bears, the 'brownie' hibernates in winter. Soon after the first snow falls, he finds a cave or a deep shelter under an overhanging ledge of rock. There he curls up and sleeps until spring.

The bear 'retires' for several months every year, sustained by the fat stored in his body. When human beings retire, however, they don't receive the same help from Nature. They turn instead to their life insurance. Nothing can make a man's retirement years more financially secure than a portfolio of Sun Life policies tailored to his requirements. The Sun Life is one of the great life insurance companies of the world, with branches and representatives from coast to coast in North America and in many other countries.

Call To Istanbul

For three generations MacCallums have honoured this university of their graduation.

Dr. Frederick MacCallum was one of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel MacCallum to study at Queen's. Edith MacCallum (Laird), eldest daughter of Frederick and Mima MacCallum, gave much of her life to work in the Middle East.

This is Lyman's story.

Elizabeth holds her Queen's M.A., 1917, and after distinguished service in the Department of External Affairs, and an honorary degree from Queen's became the first woman to head a Canadian mission abroad, as charge d'affaires, opening Canada's Ministry in Lebanon. She is now on retirement leave in Turkey.

Reid, following creditable overseas service in World War One, completed his course and became Professor of Philosophy at the University of Toronto in a brilliant career cut short by his tragically early death from a heart attack.

Frances MacCallum (Crowther), graduating in Arts, has become a distinguished welfare uorker on the Pacific (U.S.A.) coast.

Charlotte Whitton, M.A. '17, LL.D. '41, is a classmate and friend of Dr. Elizabeth MacCallum.

Who would think to find, lurking behind the title of this book, commended by a friend high in North Carolina's beautiful mountains, as delightful and homey vignettes of Kingston and Queen's, in the first far-off decade of this century, as one could hope to read?

For this is the story, modestly, simply, yet beautifully told, largely through his own letters, of as fine and devoted, and withal as humble, a man as Queen's ever admitted to her household of faith and learning. It is nothing other than a running record written by a quiet English woman, in complete self-effacement, of the life of a good man, who steadfastly sought the good and decent in life and, finding them in his Christian belief devoted his days to bringing the riches of that truth to another people.

This is the story of Lyman MacCallum of the Queen's MacCallums. The first Canadian MacCallum, Daniel, came to Glengarry from Scotland. He married a Scottish Canadian, Janet McEwen of Montreal, and, in the goodly custom of the times, sent his son, Frederick, to study theology "on the old Ontario strand." Simcoe County was "west country" then, and, posted there for "summer supply," the young theolog met and married Mima Reid, the Irish-Canadian school teacher, from whom the MacCallums drew much of their whimsical charm.

When their first child, Edith, was but an infant the MacCallums took up their life work—missionary educationalists in Turkey, training young Armenians for the Christian ministry, under the Mission Board of the U.S.A. Congregationalist Church.

There the four younger children were born—Lyman, Reid, Elizabeth and Frances, all of whom, along with Edith, came in turn to Kingston for secondary schooling and on to Queen's.

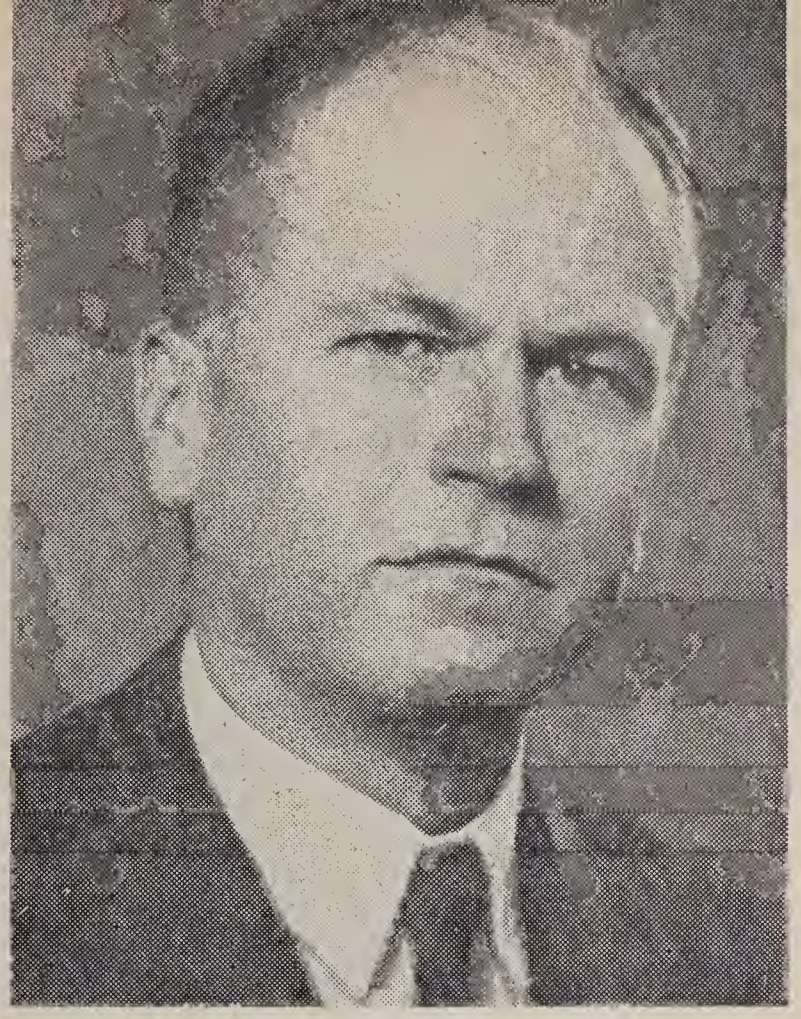

One by one they made their home with the quiet grandparents—six of whose nine children had gone to college—under the strong but gentle guidance of the household's presiding member of the family, "Aunt Edith," whom their contemporary friends remember with grateful warmth.

Of that home it was as true, as a friend wrote of the home from which they were severed in far-off Turkey—"courtesy, serenity, good humour, devotion to the highest ideals of Christlike character, with its pillars of justice and mercy—these are words that come to (my) mind as I think of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick MacCallum."

Through letters cherished by that lonely mother in the Turkish Mission Compound, the author delightfully interprets the life of old Kingston, the "growing up" of Edith and Lyman, and the latter's 1912 Freshman days in Science '16. For as a boy, even, he had decided that much of the hope of poor and ancient Turkey must turn upon today's international theme, growth to self-sufficiency in under-developed natural and economic resources.

But Lyman MacCallum's life was caught up in the cruel crisis of the early century.

"I was of the generation that fought the war to end war," he later wrote,

LYMAN MacCALLUM

"Death itself was not too big a price to pay. And the profound pessimism engendered by the fall from that great ideal to this tormented reality has eaten into our souls."

Through the heart-searching of his decision to seek active service, military camp at Queen's, at Ottawa, "in the exhibition grounds"; cruel, gruelling battle "somewhere in France," invaliding home, and the long gallant struggle, under his mother's daily care, to overcome the total disability of virulent tuberculosis—here is the quiet, continuous story of a developing strength and character, unfolding as naturally as if the record were the re-reading—as it is—of letters, cherished and brought forth again after death.

Then, the Treaty of Lausanne, Lyman wrote, "gave Turkey her independence but little else. . . . One might say that Turkey consisted of little besides the land, an exhausted peasantry in the last stages of poverty and a handful of officers and politicians with conflicting plans and idealisms. Out of these materials the restless and dynamic energy of Kemal Pasha was to build the new Turkey."

In 1925, at thirty-two years of age, his constitution never again robust, he became "God's gambler" with his own life and went home to his parents and Turkey. There the rest of his life was to be spent until its closing in 1955. His lode-stars were the translation of the Bible into Turkish, and, as agent of the American Bible Society (and later, in charge of one agency for both the British and American societies in "Bible Lands North"), to promote the circulation of the scriptures amongst the Turks, on "this very important frontier of life in our time where the Christian world and the world of Islam are in contact."

"Life is passing, has passed we may say, in comfort and enjoyment. But it has or had possibilities of emotion, intensity, effectiveness, understanding, that have seldom been attained. This is doubtless that fuller life which Jesus said He had come to give."

This manly affirmation of his faith, the strength and pride of his Christian convictions, were constant throughout the thirty rich years he gave to Turkey, "an ambassador of the Christian faith—and charity—within the frontiers of Islam."

There is strange witness throughout the Call to Istanbul to the God and Father of All, and none more so than in a memorable letter, written after "Shaker Bairam"—a children's fair at Karagumuruk.

Lyman had sought some quiet in "the serene courtyard of the mosque of the Conqueror."

"To the south, over the broken wall of a poor little garden plot, there was arrayed a scene of such heavenly calm that the heart greeted it with a startled cry and then scarcely dared to beat. Beyond the tumbled brown roofs of the city lay the Marmora, a wide bar of smooth, greenish glass. Against this gleaming floor the coastal hills of the Anatolian shore broke in wave upon wave of blue upon darker blue, rising as it were to a great foaming crest—Bithynian Olympus in its first coat of snow, now warmed to a soft glory by the rays of the sun which had already left our humbler world to nightfall.

"After the gaiety of children, after the thunderous worship, this peace, this calm, this strength and purity—yes, that was it, purity, holiness. Why here was God, revealing Himself to men on Shaker Bairam".

Happy the university which can have a part in the making of such men!

Addresses Theological Alumni

Dr. Burdett Harrison McNeel, chief of the mental health division of the Ontario Department of Health and associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Toronto, was the Chancellor's Lecturer at the sixty-eighth annual conference of the Theological Alumni Association October 18-20. The general theme of his lectures was "The Conditions of Life."

Professor Emeritus

P. G. C. CAMPBELL

● Professor emeritus of French Language and Literature and head of the Department at Queen's for forty-six years, Percy Gerald Cadogan Campbell died on November 13 in his eighty-second year.

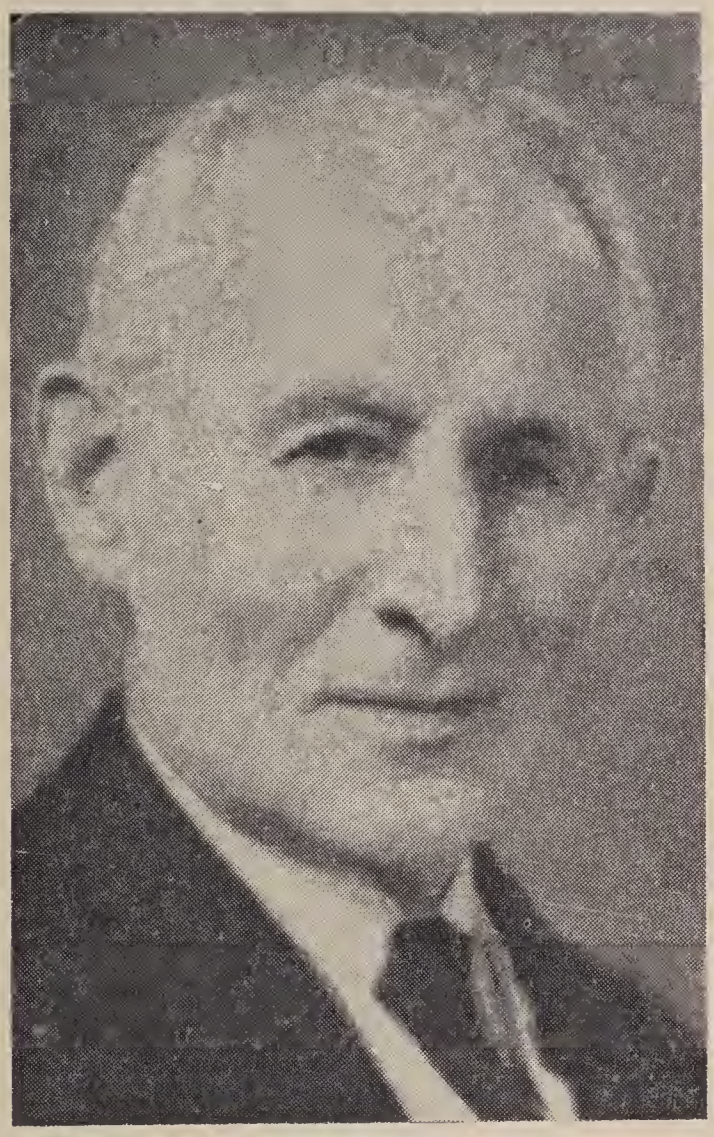

Professor Campbell came to Queen's in 1902, at the age of twenty-four, the last senior staff appointment made by Dr. George Monro Grant, Principal. He was an M.A. graduate of Oxford University. Later he obtained his doctorate at the University of Paris.

Dr. Campbell made two major contributions to the growth of Queen's. The first was his development of his own Department to one of the largest in the Faculty of Arts. The other was the establishment and development of the Officers' Training Corps and subsequent formation, training, and conveyance overseas of the 253rd Queen's University Highland Battalion during World War One, the only battalion that has been raised by any university anywhere.

His service to Queen's was equalled by his devotion to St. George's Cathedral in Kingston and its interests. He served for fifty-five years as vestry clerk and as a member of the choir. He retired last year as honorary treasurer of the Diocese of Ontario after twenty-six years. He was also lay delegate to the Synod of Ontario from St. George's Cathedral for the same period of time.

In 1949 Queen's gave him an honorary Doctor of Laws. His citation read: "The dean of the teaching staff of Queen's University, who during his long service of forty-six years charmed his colleagues by his urbanity and stimulated his students by his enthusiasm."

Thousands of Queen's graduates will recall with affection his cheerful and friendly disposition, his boundless energy, and his fine teaching ability. Versatile, energetic and catholic in his tastes, he was on the Queen's Quarterly Board for twenty-five years. He was long active in the Queen's Faculty Players, and he was one of the organizers of the Queen's Masonic Lodge. A fine athlete in his student days he remained an excellent tennis player late in life, and in 1922 he won the Canadian doubles badminton championship paired with the late Major H. P. Lafferty of Kingston, and the mixed doubles with Mrs. Campbell. His wife died in 1954.

Ian Cadogan Campbell, Arts '40, is a son. Another son, Rev. Charles Cadogan Campbell, took work extramurally and at Queen's Summer School.

Queen's Loses to McGill

In Intercollegiate

Play-off

Tricolour Completes

Regular Schedule

Tied for First Place

● Whoever writes the script for Intercollegiate senior football came up with a pleasing new angle this year with the Have-Nots, Queen's and McGill, fighting it out for league honours, and the Haves, Western and Toronto, bringing up the rear.

Queen's and McGill finished the regular schedule with four wins and two losses and the Redmen won the championship in a sudden-death play-off at Kingston. During the season there was little to choose between the two teams, but in the title game it was McGill all the way as the Gaels went down to defeat 21-0.

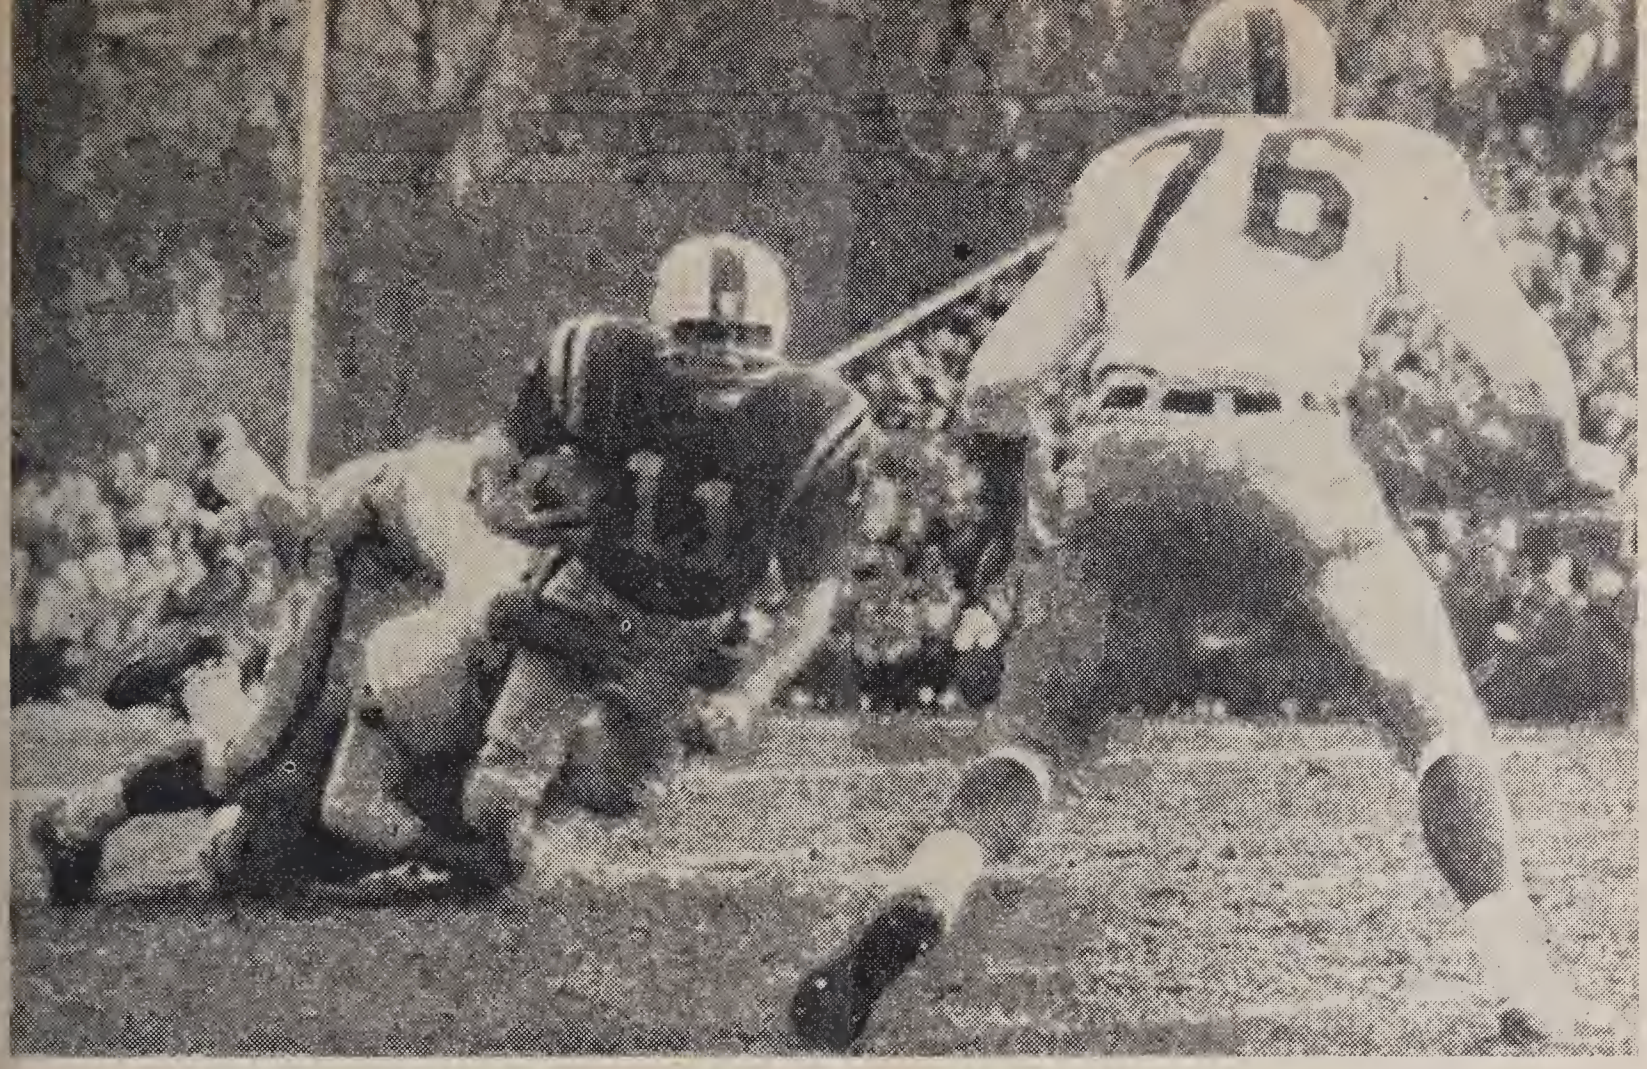

McGill forced the play-off by downing Queen's 15-9 in the last game of the schedule. This was one of the most exciting games of the year, as the Gaels took an early lead, on the strength of a first-quarter touchdown by Robin Ritchie. McGill bounced back to lead 8-6 at the half and added a touchdown in the fourth quarter, while the best Queen's could do was a field goal by Ritchie. The outcome was in doubt, however, right up to the final play, when McGill knocked down a Tricolour forward in the end zone.

Queen's had several opportunities which would have eliminated the Redmen, but fumbles and penalties at crucial moments bogged down their attack. McGill, on the other hand, made the most of their scoring opportunities, and the touchdown that gave them the winning margin came off a fake placement kick that caught the Gaels napping.

With the stage all set for the play-off, two thousand McGill supporters poured into the Richardson Stadium on November 12, hungry for their first title in twenty-two years. From the outset McGill took charge, scoring a converted touchdown in the first quarter, and adding another in the second, and still another in the third. Tom Skypeck, the all-star American quarterback, directed the McGill attack in scintillating fashion, and all three major scores came off his good passing arm. He mixed his plays cleverly, the line gave him plenty of protection. The tackling was savage on both sides, but the play was clean and the penalties were few, and there were no fumbles. Queen's tried hard, but to no avail as the Redmen bottled up the vaunted Tricolour offence effectively and penetrated the stubborn defence often enough to win by a decisive margin.

Not only did McGill outplay Queen's on this particular day, but the Redmen could do no wrong. Their receivers made one-hand catches and the ball always seemed to bounce to their advantage, which is not meant to take anything away from their victory but only serves to indicate the tide of battle.

For McGill victory was sweet, well-deserved, and long over-due. It has been twenty-two long years since the Yates Cup has gone to Montreal, and if it was not in the cards for Queen's to win, then even the most ardent Tricolour supporter would not begrudge the championship to McGill.

A CANADIAN ALL-STAR

The young man in a hurry, bearing Number 11, is none other than Ron Stewart, one of the all-time-great Queen's stars. Ronnie, who has played with the Ottawa Rough Riders for the past three years, had a brilliant season, winning the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy for his sportsmanlike behaviour in the Big Four, the Hiram Walker Trophy as the most valuable player on the Ottawa team, and the Schenley Award as the most valuable Canadian player in professional football. In the above picture he is shown playing against the Toronto Argonauts, with No. 76, Paul Fedor, who played with Ron at Queen's, waiting to tackle him.

Queen's seemed to hit their peak early in the season, while McGill achieved theirs in the play-off, with a 57-6 rout of Western thrown in along the way for good measure. The Gaels never looked better than they did in turning back the Varsity Blues 26-13 in the Reunion game at Kingston on October 8. The tackling was deadly, the timing of the plays was perfect, and the blocking was crisp. While the team showed to good advantage over the rest of the regular schedule they never performed quite as well as a unit again, with the possible exception of that 36-0 win over Western.

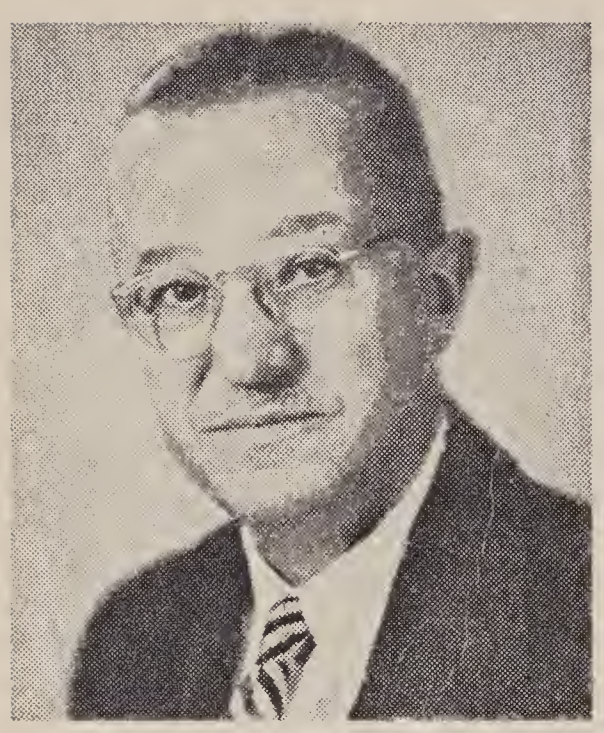

What of the prospects for next year? Queen's loses seven players via graduation—Mike Wicklum, Bob McAleese, Wylie Watson, John Ware, Sam Poaps, Captain Don Robb, Frank Hawkins. These men will be missed, but every college team faces depletions every year. If the remainder of the squad are eligible to play then Queen's should have the nucleus of another strong team.

The league's scoring leader was Robin Ritchie, who ran up a total of sixty-two points on the strength of six touchdowns, twelve converts, four field goals and two singles. Ritchie was one of seven Queen's players named to the Intercollegiate all-star offensive and defensive teams. The others were: Captain Don Robb, Dave Skene, Kent Plumley, Gary Strickler, George Bethune, and Mike Wicklum.

Notice of such meetings shall be mailed to each Director at his address as appears on the records of the Association not less than ten days before the meeting is to take place, or shall be telephoned or telegraphed to each Director not less than five days before the date of such meeting. The decision shall be made by a majority vote of the members of the Board who reply in writing to the question within a period of seven days from the mailing of the letter by the Secretary-Treasurer. 22. The duties of the Vice-Presidents shall be those commonly pertaining to these officers. 24. In the event of the death or resignation of the Secretary-Treasurer, or if for any other reason he should be prevented from performing his duties, the President shall as soon as possible appoint an Acting Secretary-Treasurer to perform the duties of the Secretary-Treasurer as defined in Article 23 until a regular appointment to this office can be made by the Board of Directors. The remuneration of such Acting Secretary-Treasurer shall be set by the President, but this remuneration shall not exceed the salary of the Secretary-Treasurer as set by the Board. Prior to the appointment by the President of an Acting Secretary-Treasurer, the President shall sign the cheques of the Association in place of the Secretary-Treasurer, and shall make the necessary arrangements in this connection with the bank or banks where the Association's funds are deposited.

25. The duties of all officers or members of staff of the Association shall be such as the terms of their engagement call for or as the Board of Directors requires.

Retirement Every Year!

THE ALASKA BROWN BEAR is the biggest meat-eating animal in the world, often attaining a height of ten feet when he rears up on his hind legs. Like all bears, the 'brownie' hibernates in winter. Soon after the first snow falls, he finds a cave or a deep shelter under an overhanging ledge of rock. There he curls up and sleeps until spring.

The bear 'retires' for several months every year, sustained by the fat stored in his body. When human beings retire, however, they don't receive the same help from Nature. They turn instead to their life insurance. Nothing can make a man's retirement years more financially secure than a portfolio of Sun Life policies tailored to his requirements. The Sun Life is one of the great life insurance companies of the world, with branches and representatives from coast to coast in North America and in many other countries.

AN "EBY BUNCH"

The above picture, taken about 1907, is of a group of students who ate at the excellent boarding house operated by Mr. and Mrs. Eby. Such boarding-houses were almost like private clubs, with the same students returning year after year and with the proprietors taking almost a parental interest in their charges. This interest was mutual and continued long after the students had graduated, and at class reunion time one of the first ports of call was at the homes of such friends as Mr. and Mrs. Eby.

The Alumni Office is indebted for this picture, along with those of a dozen other student groups, to Rev. Dr. John L. Nicol, Arts '06, Theol. '09, Ph.D. '10, D.D. '40, of Saskatoon, Sask. Such pictures are always welcome for the University archives.

Incidentally, it has not been possible to identify all the persons in the above picture, and any information that will fill some of the gaps will be appreciated. Front row: Carmichael, unknown, Mac Omond, Nat Finlay, D. H. Marshall, D. A. MacArthur, R. J. McDonald, "Hockey Billy" Dobson, Archie Malloch. Second row: unknown, Allan Donnell, Fred Miller, Anglican minister, Mr. Eby, Mrs. Eby, Arthur Barnes, John L. Nicol, Charles Burns, D. C. Ramsay. Third row: John Galloway, unknown, Buck, unknown, unknown, Reid, unknown, unknown, Jack Macpherson, Archie Beecroft. Back row: Lorne Macdougall (insert), unknown, Pete MacPherson, MacQuarrie, H. T. Wallace, unknown, Bert Chatham.

BUILDING PROJECTS PLANNED

Principal's Report

Reviews

Recent Developments

University

Is in Sound

Financial Condition

There are a number of building projects which are at varying stages of examination and planning but on which no final decision to undertake construction has been made. Two additional floors for the laboratory wing of McLaughlin Hall are being planned for mechanical engineering. An additional floor for the laboratory wing of Nicol Hall is designed to give more research space to metallurgy and mining. Planning is proceeding on a new wing of the Chemistry Building which it is hoped may be undertaken this fall. Need for a new Physics Building is becoming urgent and work is proceeding on selecting a suitable site. There is, of course, also the prospect of a fourth men's residence on Leonard Field but, though some planning has been done so that the experience gained in recent years shall not be lost, decision on construction has been postponed to some more convenient date. Consideration must shortly be given to an enlargement of the Library. The quality of a university's library is a significant measure of the quality of the university. The Librarian, by enlarging departmental libraries and other devices, has been able to meet immediate needs for space, but, if the library is to continue to grow, plans must shortly be initiated for additions to the building.

FINANCES

The University is in sound financial condition. Our needs and desires far outrun our present resources but we have not undertaken commitments until we had the means of meeting them. This means that at times we have lagged behind more venturesome institutions but we have avoided crises and have progressed with assurance.

For 1960-1, the Government of Ontario has continued our capital grant at $1,250,000 which is adequate for our immediate needs. Our maintenance grant has been increased by $225,000 to $1,300,000. This unusually large increase is in recognition of the inequity of previous grants in comparison with those to other institutions and in terms of the number of our students. There is still some discrepancy to be made up but the generous instalment toward readjustment is most helpful and appreciated.

The increased grant has enabled us to adjust our salary scale to the extent that is now fully competitive with the best scales in other Canadian universities. This adjustment is of incalculable benefit in enabling us to retain staff and to enlist the services of men and women of the highest quality for replacement and expansion.

We have found it possible also to increase the appropriations for books and periodicals for the library. A first-class university cannot exist without a first-class library and our expenditures for library acquisitions had been woefully low.

It has also been possible to add needed staff in Business Administration, Geography, Russian, and some other departments.

After the end of the last session and after our calendars had been printed, other Ontario universities raised student fees by about 10 per cent. Since our budget had already been struck, it was decided to consider an increase in fees only for the session 1961-2.

HONOURS DEGREES

With the introduction of the Honours B.Sc. degree into the Faculty of Arts and Science, it clearly became necessary to review the regulations covering the granting of the honours degree. Regulations originally framed to cover one type of degree would not necessarily satisfy the requirements of students preparing for a degree in the experimental sciences. A great deal of discussion at various levels eventually culminated in Faculty approval of a series of changes in the degree regulations for the B.Sc. In general, these reflect the fact that the student in pure science must be prepared to spend a great deal of time doing supervised work in laboratories, whereas the student in other fields is required to make extensive use of library facilities. Under the revised regulations, future students in pure science will have had a thorough scientific training while at the same time they will have been given opportunities to study some of the fundamental humanist disciplines which lie at the basis of any general educational programme.

APPLIED SCIENCE

Some members of staff have developed areas of interest to the point where they must decide either to reduce their research work or let their undergraduate instruction suffer. The alternative is to provide for these professors qualified research assistants and the technical help so badly needed. Financially, such help is not an annual problem as the cost is borne by the research grant supporting the work. However, since grants are on a yearly basis, continuity of employment, even if service is satisfactory, cannot be guaranteed by the grant. Unless some arrangement is made to ensure against an abrupt termination of employment, we are in danger of having some of our important work reduced in activity, if not stopped entirely.

MEDICINE

It has been the practice of the Faculty to admit to the first premedical year as many students as might be accommodated in each of the five succeeding years. A careful selection is made of the candidates, the most of whom come from the high school. Each student who is admitted knows that failure to pass all the examinations of the first two years will deny him the right to continue. The attrition through examination failure fluctuates between 12 and 20 per cent of the freshman class. Vacancies created are filled by admission of students who have obtained premedical credits by attendance at or graduation from a Faculty of Arts and Science in this or another university. Despite the assumed value of such a "liberalizing" education, we have found that the best students are, in the main, those who have come to us direct from high school and have quickly adjusted themselves to university life.

PHYSICIANS

The twelve Canadian medical schools graduate annually 850 to 900 students. About 10 per cent of these are foreigners, chiefly Americans, and are not likely to practise in Canada. Yet every year more than 1,300 physicians register for practice for the first time and, in the past five years, for every 42 Canadian graduates admitted to practice, there have been 25 graduates of foreign schools.

This means that about two-fifths of the physicians who commence practice in Canada have been educated without cost to the country. As long as this immigration continues, the people of Canada will be adequately served in numbers, if not in quality, but if this supply should cease, and the growth of population continue, we should sadly lack medical care.

The Association of Canadian Medical Colleges has decided, after consulting the opinion of the Canadian Medical Association and the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, to establish a Secretariat on Medical Education. This secretariat will study such questions as the need of the establishment of more medical schools in Canada, the wisdom of an active programme of recruitment of students in medicine, the maintenance of standards of medical education in relation to changing social trends, and methods of improving medical education in the face of hospital insurance.

Meantime, the Faculty is assisting the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario in assessing the qualifications of physicians who have been trained outside this continent and the British Commonwealth and wish to practise in our province. Last September, members of the Departments of Anatomy, Bacteriology, Biochemistry, Pathology, Pharmacology, and Physiology examined twenty-six of these candidates. They will conduct another series of examinations in June of this year.

LAW

Our law library continues to grow, though now at a more modest rate than during the early days. The collection now stands at some 27,000 volumes and is one of the four or five best law school libraries in Canada. (Being a new collection, there is virtually no obsolescence in the figure of 27,000.) The cataloguing and classifying of the books continues under our professional librarians, and the plan is to arrange all text-books and treatises on the shelves under a good classification by subjects. The scientific arrangement and control of the law collection according to the principles of library science should reach a high point of effectiveness by the time the books are in place in the new building.

GRADUATE STUDIES

The place that a University holds in regard to graduate work is measured by the place that the members of its departments hold in the world of scholarship and research, and it is personal recommendations from those of recognized standing in scholarship and research that helps students, honours or graduate, into preferred places when they leave the University. Towards neither of these would a costly administrative organization contribute directly. As matters stand at present, the best use of all possible resources would be for technical and teaching assistance and competent secretarial help.

Arrangements for profitable association among staff and students within a department should be a first consideration. But of no less importance are arrangements for living. The ways in which a well-appointed residence for graduate students and selected honour students could contribute to broadening cultural and intellectual interests are so obvious that it would be superfluous to enumerate them. A well-appointed residence would include dining facilities (not the cafeteria-snackbar style), a library of literature and magazines of general interest, and such recreational facilities as are suitable for a residence. It does not take much imagination to see that the area in which this University can best achieve greatness and make its contribution to national life is that of its honours course, graduate studies, scholarly work, and scientific and engineering research. While there are arguments for, as well as against, excessive centralization of administration, there are no arguments against a well-appointed residence for graduate and selected honours students. The requirements in the way of resources would seem to put its realization some distance in the future. But if its importance is generally acceded, if attention is focused on it from all sides, if a site is selected and planning is started, such preparations might well induce an unexpected turn of fortune's wheel to make it a reality.

OBSERVATORY OPENS

LIBRARIAN

Last year the Librarian reported the growth of our Canadian manuscript collection to a point where, for variety and extent, it is probably the leading archives department of any Canadian academic library. The collection is now being reorganized according to modern archival methods by Mr. E. C. Beer, newly appointed archivist.

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

Financial support from external sources has continued to rise, and it is interesting to note that the total support for the sciences from all external sources now exceeds one million dollars a year. The only research fund fully administered by the Committee on Scientific Research is an annual grant from the R. Samuel McLaughlin Trust Fund. This grant continues to provide most welcome support of approximately twenty research projects in the pure and applied sciences. However, the requirements of funds for research by members of staff continue to increase, and in the year under review the total requested in applications to the Committee exceeded the funds available by 80 per cent.

RESIDENT MUSICIAN

The Glee Club devoted the remaining days of February to the preparation of a tape-recording of Queen's songs which were requested by the Alumni Association. The Resident Musician sifted the existing material and found a dozen songs of such quality that they should not have been allowed to fall into disuse. These included three sets of words —two in English and one in Latin—by the late lecturer in ancient history and classics at Cambridge University, T. R. Glover, who was professor of classics at Queen's from 1897-1904. The tunes are also in many cases excellent and include several by that versatile alumnus, Alfred E. Lavell. These were arranged for the purpose of the present recording by the Resident Musician. In view of the short time available before the onset of examinations, a preliminary tape was made for presentation to the Alumni Association at their meeting in May 1960. With their approval, a recording of a quality suitable for permanent use by the Association will be made by the Glee Club in the second term of the coming session.

A VOICE FROM THE ATTIC

A Book of Essays
By Robertson Davies

ROBERTSON DAVIES

● Editor, playwright, novelist, columnist, critic, and essayist, Robertson Davies is one of the most versatile and talented men of letters in this country.

In his latest work he speaks from what he calls "America's Attic"—Canada, and returns to the form of the essay as his medium of communication. It is aimed at that vast brotherhood which likes reading books, a class he terms the clerisy, and is an appeal for the members to take themselves more seriously. His own tastes are catholic, his curiosity insatiable, his appreciation warm and understanding; his barbs are reserved, for the most part, for literary critics.

He tours all literary fields—poetry, drama, novels, joke books, how-to-do-it books, self-help, pornography, avant-garde—you name it, and Robertson Davies has some entertaining and pithy comment to make. Attic will stimulate interest in books once popular and long since fallen out of favour as the author describes his excursions into strange literary pastures. "Any book is a good book which feeds the mind something which may enlarge it, or move it to action. A book is good in relation to its reader," he says.

The essays sparkle with wit and humour and with deft analysis and appraisal. "The American equivalent of a Roman official triumph—the picture of the author on the cover of Time," he says of the acclaim given James Gould Cozzens. "The Dumas in him manoeuvers a girl into a boy's costume, but the Lutheran parson does not then know what to do with her," he says of Lloyd C. Douglas.

He has the respect of an H. W. Fowler for words. Such unusual items as enantiodromia and analphabet crop up here and there, but so does the vernacular when it will serve his purpose better. And what a delightful and expressive word is "gandermooning."

Attic is a scholarly treatise, a one-volume course in the art of reading. Trinity College, Toronto, is to be congratulated on having Robertson Davies as a Visiting Professor and privileged indeed must be the students who sit under him.

IN THE NEWS

Dr. James Forrester, B.A. '38, was recently appointed president of Gordon College, at Beverly Farms, Mass.

Dr. Forrester is a native of Scotland. He attended McMaster University and later obtained his B.A. at Queen's, where he majored in Philosophy. His M.A. and Ph.D. degrees were earned at the University of Southern California in the fields of Psychology, Psychology of Religion, and Pastoral Counselling. He has also been awarded the following honorary degrees: Doctor of Divinity by Sterling College, Sterling, Kan., and Doctor of Laws by Whitworth College, Spokane, Wash.

DR. JAMES FORRESTER

He received training in the Canadian Officers Training Corps and was a chaplain in the U.S. Air Force for four years, seeing service in the Pacific combat zone in the Mariannas, Iwo Jima, and the Phillipines.

Before World War Two Dr. Forrester was western field secretary of Intervarsity Christian Fellowship in Canada and served as Assistant to the President at Whitworth College. After the war he was called to the presidency of Westmont College, Santa Barbara, Calif., which position he left for the pastorate of the Sunnyside Baptist Church, Los Angeles. In 1958 he became Vice-President in Development at Whitworth, a co-educational college of Arts and Sciences.

Rt. Rev. Hugh A. McLeod, M.A. '20, LL.D. '43, pastor of Knox United Church in Winnipeg, Man., has been elected moderator of the United Church of Canada. He will hold office for two years.

A native of Owen Sound, Ont., Mr. McLeod earned his way through University by working as a seaman on the Great Lakes during the summer months. During World War One he was quartermaster signalman on barges which carried ammunition across the English Channel.

He went to western Canada forty years ago.

Around the CAMPUS

Enrolment. Registration this year shows an increase of 185 students in the total figure of 3,109. The biggest increase is in the Faculty of Arts and Science where there are 1,332 compared with 1,145 last year. Other increases are: School of Business, 103 (8); Arts and Physical and Health Education, 134 (23); Law, 63 (4); School of Nursing, 71 (16). The Faculty of Applied Science shows a decrease with an enrolment of 865, down 68 from 1959-60; and the Faculty of Medicine is down two to 330. Graduate students this year enrolled in advanced courses number 211, as compared with 184 last year. There are 888 women students.

Grants and Gifts. Queen's is one of thirteen universities to share in the $50,000 grant of the Geological Survey of Canada. The Department of Geological Sciences gets $8,450 in four grants, for two established projects and two new projects. . . . The Queen's University Economic Research Institute has been granted $100,000 by the Ford Foundation as support for the Institute's activities for the next five years. The purpose of the Institute is to stimulate economic research in Canada. Prof. M. C. Urquhart recently succeeded Prof. F. A. Knox as director. . . . Four large volumes containing all the research reports published to date by the American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Research Fund have been presented by that body to the manufacturing methods section of the Engineering library. The four books contain twenty-eight research reports and constitute a fund of contemporary data on creative manufacture. Much of the research covered concerns metal cutting which is an active project under Dr. W. B. Rice in the Mechanical Engineering Department.

Theatre Fund. Under the auspices of the Alma Mater Society, the student theatre fund is making slow but steady progress. This year, to date, $700 has been raised in a tag day, $1,000 has been pledged by the Queen's Faculty Players, and $500 has been granted by the Engineering Society.

Plans provide for an auditorium with a seating capacity of up to 1,500. Partitions could reduce this to 750 for smaller productions. Total cost of the building is estimated at $800,000, and the administration has agreed that if the students can raise a reasonable fraction of that amount, say $100,000, the rest of the money will be found elsewhere.

Graduate Studies: Dr. J. M. R. Beveridge, Craine professor and head of the Department of Biochemistry, has been appointed chairman of the Queen's Board of Graduate Studies. He succeeds Dr. R. L. Jeffery, emeritus professor of mathematics.

Early in his career Dr. Beveridge was a research fellow in the Department of Medical Research at the Banting Institute, Toronto. For a period he was associate biochemist at the Pacific Fisheries Experimental Station, Vancouver, and immediately prior to coming to Queen's in 1950 he was a lecturer in pathological chemistry at the University of Western Ontario.

DEPARTMENT OF GEOGRAPHY

A new department, the Department of Geography, was established at Queen's in 1960. Four of the staff members are shown in consultation. Left to right are Dr. A. M. Taylor, visiting professor and lecturer; Eva A. Mitchell, map and photo librarian; Dr. Richard I. Ruggles, Professor and Head of the Department of Geography; and Dr. D. Q. Innis, assistant professor.

As chairman, he heads the twenty-three member board of scholars and scientists which directs the whole programme of graduate work at the University.

Here and There. Dean H. G. Conn was one of the twenty-one-member delegation of Canadian engineers to represent the Engineering Institute of Canada at the sixth convention of the Union Panamericana de Asocoaciones de Ingerieros in Buenos Aires recently. He also attended the First Pan American Congress on Engineering Education which preceded the convention. . . . Dr. Alice Vibert Douglas, professor of Astronomy and former Dean of Women, received an honorary LL.D. degree from her alma mater, McGill University. The occasion was almost ninety years to the day since her grandfather, the late Rev. Dr. George Douglas, principal of Wesleyan Theological College, received an LL.D. when he brought the college into affiliation with McGill. . . . Four students from the Soviet Union visited the Queen's campus for one day in November under the auspices of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. It is expected that a Canadian delegation will repay the visit next year. . . . The students voted overwhelmingly in favour of increasing the athletic fee from $15 to $20. If the increase is approved by the University's Board of Trustees, it will mean the return to many of the Intercollegiate sports which were dropped this year because of financial reasons. . . . J. R. Gordon, president of International Nickel Company of Canada Ltd., and William Earle McLaughlin, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, have been appointed as members of the University's Board of Trustees. . . . Dr. J. J. Deutsch, vice-principal (administration), has been retained by a special Senate committee on manpower to study the employment problem in Canada.

Dr. Christopher Dean Speaks To Kingston Alumnae

"English Dialects" was the subject of an interesting address given by Dr. Christopher Dean, assistant professor of English, at the meeting of the Kingston alumnae held in Ban Righ Hall on December 6.

With the help of a tape recorder, Dr. Dean showed the wide variations in dialects to be found in England. He then proceeded to discuss the regional, class or vocational, and personal dialects to be found in any language throughout the world. He concluded his most fascinating and informative talk by running an extremely amusing tape of an interview with a housewife in one of the rural villages of England.

The speaker introduced by Mrs. Frances Smith, Arts '56, and was thanked by Mrs. R. D. Bradfield (Eva Newell), Arts '26.

Mrs. F. W. Gibson (Margaret Mackay), Arts '46, was in the chair.

The three Queen's members of the Ottawa Rough Riders, Canadian professional football champions—Lou Bruce, Gary Schreider, and Ron Stewart—dropped in at the Ottawa alumni football stag in the Assembly Hall at Lansdowne Park on November 29, and were given a rousing welcome.

These three, all named to the Big Four all-star team and referred to by Coach Frank Tindall as the Kingston Trio, were among the guests of honour at a Grey Cup Dinner the same evening, but managed to slip away to join the alumni gathering. They were presented with steins as mementoes of the occasion.

Chief speaker was Big Four official Ray Boucher, and his humorous address was a highlight of the evening's programme. He was introduced by Tony Duggan, Arts '54, P.H.E. '54, and he was thanked by Ted Bishop, Arts '41.

Coach Frank Tindall spoke briefly, and also provided a running commentary for films of some of the Queen's games this fall. Mr. Tindall introduced five Ottawa members of the Queen's football team he had brought with him: John and Peter Quinn, Don and Laird Rasmussen, and Robin Ritchie.

Despite a heavy driving rain the country supper aranged by the Ottawa branch at the Richmond Community Centre on October 24 was well attended.

The best dinner in the long history of these suppers was served by a local church ladies' group. The hall was decorated by a committee headed by Miss Kathy Walsh, Arts '54.

Col. Gerry Nicholson, Arts '31, served as master of ceremonies for the excellent programme. The evening was completed with a square dance, under the direction of Jack Zoubie, in which nearly everyone present participated.

In charge of ticket sales for this popular event were J. L. Richards, Sc. '44, and George Perrin, Arts '49.

What has TIME done to Your LIFE INSURANCE?

Everyone knows what can happen to the performance of a car that isn't serviced regularly. The same risk of "poor performance" holds true for your life insurance if you neglect to keep it up to date. Time brings changes in your life that in turn create the need for a review of your policies. Perhaps new beneficiaries should be appointed. Perhaps the method by which benefits are to be paid, either by income or by single amount, is no longer in your family's best interest. What would a careful review of your policies reveal? That you have more than enough life insurance—or that time has brought new needs for protection and saving?

By keeping in touch with the Man from Manufacturers you can be sure your life insurance is arranged to do the job you want it to do. Why not call him for a policy "check-up" today?

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

DOUGLAS LIBRARY NOTES

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Vol. IX, No. 1 A supplement to the Queen's Review April, 1960

THE ARCHIVES DEPARTMENT

The archives collection at Queen's is as old as the university for it may be said to have begun with the Royal Charter, a parchment document which cost the alarming sum of £700, almost leaving the infant college bankrupt before it opened. In the early days there was barely enough money to buy the most necessary books for the college library let alone to invest in historical manuscripts. The founding fathers, however, were fully conscious of the fact that their own records in planning and establishing the college were of historic importance. These they garnered and kept intact for posterity. To-day, calendared and indexed, they not only tell the history of the founding of Queen's, but reveal much of importance concerning the relations of Church and State in the early development of the province.

To the Queen's archives were added the records of the Presbyterian Synod of Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland. These, too, have been classified and indexed and used by research historians. Of even wider interest for the social historian are the nineteen volumes of manuscript journals kept by Rev. William Bell, the first Presbyterian minister of Perth.

To college and church records, successive librarians, with the aid of history professors and others, have added a wide variety of manuscripts dealing largely, but not exclusively, with the U. E. Loyalist settlement of eastern Ontario. The Treadwell papers, Tett papers, Solomon Jones papers, the Landon and Joel Stone papers, the Cartwright papers and Letter Books, the McGuin papers, the Kirby papers, the Parrott papers, Purdy account book, Stevenson letters and a variety of other records all come within this category.

The William Smith transcripts from the Public Archives, 1540-1865, in 154 volumes, supply an excellent basic collection of documents in the wider field of national history. Within the past decade various political papers, also national in scope, have come to Queen's – the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie Papers, the Laurier Papers (in microfilm), the W. D. Gregory papers, the Hon. C. A. Dunning papers, the Hon. W. G. Mitchell papers among others. The Adam Shortt papers present the views and opinions of a highly responsible civil servant.

Since the Douglas Library first opened in 1924, Dr. Lorne Pierce has been building up the Edith and Lorne Pierce Collection, not only as one of the finest collections of Canadian imprints in the Dominion, but by all odds the largest single collection of original letters, manuscripts and typescripts by Mair, Carman, Pickthall, Roberts, Campbell and other Canadian authors. Many of these records are of historical as well as literary importance. The Charles Mair Papers, for example, contain primary source material of the first importance concerning the Riel Rebellion and the settlement of the West.

Colonel R. S. McLaughlin, Queen's benefactor extraordinary, donated to the library in 1948 a collection of Canadian historical manuscripts, broadsides, prints and early maps valued at over $10,000.00, and capped this gift in 1954 with the John Buchan Library, including the manuscripts of some thirty-six of Buchan's major works and a selection of his private papers and correspondence.

It is no exaggeration to say that for variety and intrinsic importance the Canadian manuscript collection at the Douglas Library is unequalled by any similar university collection in Canada. Its growing importance has attracted research scholars from other major Canadian universities and from the United States.

Two guides to the collection have been published, A Note on the Manuscript Collection in the Douglas Library, Queen's University by E. C. Kyte, 1943, and A Catalogue of Canadian Manuscripts collected by Lorne Pierce and Presented to Queen's University, 1946. So rapidly have the archives expanded in the past decade, however, that both these guides are now sadly out of date. With the appointment on April 1 of a full-time archivist, Mr. E. Charles Beer, the manuscript collection is now undergoing reorganization on approved archival principles in order that it may more readily serve graduate students in English and History and visiting research scholars. In due time a new guide to the archives will be compiled and published.

THE HONOURABLE JOHN KIRBY OF KINGSTON

Among the lesser known early legislative councillors of Upper Canada was John Kirby (1772-1846) Kingston merchant and Colonel in the Frontenac militia. At the time of his death, December 19, 1846, Kingston papers both Tory and reform paid equal tribute to one of the city's foremost citizens.

"Mr. Kirby came to Kingston in the year 1796," states the obituary in the Chronicle and Gazette, "and having been successful in mercantile pursuits to the extent of his desires, he spent his declining years in those acts of liberality and charity which endeared him to all around him . . . "[1] The redoubtable Dr. John Stewart, editor of the Argus, declared: "He was one of a class which we regret to say is speedily passing away from amongst us: hospitable and unostentatious . . . freely bestowing his substance and his sympathy where the call of benevolence or charity invited his attention . . . [Mr. Kirby] had the satisfaction of witnessing the rise of Kingston from a wilderness to a proud and flourishing city".[2]

Kirby's legal and business papers and some of his family correspondence passed to one of his executors, Thomas Kirkpatrick, who deposited them in a tin box among other records of his law firm, later to become the firm of Nickle and Nickle. There they remained for well over a century until they were transferred, with the library of the late Hon. W. F. Nickle, to the Douglas Library, through the generosity of the Nickle family.

From these papers, and other Kirby letters in the Hon. John Macaulay Papers in the Ontario Archives, it is possible to reconstruct the main outline of Hon. John Kirby's career.

His father, John Kirby Sr., emigrated from Tadcaster, Yorkshire, to New York State with his wife, his two sons, William and John, and his daughter, Jane, shortly before the outbreak of the American war of independence. He obtained land near Crown Point and engaged in farming. What part he played in the revolution is not known, but his sympathies were royalist, and the family is said to have "shared in the troubles to which all Loyalists were exposed".[3]

In 1791 Jane Kirby married Robert Macaulay of Kingston, who, during the late war, had served as Captain with the British forces on Carleton Island, and had received a land grant as a Loyalist. His frame house on Carleton Island was one of the first to be moved across the ice to the new town of Kingston. Macaulay entered into partnership with Thomas Markland and engaged in the forwarding business. They were joined in 1796 by young John Kirby who took over the firm after the withdrawal of Markland and the death of Robert Macaulay in 1800.

A staunch Anglican, Kirby was a pillar of St. George's church, and served two terms as Warden, in 1802 and 1810. He joined the First Regiment of the Frontenac militia and in 1821 became Lieutenant Colonel. As his business prospered, he bought up land, became a share-holder in the Midland Bank and Bank of Montreal, and for a time was part owner of the Kingston Gazette. On February 28, 1822, he married a widow, Mrs. Celia Bethune Wilkinson, who predeceased him in 1842. There were no children.

In 1830 his brother William died at Ticonderoga where he had remained after the revolutionary war to farm the family property. He left heavy debts, and for several years Kirby was involved in legal proceedings to settle the estate. Among the Kirby papers are half a dozen querulous letters from his sister-in-law, and pathetic pleas from her step-daughter, Maria Kirby, imploring Uncle John to extricate them from the machinations of an alcoholic lawyer, Mr. Weed.

At the time of the Mackenzie rebellion it was falsely reported in the American frontier press that the coup had been successful and that all the leading Loyalists in Toronto and Kingston were imprisoned. Maria Kirby, ill at the time, spent some anxious hours supposing her relatives to be languishing in jail, before the truth of the matter became known. She wrote to her uncle, February 4, 1838, about this episode:

> "I had heard of the disturbances in the Lower province but never so much as dreamed that they would extend to the Upper province. The news came to me under the most trying circumstances. I was confined to the house by a severe illness . . . Some person came in and by way of news said they had read in a newspaper that the Patriots had seized possession of Toronto and that Sir John Colbourne and all the Loyalists of consequence in Kingston and Toronto, including you and Cousin Macaulay were imprisoned . . . Mackenzie, probably anticipating success, published an account of his victory in the Buffalo papers. I was weak in body and mind. I thought of your rheumatic limbs fettered perhaps in a cold prison, surrounded by ruffians. I cried bitterly and spent a most miserable night. My only thought was that I never should see you again, Dear Uncle [and] die perhaps without knowing your fate. I knew you all too well to suppose for a moment that death or daggers would ever compel you to join such a gang of Buccaniers (sic) . . . that wretch McKenzie! Nothing would give me so much pleasure as to hear that he was safe in Kingston Penitentiary beating stone, he would then for once in his life be profitably employed."

Far from languishing in prison, Kirby was soon to be appointed a member of the Court Martial for the trial at Fort Henry of Nils von Schultz and other "Patriots" captured after the abortive raid at Prescott. Since 1831 he had been a member of the Legislative Council of Upper Canada, and had served on the

Select Committee "to examine into and report upon the measures which it may be expedient for the Legislature to adopt in consequence of the present commercial difficulties in the Province". (June 1837) He had taken an active interest in banking legislation, helped to obtain a government grant for the new Kingston hospital, and supported, but without success, a motion to establish a quarantine station on Cedar Island.

A thorough Tory in politics, Kirby, like his nephew Hon. John Macaulay, was apprehensive about the Durham Report and the movement for responsible government. "The charm of responsible government proposed by Lord Durham," wrote Macaulay to Kirby, June 9, 1839, "has turned every head in the Province, and I do not see where the mischief will end".[4] On the last day of the year, Kirby outlined to his nephew his views on the impending union:

> "In regard to the Union of the Provinces I think the terms offered was (sic) as favourable as we had a right to expect, but how it will work I must confess, I have my doubts whether for weal or for woe. I am fearful of the result, but then I do not see how we could avoid it, as the home Government seemed bent upon it, whether we ike it or not—we are at their mercy now. I trust they will not remove the Seat of Government out of the Province as such a measure would be next to ruinous – and I hope they will insist upon the English language to be the only one used in all our Courts of Justice and in the Lesislature".[5]

Macaulay hoped for a military governor, and was unfeignedly disappointed when the appointment went to Poulett Thomson, later Lord Sydenham. Kirby, however, was glad to report early in 1841 that Alwington, Baron Grant's fine house on the lake front, had been leased to Sydenham as a vice-regal residence for £800, and that two wings were being added.

Despite his misgivings, it was a proud day for Kirby when Kingston became the capital of the united Province of Canada, for he had witnessed its growth from a few straggling frame and log houses skirting the waterfront to the foremost city of Upper Canada with fine limestone houses, stores, public buildings and churches. His own home at the foot of Princess Street was one of the finest, well furnished, with a grand piano in the living room, imported rugs, the finest china and crystal and a well-stocked wine cellar.

"His highest ambition in the evening of his day," wrote Dr. William Canniff, "seemed to be the enjoyment of domestic tranquility and a quiet home, made happy to him by a wife of rare sense, intelligent, and possessed of many amiable accomplishments."[6] On December 19, 1846, after a lingering illness, he died in his seventy fifth year, and was buried on a plot of land where Adelaide Hall now stands. The remains were later moved to Cataraqui Cemetery.

MORE BOOKS FROM MR. BURTON

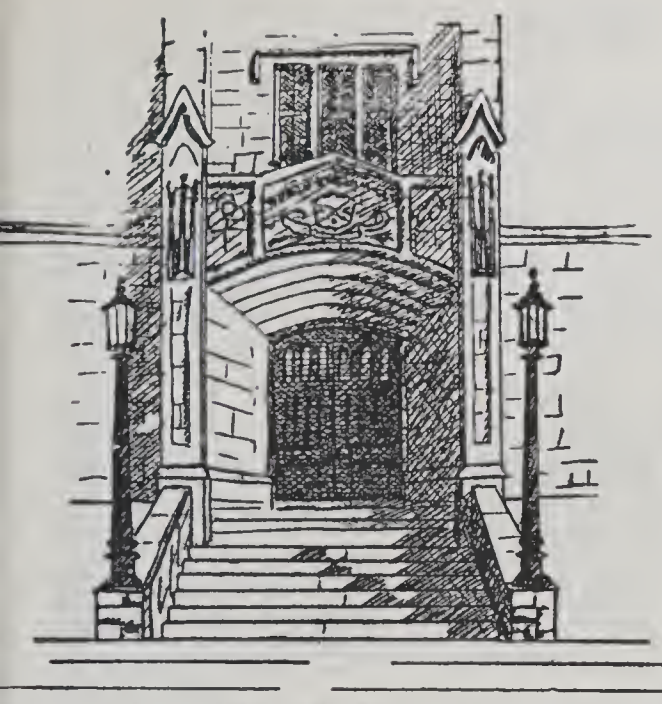

Mr. C. L. Burton of Toronto has paid further tribute to his friendship for the Rector by presenting two books formerly from the library of Lawrence of Arabia: Spenser's Faerie Queen, London 1607, and Sir Walter Raleigh's History of the World, London 1614; also two fine examples of modern book making: the Golden Cockerel Press edition of the Mabinogian, London, 1948, and Les Très Riches Heures de Jean de France, Duc de Berry, three volumes, Paris, 1904. These volumes were on display during Queen's Open House, February 20, and have since been placed in the Special Collections Room. The Library is deeply grateful to Mr. Burton for his continued benefactions.

DOUGLAS LIBRARY NOTES

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY KINGSTON, ONTARIO

l. IX, No. 2 A supplement to the Queen's Review August, 1960

THE ELIZABETH GRAY COLLECTION

For the Special Collections Room in the Douglas Library, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Gray have donated from their personal library some five hundred volumes of belles lettres and other works in the humanities and social sciences. To contain this fine selection of books, the donors are also presenting two walnut book cabinets which once belonged to Rev. John Machar, D.D., the second Principal of Queen's.

A physicist of international repute and former Chown Research Professor of Physics at Queen's, Dr. Gray for many years has pursued collecting as an avocation, with the expert and enthusiastic collaboration of Mrs. Gray. Their home has literally bulged with treasures collected in various parts of the world—Australia, England, the Continent, the United States and Canada. Bookcases and cupboards in every room have overflowed with books, journals, manuscripts, prints, broadsides, and dealers' catalogues from the four corners of the earth.

From her personal collection, Mrs. Gray has now presented two highly-prized holograph letters of Florence Nightingale; also a series of illuminating letters describing conditions in Germany and Poland after World War I, written by Miss Silvia Cowles of the American Friends Service Committee.

Among the books in the collection, pride of place must be given to some fifty or more private press imprints and copies of limited, autographed editions. Included are Homer's Hymn to Aphrodite (Franfrolico Press), L'Estrange's Aesop, More's Utopia and several other volumes from the Golden Cockerel Press, Nerinda by Norman Douglas (Orioli), The Hessian Prisoner by H. E. Bates (Chiswick), Illustrations of the Book of Genesis (Roxburgh Club), Blake's Pencil Drawings and Poetry and Prose, Shakespeare (7 vol.), North's Plutarch (5 vol.) Walton, Bunyan, and several other notable publications of the Nonesuch Press, a facsimile of the original manuscript of Arnold Bennett's The Old Wives' Tale (2 vol.), Kipling's Poems, 1886-1929 (3 vol. limited ed., Macmillan), and many others. Most of the early fine editions published by the New York Literary Guild are included, and an almost complete series of The Criterion Miscellany.

Most strongly represented in the collection as a whole are writers of the past hundred years, a good many in first editions, some now rare. Ballads, folk tales, and children's classics are among the special interests of Mrs. Gray who knows these books intimately, speaks delightfully about them, and in selecting those to go to Queen's captivated the Librarian with her infectious enthusiasm.

This brief notice can merely suggest the wide range of interest both for the common reader and for the bibliophile in the Elizabeth Gray Collection, a fine and generous benefaction for which we record our deep appreciation and grateful thanks.

A LOYALIST IN LONDON:

THE DIARIES OF CHIEF JUSTICE WILLIAM SMITH

Among the shrewdest observers abroad in the capital of the British Empire during the years 1784 to 1786 was a sharp-eyed American Loyalist named William Smith, last Royal Chief Justice of the Province of New York and destined to be first Chief Justice of Lower Canada.

Smith's observations of the London scene in that brief interlude of peace between two revolutionary wars were set down in two parchment covered volumes recently deposited in the Douglas Library by one of his descendants, Mrs. A. R. F. Hubbard of Quebec City. By arrangement with the University Librarian and Prof. F. W. Gibson of the history department, Mrs. Hubbard has placed the Smith Diaries in the library archives for safekeeping, and for the use of scholars engaged in research.

Aged 55 at the time of the first entry (Jan. 24, 1784), the diarist had a few weeks previously sailed from New York with his friend and patron, Governor Sir Guy Carleton, and the British garrison, withdrawn as a result of the recognition by Great Britain of American independence. Smith had held the office of Chief Justice of his native province since 1780, and prior to the Revolution had won distinction as a leading member of the New York bar and of His Majesty's executive council. He had also published a history of the province.[1]

A Whig who yet remained "firm for the Union", Smith pursued during the Revolutionary period a course which the Dictionary of American Biography describes as "unique in the annals of American Loyalism."

"Though an office-holder under the Crown, . . . he was one of the foremost leaders of the popular party and a founder of the Whig Club. When violence broke out, he appears to have taken a position on the fence, gradually leaning toward the Loyalist side, never completely repudiated by the patriots, never completely accepted by his own party." (DAB)

In some 560 closely-written pages, the diarist records the heart-breakingly protracted negotiations with the British government that led at last to his appointment, in June 1786, as Chief Justice of Quebec under the governor-generalship of Carleton, now Lord Dorchester. But for Carleton's powerful support, he makes clear, his cause would have been hopeless. (A pretext for the delay, it is hinted, was the taint of Whig principles). As it was, the treasury department declined to allow his just claim for arrears of pay and fobbed him off with a grant of £980 for "temporary support". This sum enabled him to discharge most of the debts contracted during his London residence, in the course of which he had been obliged to sell the family plate to support his son William and himself. But the experience left Smith thoroughly disgusted with what he called "the Fiddle Faddle of Office."

"What an execrable Imployment to have to dunn Governmt!" he cries out at one stage in the long struggle. "How does all this read a Lesson agt. false Confidences!—Ministers and their Instruments are shameless—Such behaviour in private Life would ruin any Character—To be a Minister or his Secretary is to lose all Regard to Truth with Dependants who dare not resent."

His dealings with the various Circumlocution Offices of the Pitt government supply the diarist with a dramatic narrative that gathers considerable suspense during the two-and-a-half years of its unfolding. It was undoubtedly an ordeal for William Smith, but one for which posterity can be grateful, inasmuch as the law's delay gave this inquiring stranger ample opportunity to explore the metropolis and record his findings.

1 The History of the late province of New York from its discovery to the appointment of Governor Colden in 1762 (New York, 1829).

Smith was an indefatigable tourist. He never tired of London, and considering the phenomenon of full houses at Drury Lane and Covent Garden, could exclaim with all the delighted wonder of the man from the provinces "How astonishing the Multitude of this immense City." (It is characteristic of this canny observer that he goes on to reflect "Out of near a Million of Inhabitants 4000 at a Play are taken from Mischief").

He paid frequent visits to Parliament and the Law Courts, attended levees at St. James's on several occasions, was a discriminating theatregoer and ranged far and wide in church attendance, indulged a fondness for spectacle, bid prudently at picture auctions, and made the rounds of historic sites and buildings, from the Tower and Buckingham House (a Royal residence not yet elevated to the dignity of "palace" but open for inspection in the family's absence) to Milton's house in Petty France and Pope's garden at Twickenham ("I saw Nothing answerable to the Genius of the original Owner nor equal to his pompous Description of the Place").

Here follows a random sampling of the chronicle as set down by William Smith in a beautifully precise hand, several times a week, at his lodgings in Delahay Street, Westminster.

A House of Commons debate: "Pitt infinitely the best Speaker—Fox excessively furious & out of Breath . . . Mr. Pitt's Talents are certainly superior to any of his Opponents—His Promptness—his Fluency, Selection & Pronunciation are all very considerable—He is bold and powerful—Lord North was on the opposition Bench but uttered not a Syllable—He lolled indecently on his Hand & was an Object of Pity—or of Contempt. He is considered as afraid of the young Minister, who never spares the Lash, & is ready to give it wherever it is provoked."

At church (St. Margaret's, Westminster): "Dull service indeed. Parson & Clerk heavy as the Monuments that adorn the Walls & are fixed to the Pillars of the Church."

On "British Christianity": "It is astonishing that with the Advantages for public Speaking the Effect is not seen in the Pulpits of this Nation—Animation at the Playhouse Bar Senate and every where but at Church—The Luxury of the Times enervates Piety—There is Softness of Manners but no Fervor in the Religion of the Country—Charity alone to the Poor makes up British Christianity."

At Drury Lane: "Mrs. Siddons astonishing in the Character of Belvidera in Otway's Venice Preserved—I believe she fainted at the Death—Such Exertions of Affliction to the wildest Madness will hasten her to the Reality—They are not conceivable to those who have not seen her". . . . "Mrs. Siddons play'd Rosalind in Shakespear's As you like it, with the highest Applause . . . I think she will always succeed in Shakespear's Comedies, & wherever Nature is painted and not meerly Modes & Fashions.—She made a Sacrifice to Virtue, by her Dress in the Character of the Shepherd's Boy—The Bucks were disappointed of the View of her Limbs, for her Dress was in loose Robes & Buskins or Half Boots . . . ."

At the Haymarket Theatre: "Shakespear's H(enry) IVth—Mrs. Webb in the Character of Falstaff. It is said Henderson was the best ever known.—Mrs. Webb's Female Voice was the Article most agt her. Hotspur was ranted thro' by a Young Fellow who mistook bodily Activity for Fire & could scarcely be understood by his inarticulate Pronunciation . . . Upon the whole it was but a Murder of the Poet."

At a picture auction: "I bought . . . Representation of the Plague by N. Poussin—£2:0:0 and a Venus & Cupid by Paul Veronese—£2:11:0".

On a lady in distress: "I was very near to Lunardi's Balloon let off this Day near the Obelisk in St. George's Fields—There was a fresh Wind at East, but when it was up its Progress was slower—The Lady in it appeared terrified & before it cross'd the Thames I did not see her—I imagine she sat on the Floor of the Carr.—It went westward over Hyde Park Corner in a Course to Windsor."

At Newgate Prison: "A most solemn Day—I attended the Service at Newgate—The Congregation consisting of a Gallery of Debtors—The opposite one of Female Criminals & a Floor below of about 200 Malefactors in Chains with a Square Pen of 16 with a Death Warrt agt them for next Thursday morning.—All was decency with the Appearance of pungent Distress.—My Blood thrilled at the Clanking of Chains for till the Sheriff was in his Pew in the Gallery none of the Malefactors were let in & as they rush'd in the Noise of the Irons was loud. . . . A disbanded Army & Navy upon such a contracted Island accounts for the Increase of Offenders—but it sets an Edge to one's Anxiety to see so many young Men among them."

Among the diversions of the town inspected by the visitor were the Irish Giant, the Learned Pig, the Polish Dwarf, the Speaking Image and the Straw Man. He also toured Vauxhall Gardens ("a School of Vice") and had his pocket picked at Ranelagh and the Haymarket Theatre.

The diarist records frequent interviews with Lord Dorchester on Canadian affairs, concerning which they agreed that Britain's aim should be "to render Canada and Nova Scotia enviable Habitations & so to watch the Indian Interests as to prevent their becoming Foes." As for the United States, Smith becomes reconciled to the prospect of "rather a Communion than a Union."

Lord Amherst makes several appearances and there are encounters with George III, who reveals "a Face of Care"; Lord Shelburne ("a Skimmer"); old Gen. Oglethorpe, colonizer of Georgia; Benedict Arnold, Benjamin West, Oliver Cromwell, great-great-grandson of the Protector; Sheridan and Mrs. Siddons; the exiled Mirabeau and the notorious Mlle. d'Eon; Maurice Morgann the Shakespearean critic and Thomas Davies, the bookseller who introduced Boswell to Dr. Johnson.

Johnson's death in December, 1784, draws the comment: "It seems generally agreed that he was a Man of bad Manners but good Morals. So the Clergy concur for his Attachmt to Revelation. The Lay Scholastics having had Marks of his Contempt detest him—The polite World can never spare a Man that was brutish both in his Dress & Behaviour."

Much of the interest of the diaries derives from a rich store of anecdote, hearsay and talk of the town.

"Genl Tryon quotes a Lady (I suppose his Sister) of the Household who informed him that soon after the Votes agt the American War in Feby 1782 the Taylor took in the King's Cloaths thrice so much was he distressed by the Condition & Prospect of the public Affairs."

The record contains exchanges between Gibbon and Dr. Robertson, George Selwyn and Charles Fox, Queen Charlotte and John Adams (Robertson, Selwyn and, surprisingly, the Queen, had the last words).

Admirable in its brevity is Smith's comment on the story of how "the celebrated Sterne was dissected at Oxford"—"Poor Yorick!"

The final entry was made on May 18, 1787, seven months after Chief Justice Smith disembarked at Quebec to enter upon his new duties. During this period the journal deals solely with political affairs and particularly with his efforts to strengthen British institutions and practices in the colony. These 40-odd pages throw new light on the divisions within the governing body of the day.

From Dorchester comes a tribute which his old friend and protege must have recorded with a little justifiable complacency: "(My Lord) pays me compliments on their (the opposition's) Embarrassmts.—Says there never was a Lawyer before me in the Province."

Ahead of William Smith lay six busy years—too busy for diary-keeping?—of judicial service, after the Constitutional Act of 1791 as first Chief Justice of Lower Canada and Speaker of the Legislative Council. He died at Quebec on Dec. 6, 1793, in his 66th year and it is recorded that "His Royal Highness Prince Edward, fourth son of King George III, with a numerous train of friends, followed the remains to the grave from his late dwelling on St. Louis street."

Chief Justice Smith, it should be added, sought to include in the Constitutional Act provision for a federal union of all the British North American provinces. The recommendation was considered premature by the Imperial government but now appears prophetic enough to qualify him for the title of—Grandfather of Confederation?

PRIME MINISTERS' PACKET

To mark the re-opening of the 24th Parliament in Ottawa, the Library arranged an exhibit of autographed letters by every Canadian Prime Minister since Confederation. Two or three of the letters were lent for the occasion; the others were selected from various manuscript collections in the archives department of the library. As they attracted a good deal of attention, we here publish the texts of some of the more interesting of the thirteen letters included in the exhibit. While they shed little, if any, new light on the course of Canadian political life, they reflect some of the lively issues of the past, hard-won victories and overwhelming defeats.

Each letter has its own interest, and each reveals something of the writer's personality or character. This, at times, is oddly at variance with the traditional view of the first ministers in the history texts. The dour Mr. Mackenzie exhibits a highly jocular vein in describing a vice-regal soirée; sedate-looking Sir Mackenzie Bowell is not above relishing the popular slang of his day; Mr. Bennett unbends to a Queen's admirer and makes a gracious exit. Other letters are more "characteristic". The wily Sir John A. gives cautious instructions to Dr. Lavell whom he sends on a confidential mission to examine Riel's mental state. Sir Wilfrid Laurier in defeat after thirteen years in office retains his faith in reciprocity and suggests that the religious issue mainly caused his overthrow. Fascinated by the occult, Mr. Mackenzie King explores the credibility of graphology, uncertain whether his correspondent has not been flattering his ego. Sir Robert Borden, in retirement, finds that "new" is a relative term at Oxford; having done his homework on the Rhodes Memorial Lectures, he manages to keep up with social activities, and will have much to tell his old friend Dr. Adam Shortt, when he returns to Ottawa.

1. SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD (1815-1891); Prime Minister 1867-73, 1878-91. Letter, October 3, 1885, to Dr. Michael Lavell, Warden and Surgeon of Kingston Penitentiary.
   Presented to Queen's University Archives by Dr. A. E. Lavell.

Private & confidential

My dear Lavell

This will be given you by my secretary Mr. Pope who is quite confidential. As Sir A. Campbell explained to you the object of your mission to the North West, I need not dilate upon it. We desire that your trip and its object should be kept a profound secret until after your arrival at Regina & in fact until you have made your Report.

Dr. Valade of Ottawa will leave tonight and go straight through to Regina and will act with you in the examination & report.

He is a reliable man & we have thought it wise for obvious reasons that there should be a French Canadian on the Enquiry. He leaves here ostensibly to get undoubted Vaccine matter from the U.S. I have told him that as Surgeon and Warden of the P[enitentiary] you had under your charge Criminal Lunatics & were therefore an Expert. I have fully impressed him with this idea. So don't be too modest about it.

I shall send by Mail from here under cover to Gov. Dewdney a formal letter of instructions to you & Valade but if you arrive before it you need not wait but proceed to see Riel. Talk confidentially to Mr. Dewdney. You should also see Dr. Jukes the surgeon of the Mounted Police who has been in medical charge of the Prison since Riel's confinement — also Capt. Deane of the Police in charge of the Prison the Gaoler & all such persons as Dewdney will indicate & any other persons you like. I should suggest as few as possible — so soon as you are convinced that Riel knows right from wrong and is an accountable being. Remember that the Jury have decided that he was sane when his treasons were committed and at the time of his trial. The Judge approved of the verdict and the Court of Queen's Bench at Manitoba on appeal confirmed it. You cannot therefore go beyond that verdict and your enquiry will be limited to the simple question whether he at the time of your report is sufficiently a reasonable and accountable being to know right from wrong. If a man has raging dementia after conviction the law humanely postpones the Execution so that he may have an opportunity of preparing for death — but if — whatever illusions he may have — he still knows right from wrong the law should be allowed to take effect. But I need scarcely tell you all this as you understand the subject. A man may have his mind so unhinged as to warrant two medical men to certify his insanity so as to send him to an asylum for curative purposes and yet be open to the penalties of the law for a breach of such law. I hope you will be able to leave on Monday. You must have some business in New York or elsewhere so as to throw people off the scent. I wish it were earlier in the season so that you could see the country to advantage.

Will you draw on F. White of Ottawa if necessary for $150 to pay expenses. The compensation will be liberal as it ought to be considering the importance of the mission.

In haste
Yours sincerely
John A. Macdonald

Dr. Lavell

P.S. I shall be glad to hear from you by Cypher — should you wish to inform me of anything — separately from Dr. Valade Dewdney will manage that for you.

Your Enquiry I should think can only keep you two or three days.

2. HON. ALEXANDER MACKENZIE (1822-92); Prime Minister 1873-78. Letter, September 25, 1879, to his daughter, Mrs. John Thompson.
From Hon. Alexander Mackenzie Papers, Douglas Library Archives.

Toronto Sep 25 1879

My dear Mary

Somehow my time has been so much taken up with strangers in the City, Robert's return, and some business affairs that I have neglected my private correspondence, my only epistle being my letter to Helen (still unanswered). Well the Princess has gone at last, and we are all delighted to be left in peace and quietness unruffled by government Courtiers, or rather Flunkies, like Gzowski or the gaping multitude which constantly thronged the street in front of Government House and chased the lady from spot to spot. It is the fashion to say that we are a democratic almost republican people. Late events have shown that our people are worshippers of title & position or that they are rude as Hottentots. Even on Sunday evenings not less than a thousand people, most of them well dressed, filled the street to see the titled strangers emerge to go to church. Mr. McDonnell's church was filled by a crowd such as might be seen at an excited political meeting. Mrs. Campbell (?) bore herself well all round but she was very tired of it all. In the higher circles there was an abundant display of toadyism an intense anxiety to get a word with the Princess and particularly a touch of her hand. A large number shrank from the drawing room ordeal however, only 1150 being present. Many of this number walked in evidently unable to see who the Princess was, or who was the Princess rather, and bowed to the wrong person or did not bow at all. Husbands in the hurry to get through trampled on wives' dresses or forgot everything in the hurry to get through that awful collonade of Officers and Courtiers. Lady Howland went through in grand style curtseying so low that every one wondered how the whole of that 300 pound woman ever got up again. Another stupendous woman a head taller than me and three times as thick went through with the preliminary movement to a curtsey. The officer immediately behind stepped back hurriedly evidently seized with a sudden apprehension of what might become of his family if the curtsey should fail in the recovery. Some one whispered "is that whole woman to be presented at once". The lady in the meantime thought better of her intention & to our great relief, passed on and no doubt finished up in the next room. Our sedate Judge was so flustered that he stepped on three or four feet of his wife's dress just as they passed me. She was about to commence bowing to the Marquis when her husband's rear attack compelled her to bow backward. She managed however to cast a look backward which said as plainly as possible "Wait till we get home". A sudden move of one hand shewed that some tacking had given way, and she retired precipitately to repair damages without further attempt at finishing the well practiced salute. The Ball was a failure in everything but a fine room and a costly supper. There were three ladies to one man. The male $7.00 ticket had some effect in the hard times. We did not intend to go till the last moment, and then at the instance of prominent friends who insisted that my absence would be noticed, and we reached home a little after one. In addition to the Govr and wife we had three English Members of Parliament one a leading Liberal Mr. Potter and two Tories. Mr. Potter I never met but we had long corresponded; the others had letters. Of course we had to pay them all some attention. The Tory MPs are Royal Commissioners to enquire into agriculture. We induced them to visit Guelph, Bow Park and other places as well as the Toronto Exhibition finishing up with a party at our house. They told me that they enquired everywhere from hundreds of farmers and others about the working of the "National Policy" and found a remarkable unanimity against it and the present government. They will no doubt report this to Mr. Disraili (sic).

Mr. Letellier is very ill not I think dangerously but so ill as to confine him to the house. It seems he had inflamation of the lungs and neglected it and now much time and care will be necessary to cure him. Mrs. Brown has him as a guest and I fear for some time. She already had Mr. and Mrs. Potter and servants Dr. Thompson (the "Land & the Book") and Sister Brother and Niece from Edinburgh.

We had some amusement from Robert's description of visits to friends in Scotland specially a visit to a cousin in Renfrewshire where he made his bed in a hay stack for the night being unable to find the house like Mark Twain in the Snow Storm. His story would have been complete had the dog torn his clothes but somehow there was no dog.

Our kind regards to John and Helen

Dear Morris

Schultz was here today and voluntarily offered his "Mite" to push the Selkirk election and we telegraphed Young that the "Rino" ($250) would be forthcoming.

I wish you would keep up a correspondence with him upon the subject, giving him a line now and again — it will encourage them, and make [them] think we have not forgotten them and give them heart. They will know you are disinterested now.

Yours truly

My dear Gregory, —

Many thanks for your kind letter. All the information which I receive leads me to the conclusion that the Ne Temere Decree, the Eucharistic Congress and a Catholic Leader, were the most potent causes of our defeat. Reciprocity did not play the part which it should. The people did not rally to it as they would have done years ago, for the reason that the country is so prosperous, and, therefore, reciprocity did not appeal to them as it should. Still the policy is sound and sure to revive again at the first manifestation of hard times. I must thank you for the efforts which you put up on our behalf.

Believe me ever, my dear Gregory, —

Yours sincerely,

My dear Dr. Shortt,

I enclose a memo with regard to my lectures.

Social activities, both in Oxford and in London, have been rather intense. If my lectures were not completed, I could not keep up with them.

Last evening I dined in Hall with the Warden of New College. The Hall dates from 1387, and the College was called "New" because there was only one other College building (Merton) when it was commenced. Dons and students have been dining in that Hall for more than 500 years. The Warden's lodgings date from the same period.

One sees many quaint and interesting survivals of mediaeval manners & customs. I shall have much to tell you after I arrive. I hope to reach Ottawa about the middle of July.

Best wishes,
Faithfully yours,
R. L. Borden.

My dear Miss Low:

I enclose a sample of the handwriting of which I spoke to you. It is that of a lady whose husband is a friend of mine, and who is much interested in the reading of my character as given by you. Their boy served with the Canadian forces overseas throughout the war. The quotation has been sent to me for the purpose of this reading, as the subject was a much discussed one on a visit to their home some little time ago. Please do not go to any trouble but if you see obvious indications of character from the writing do not hesitate to express them fearlessly. As you know me personally, I cannot but feel, that you have been overgenerous in your reading of my hand. I confess I shall be influenced somewhat in my continued belief in your powers by the verdict in this case, as there are traits and characteristics quite unmistakeable in the character of the person whose writing I enclose a specimen of, and if you list them aright I shall ever after believe in your science, and your mastery of it — please, however, go to no trouble

With kindest regards
Yours very sincerely
W. L. Mackenzie King.

Dear Professor Clarke, —

I thank you for your very kind note, which was written before polling day. I dare say if you had waited until after the votes were counted, you would have had some hesitancy in writing at all.

We did not expect to succeed in the election. On the other hand, we did not contemplate being so disastrously defeated. However, I have no regrets at the outcome except insofar as it concerns my friends. Neither have I complaints to make. I realize that the people have endured great hardships in recent years and they had to find some way to vent their resentment against general conditions. This they did by voting against the government of the day; and I incline to think that, as a result of their action, they will now have a clearer appreciation of the problems which confronted the late government and perhaps a kinder disposition towards those responsible for the administration of the affairs of this country during the last few difficult years.

Personally, I have had real pleasure in giving to Canada, during perhaps the most critical period in its history, such service as I could; and now that my masters, the people of this country, have discharged me, I except their dismissal with equanimity. At least I have the satisfaction of knowing that I did not abandon the ship or seek to evade punishment by retiring last spring, as the state of my health rendered it advisable for me to do.

Assuring you of my sincere appreciation, not only of the kind terms in which you have written me but also of the courtesy that prompted you to send me a note of commendation.

With all good wishes and kindest regards,
Believe me,
I am
Yours faithfully,
R. B. Bennett.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

A Letter from the Principal

APRIL 1960

Dear Fellow Graduates:

While the snow still lies deep, the end of another session is close upon us. The worried intentness of the students and the cessation of social and athletic activities confirm the evidence of the calendar.

Staff — Each year brings its own problems. Each year we lose valued members of staff by retirement and resignation. Each year we have fresh accessions of strength. We have been fortunate and happy in the recruits to our small administrative organization. Dr. J. J. Deutsch, in a few months, has proved a tower of strength and the division of the non-academic administrative load between him and Mr. Tillotson is enabling us to introduce many improvements and economies which have been long overdue. Dean A. R. C. Duncan has taken firm grasp of the Faculty of Arts and Science and is tackling with vigor problems of admissions, staff and standards in this, the most rapidly growing of the Faculties. Mrs. Edwin Bryce has brought to the office of Dean of Women a lively interest in young people and a charm and practical good sense which are drawing warm appreciation from colleagues and students alike.

There is continued growth and inevitable change in our academic staff. At the end of this session, a number of professors, who have served the University with distinction and are well known to generations of graduates, will retire — Professor J. C. Cameron, Industrial Relations, and Professor Ralph Jeffery in Mathematics, Professor Douglas Jemmett in Electrical Engineering, Professor H. W. Harkness in Physics and Professor Morris Wood in Mathematics. These will be greatly missed but it is hoped that Professors Harkness and Wood will continue to give some part-time service. In the Faculty of Medicine, we shall equally miss Dr. W. A. Jones in Radiology and Dr. Stewart Houston in Surgery who are retiring.

We have already appointed Dr. John Coleman of the University of Toronto to succeed Professor Jeffery and other appointments are in the course of arrangement. We are making additional appointments in a number of Departments and are particularly trying to expand our work in Geography and Russian.

Each year some of our staff are on sabbatical leave and next year Vice-Principal Corry, Professor Estall in Philosophy and Professor Good in Biology will be away.

Enrolment — The increase in students over last year has been very moderate. Excluding some part-time and special students, the numbers are 2,863 as against 2,799. There was a substantial drop in first-year Engineering as in practically all the chief Engineering Schools in the country. Since few institutions have as large a fraction of their students in Engineering as we have, this has affected our total figures. There has been a gratifying increase in the number of graduate students, 179 as against 143. As a result of smaller numbers applying, we have this year taken in all qualified applicants.

This pause in growth is no indication that the coming crisis in numbers has been exaggerated. It has been no more than a pause. The Registrar tells me that the applications and inquiries for next year are far in excess of what they were last year at this time. At some time we shall not be able to take all applicants but we shall always be looking for good students in all Faculties. We have special interest in additional graduate students and students in the Honours courses in Arts and Science and in the Faculty of Law.

School of Business — The Senate and the Board of Trustees have approved the inauguration of a two-year graduate course leading to the degree of Business Administration and the change of the name of the School of Commerce to the School of Business.

Buildings — We are reaching a new chapter in our building program. Dunning Hall has been occupied by the School of Commerce and the Department of Political and Economic Science throughout this session. Leonard Hall, the new men's residence, has been fully occupied except for the dining room which we hope to open in time for the summer conferences and Summer School. One wing of the new women's residence has been used since January and the other two wings will be available for summer use. We shall have residence space next session for about 1,050 students. A new building for the Faculty of Law on the corner of Lower Alfred and Union Street is now rising out of the snow to the second storey. We hope during the next few months to get started on a number of smaller projects — some reconstruction of Carruthers Hall and the Old Gymnasium for Mathematics and Drafting, a substantial new wing on the Chemistry building and some extension of the Mining and Metallurgy laboratories. Additional floors are being planned for McLaughlin Hall, the Mechanical Engineering building, the addition like the main building, a gift from Mr. R. S. McLaughlin. At an exploratory stage as yet is a project for a new Physics building.

Important Occasions — This year's Dunning Trust Lecturer, the eminent physicist Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, made a notably deep impact on students and staff alike. His perception, range and authority drew overflowing audiences to Grant Hall.

Our summer is likely to be very busy not only with an increased Summer School but the sessions of a large number of Learned Societies, of which the chief are the Royal Society and the Conference of Canadian Universities which will meet here in the first half of June. The overall attendance seems likely to run to more than 2,500. At the end of August, we are hosts to an International Conference of Nuclear Physicists.

Finance — Financial problems are always with us. Our operating expenditures grow every year and our capital budget has been large. However, you may be sure that we have no expenditure commitments that are not covered by funds on hand or funds which have been firmly committed. The funds for our building program have come from several sources. Our Financial Campaign of 1957 yielded more than $4,000,000. By the Canada Council we were allotted $1,900,000 and all of this has been drawn or committed. The Ontario Government raised its capital grant last year from $1,000,000 to $1,250,000 and has continued it at $1,250,000 for next year. The annual giving of graduates, which in 1959 amounted to $142,754, has been of great assistance both in itself and as evidence of the concern and loyalty of our graduates.

We have spent a great deal of time and effort persuading the Ontario Government that our annual maintenance grant which, on a per-student basis was the lowest in the Province, should be increased radically. We have been greatly gratified that the Province has accepted our case and in this year's budget has increased our annual maintenance grant from $1,075,000 to $1,300,000. This by no means wipes out the disparity but is an important step toward it and will enable us to move forward with important projects of maintaining our salaries in reasonable relationship with those of the best Canadian universities and increasing radically our library expenditures.

I can again report favourably of our students in their conduct of the Alma Mater Society and in such projects as the Drama Guild, the Open House, the Revue and the Quarry, they have reached standards of high excellence. We still have too great wastage. We still need greater intellectual stimulus and ferment among our students.

I cannot report that all is well but I am satisfied that our directions are right and that each year we make measureable progress.

Sincerely yours,

DUNNING HALL
